Falmouth, Sept. 26. This day came in here the Hopeship from the Barbadoes, which brings an Account, That the Honourable Ralph Grey Esq; Governor of that Island, arrived there the 27th of July, with His Majesty's Ships the Soldadoes and Speedwell.

Whitehall, Octob. 2. This Evening came in the Post from Holland of Tuesday last, by which we have an Account; That His Majesty left Loo on Tuesday the 20th of September, and arrived that night at Linghen, his own Town, about 70 miles from Loo. The next day His Majesty came to Brackhausen, a Seat of the Duke of Cell's about the same distance from Linghen, being received at Buesern on the Duke's Frontiers by Monsieur Schurz, one of his Privy-Council, and his Envoy Extraordinary to His Majesty, and Messieurs de Pelitz and Hanenstein Gentlemen of his Bed-Chamber, who are all three particularly appointed to wait on His Majesty during his stay in those Parts; Monsieur de Bulleau, the Grand Marshal, attending likewise on His Majesty, to provide and defray all things necessary for His Majesty's Court. The Baron de Plettemberg, Dean of the Chapter of Munster, and Brother to the Bishop, was sent to Receive and Compliment His Majesty at his arrival at the Bishop's Frontiers. The like Compliment having been made by the Baron de Swartz General of the Bishop's Forces, before His Majesty came to Buesern; and besides the Dutch Troops which were posted as far as the Duke's Frontiers at several Stages, to attend His Majesty in his Journey with Relays of Horses; the Bishop likewise posted Guards and Relays through his whole Country; And from Buesern His Majesty was attended by the Guards of Hanouer and Cell, both Horse and Foot. On Thursday the 22d His Majesty went about 70 miles further from Brackhausen to Ebstort, another Seat of the Duke of Cell's, who came thither with part of his Court, and received His Majesty with the greatest Marks of Respect and Affection; and accompanied His Majesty the next day to the Gour, another Hunting-House, where His Majesty arrived about Noon, being welcomed at the Coach side by the Dutchess of Cell, and the Ladies of her Court, who conducted His Majesty to his Apartment. The Dukes of Holstein Ploen and Mecklenbourg Swerin came to wait upon His Majesty; And the Elector of Hanouer was expected in 2 or 3 days at the Gour, where the whole Court was Entertained by the Duke of Cell in a very splendid manner.

The Letters from Vienna of the 24th of September say, That the Emperor's Plenipotentiaries for the Treaty of Peace with the Turks had sent away their Baggage, and would themselves follow in 3 or 4 days for Hungary, with the Ambassadors of Venice and Muscovy; and the Turks were building near Salankemen a Place for the Congress. The King of Poland's Minister was already arrived at Buda. The Imperial Army was encamped near Berzkerk; The Turks near Belgrade, and the latter were making a Bridge over the Save. They write from Poland, that the Forces of that Crown were marching towards Caminiec.

The Master, Wardens, and Assistants of Trinity-house, at their late Survey of the Channels, having found, that that of the Spits is become very shoaly, and otherwise dangerous from the many Wrecks therein; do, instead thereof, Recommend to all Masters and Pilots of Ships the Use of the Channel call'd the Buxey, lying about Two Miles to the Westward of the Place where the Buoy of the Spits last lay, being more than a Quarter of a Mile broad, and Nine Foot deep at Low-Water. And for a Direction through the said Channel, the Buoy of the Spits is removed thither, and laid on the side next the Swin in Two Fathom, and a Red Buoy is plac'd upon the West-end of the Gunfleet, on the Wallet-side, in Ten Foot at Low-Water. The said Two Buoys lie North-North-West and South-South-East, distant from each other about Half a Mile.

His Majesty hath been graciously pleased to grant Letters Patents to the late Sufferers by Fire at Lancaster, for a Collection towards their Relief, of which, all Ministers and Church-Wardens are hereby desired to take Notice, and pursue the Tenor thereof accordingly.
