Board of Trade, Whitehall Gardens,

30th January 1917.

The KING has been graciously pleased to confer the Decoration of the Albert Medal of the Second Class upon Mr. Joseph Conolly, Third Engineer of the steamship "Vanellus," of Cork.

The following is an account of the services in respect of which the Decoration has been conferred:—

On the 1st October 1916, the steamship "Vanellus," of Cork, struck a mine in Havre

Roads, and the vessel, which was laden with petrol, immediately burst into flames.

Owing to the rapidity with which the flames spread it was impossible to clear away the boats, and most of the crew jumped overboard. Three lives were lost by the casualty.

Although the engine-room telegraph was broken by the explosion Mr. Conolly remained at his post in the engine-room until every one else had left the ship. He kept the engines working astern, and thus made it possible for a lifeboat to be lowered on the port side, and by this means a number of lives were saved.

Before finally leaving the ship he again went below and stopped the engines.

Mr. Conolly was badly burnt in rendering the services.
