PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

FROM TUESDAY, JUNE 2, TO FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1812.

The following Address has been presented to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Address his Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously.—

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT. The humble Address of the Lieutenancy, Freeholders, Commissioners of Supply, Justices of the Peace, and Community at large, of the County of Nairn, assembled in the Town Hall, at Nairn, on the 30th day of April 1812.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Lieutenancy, Freeholders, Commissioners of Supply, Justices of the Peace, and Community at large, of the county of Nairn, assembled in the Town Hall, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, and to offer our condolence on the continued melancholy situation of our afflicted Monarch; and while we bewail his sufferings and have to lament the loss of his paternal care, it is a matter of the greatest consolation, that we have the happiness of seeing in the son so genuine a representative of the august person whose functions he is appointed to discharge.

We beg leave humbly to express to your Royal Highness, how much we have admired the propriety of your having left the most delicate discussions, to the decision of an unbiassed Parliament; evincing that your Royal Highness has no object to obtain, but such as are common to all his Majesty's subjects.

We most humbly beg leave to express our entire approbation of those great state measures made necessary by the arbitrary and denationalizing decrees of the enemy respecting neutral commerce: and we further beg leave, in approaching your Royal Highness, to express the sincere pleasure we feel in offering our congratulations to the empire at large, that your Royal Highness has in no instance deviated from that bright example, exhibited by your Royal Highness's august parent.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment,
by HUGH ROSE, Preses.

WHITEHALL.—MAY 29, 1812.

The following Addresses of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland having been transmitted by Francis Lord Napier, his Majesty's Commissioner, to the Right Hon. Richard Ryder, one of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, have been by him presented to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Address his Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously.—

May it please your Royal Highness,

THE gracious letter with which your Royal Highness, in name and on behalf of his Majesty, has been pleased to honour this meeting of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, was received with sentiments of gratitude and profound respect.

The approbation which his Majesty has been pleased to bestow on past Assemblies, during a long course of years, and the confidence which he has reposed in our loyalty and attachment to his person and government, are powerful motives to induce us to maintain those principles, and to continue in the diligent discharge of those duties, which may justify the good opinion which your Royal Highness, in the name and on behalf of his Majesty, has been pleased to express, and prove that the royal confidence has not been misplaced; and it is a subject of heartfelt satisfaction that the same disposition and conduct which, as good members of society and true Christians, we are bound to cherish and maintain, will most certainly procure for us the royal favour; and that the faithful discharge of our duties is regarded as the best return we can make to the affection of a sovereign who has had nothing so much at heart during his long reign, as to promote the happiness of his subjects.

We rely with entire confidence on that assurance which your Royal Highness, in the name and on the behalf of his Majesty, has been pleased to give of your determination to maintain the church of Scotland in the full enjoyment of all its just rights and privileges. This assurance we consider as a proof of your Royal Highness's regard for the rights of his Majesty's subjects; and it lays us under strong obligations to cherish respect and loyalty to his Majesty's person and government under which we enjoy protection.

The reappointment of the Right Honourable Francis Lord Napier to represent his Majesty in this Assembly, we consider as a new mark of the royal favour. The honour of his ancient family, his public and private virtues, his known attachment to the Church of Scotland, and the long experience we have had of his fidelity and talents, render this appointment most acceptable to us all.

We have listened with respectful deference to the paternal admonition of your Royal Highness, and we are deeply impressed with the urgent necessity of redoubling our efforts to check that spirit of innovation and licentiousness by which the present times are so unhappily characterised, and which threaten to fill the kingdom with violence and confusion. We are fully persuaded that we shall effect the most important purposes of our meeting if we can advance the interests of religion and virtue, and secure the stability of that national church and of that excellent constitution under which we have for so long a period enjoyed such invaluable blessings, and we desire to assure your Royal Highness that no exertion shall be wanting on our part to promote the loyalty, and preserve the peaceable demeanour which, we are happy to say, prevail among those intrusted to our national care.

We have received with gratitude his Majesty's donation of two thousand pounds for the propagation of Christian knowledge in the highlands and islands of Scotland, and we will endeavour so to distribute this sacred fund of charity as may best promote the pious and benevolent intentions of the royal donor.

That Almighty God the Father of our Lord and Saviour may protect and bless our good and gracious Sovereign, her Majesty the Queen, your Royal Highness the Prince Regent, and all the members of the Royal Family; that he would direct and prosper all the measures of his Majesty's government for the public good; that after a long and happy reign over a free and loyal people, he may at last obtain a glorious and unfading crown in heaven, and that the throne of the British dominions may be occupied for ages to come by princes of the same illustrious house, who may imitate his piety and virtue, are the sincere and fervent prayers of, may it please your Royal Highness, his Majesty's most faithful, most obedient, and most loyal subjects, the Ministers and Elders of this National Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

Signed in our name, in our presence, and at our appointment, by

WM. M' MORINE, Moderator.
Edinburgh, May 23, 1812.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Ministers and Elders of the Church of Scotland, met in the General Assembly, beg leave to approach the throne with expressions of the most sincere affection and respect for your Royal Highness.

We sincerely sympathize with your Royal Highness on account of the continued and severe malady with it has pleased God to visit your royal father, our most gracious Sovereign. We were justly attached to his person, revered his virtues, and were happy under his government—the more afflicting now is our grief for the severity of his indisposition, and the loss which we sustain. On this occasion, as in other calamities, this is our consolation, that the great ruler of the world arranges and conducts all events with infinite wisdom, rectitude, and goodness.

It has been no small alleviation of this great calamity, that your Royal Highness came forward at the desire of the nation, to preside in the empire and administer its affairs. The promptitude and energy, the prudence and the mildness, with which you have hitherto acted, the warm interest which you have taken in the welfare of the state, and the uniform regard which you have shewn to its admirable constitution and laws, all assure us of the continued maintenance of our invaluable rights and privileges, civil and sacred. We deeply lament the calamities of war, and that inordinate and insatiable ambition of the enemy which precludes the near prospect of a safe and honourable peace. Yet amidst all the dangers which have threatened us, and the hardships under which we have laboured, we will remember with gratitude that providence has continued to protect and prosper us. Our resources for maintaining the arduous and protracted conflict have never failed; the arms of our country by sea and land have been so successful, as to deprive the enemy of all his colonies and foreign commerce; and the recent brilliant achievements in the peninsula have thrown an additional lustre on the British name. Neighbouring nations have already caught a portion of our spirit; and we trust that this may diffuse itself over other kingdoms now unhappily subjected to the enemy; they may yet rally around us, assert their own independence, and aid us in humbling the common foe, and in securing for ourselves and for the world the invaluable blessings of peace.

We deplore those acts of insubordination and licentiousness, of riot and outrage, which have lately disgraced some parts of the united kingdom; and we particularly lament the fall by assassination of a statesman, distinguished no less for his virtues than for his talents. We mourn the loss which his family and his country sustain by his untimely death; and deeply regret that a crime so atrocious could have been perpetrated by any individual in this favoured and enlightened country. Aggravated, however, as it is, we have some consolation in thinking, that the criminal was instigated not by any connection with other men, but by personal malice only.

We beg leave to assure your Royal Highness, that no spirit of insubordination has appeared in this part of the empire, and that as far as in us lies, we will exert ourselves in maintaining loyalty and subjection to the laws. For this purpose we will employ all our personal influence, as well as the faithful and assiduous discharge of our ministerial duties; we will inculcate on our people, old and young, the doctrines of our holy religion, and endeavour, with the aid of divine grace, to fix deeply in their hearts those principles of morality derived from the gospel, which are powerful to regulate the conduct of men, to bring them under due subjection, and to preserve order and peace.

That the God of all power and grace may bless your Royal Highness, and establish the dominion of his Majesty, under your direction, in the affection and loyalty of his subjects; that princes of your illustrious house, to the latest posterity, may sway the British sceptre, and that after a long and happy life on earth, you may obtain at last eternal salvation and happiness though Jesus Christ our Lord; these are the fervent prayers of, may it please your Royal Highness, his Majesty's most faithful, most obedient, and most loyal subjects, the Ministers and Elders of this National Assembly of the Church of Scotland.
