PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

FROM TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, TO FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1814.

The following Address has been presented to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent, which Address his Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously.

To his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Chancellor, Vice Chancellor, Dean of Faculties, Principal and Professors of the University of Glasgow, in Senate assembled, beg leave humbly to approach the throne, to tender to your Royal Highness our most hearty congratulations on the splendid victories which, through the blessing of God, have in rapid succession crowned the arms of our King, and of his august allies.

Contemplating with high satisfaction the enlightened and liberal policy of his Majesty's councils, in speedily espousing the cause of Spain and Portugal, when groaning under a yoke imposed on them by the fraud and violence of foreign usurpation; and feeling the most lively gratitude to your Royal Highness for the magnanimity and wisdom of your councils in their support, by giving the most powerful effect to our national resources, during the arduous conflict; we have beheld, with mingled sentiments of admiration and joy, the great achievements of that distinguished General, the Marquess of Wellington, and the brave warriors under his command, defeating, in successive engagements, the vaunted armies of France, expelling them from their strong holds, and driving back their broken forces over the Pyrenean mountains.

We exult in the thought, that the successful exertions for emancipating from lawless domination, the oppressed inhabitants of the Peninsula, have not only proved to afflicted Europe, that the boasted armies of their great oppressor are not invincible; but have tended to rouse, from a state of temporary dependency, the Northern nations, to give an effectual check, by their joint co-operation, to his boundless ambition. We rejoice that the sparks of patriotism, for a while suppressed and smothered, have thus broke forth, and, amidst the attempts of numerous hosts to extinguish them, have burst into a flame that has spread far and wide, till it has cheered and enlightened the world.

We have seen with the most exquisite delight, the allied monarchs, in common with their subjects, determined to make every sacrifice for vindicating the independence of their dominions, placing themselves at the head of armies, animated with ardent zeal to break the tyrant's yoke, and amid the perils of war, leading on their gallant soldiers from victory to victory, declaring, in terms firm and moderate, their united resolution to persevere in the mighty contest, till every state shall be restored to its just rights, and secured against subjugation to a foreign power.

We also request permission to testify to your Royal Highness, our feelings of joy and exultation on the deliverance of Holland from the tyranny of the ruler of France, whose inhabitants, deeply sensible of the blessings of a rightful government, have hastened to invite their legitimate prince to return to his native country to rule over them. We particularly rejoice that his Majesty's hereditary dominions of Hanover are restored to the illustrious house of Brunswick, under whose sway Great Britain, by the wisdom of her public councils, and by her naval and military exploits, has risen to a pitch of renown unknown in former times, and, by the liberality and moderation of her government, has secured the respect and confidence of surrounding nations.

Deeply sensible of the blessings enjoyed by British subjects, we desire to assure your Royal Highness, that it shall be our constant endeavour to cultivate in the minds of the numerous youth under our care, the principles of patriotism and loyalty, and a steady attachment to our excellent constitution.

With entire reliance on the wisdom of your Royal Highness, in conjunction with his Majesty's allies, for prosecuting the most effectual measures to maintain the rights of independent states, and to establish upon a solid basis, an honourable and a lasting peace, it is our earnest prayer to the Sovereign Ruler of the universe, that he may continue to bless and direct your councils, and render his Majesty's government, under your auspicious administration, more and more conducive to the happiness of his subjects in every part of the British dominions.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, having the University seal affixed, at Glasgow, the 27th day of December, in the year 1813, by MONTROSE, Chancellor, &c.

[Transmitted by his Grace the Duke of Montrose, K. T. and presented by the Right Honourable Viscount Sidmouth.]
