FOREIGN-OFFICE—JUNE 2, 1814.

Mr Planta arrived at this office late last night from Paris, with the Definitive Treaty of Peace and Amity between his Britannic Majesty and his Most Christian Majesty, signed at Paris on the 30th ultimo by Viscount Castlereagh, the Earl of Aberdeen, K. T. General Viscount Cathcart, K. T. and Lieutenant-General Sir Charles William Stewart, K. B. Plenipotentiaries of his Majesty; and by the Prince de Benevent, Plenipotentiary of his Most Christian Majesty.

THE following Address has been presented to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Address his Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

WE, his Majesty's faithful subjects, the Chancellor, Rector, Principals, and Masters of the University of St Andrews, participating in the universal joy which pervades the nation, beg leave to offer our cordial congratulations on the present auspicious state of public affairs.

Recalling to our remembrance the portentous aspect of the fortunes of Europe, at the period when the sovereign power of this country was delegated to your Royal Highness, we cannot fail to be delighted with the contrast between the days of perplexity which have passed away, and the dawn of better times now opening on the world. The energetic measures, originating in the councils of your Royal Highness, have exhibited Britain in the noble attitude of scattering blessings over other lands, redressing the violated rights of humanity, combating the despotism which desolated the fairest portions of the globe, and furnishing injured states, hitherto our rivals and our foes, with the means of surmounting their disasters and establishing their independence: and the blessing of Heaven has rewarded the firmness and magnanimity of your Royal Highness, the wisdom, ability, and honour of your government, and the spirit and perseverance of a generous people, by conducting those mighty and arduous enterprises to a termination, which the sagacity of the most enlightened statesmen could scarcely have ventured to anticipate.

Nor have we less reason to be grateful to your Royal Highness, for the choice of those illustrious commanders, who have so often led his Majesty's forces to triumph, and who, by their consummate skill and bravery, have not only unrolled the brightest pages in the annals of British glory, but by their animating example, awakened the energies of virtuous liberty in minds inured to bondage, and diffused the flame of patriotism over numerous territories, which for a season appeared to be doomed to hopeless degradation.

Having ever endeavoured to inculcate and exemplify those principles of attachment to our king, our laws, and our liberties, which we imbibed from our fathers, we have witnessed, with heartfelt satisfaction, the practical refutation of those revolutionary schemes, which, although promising to meliorate the condition of mankind, have, when weighed in the balance of experience, been found wanting; and it is with feelings of unspeakable exultation, that we see those pernicious systems, after various gradations of anarchy, misrule, and tyranny, yielding at last to a better order of things, and their former admirers doing homage at the shrine of our matchless constitution, and wishing to adopt it as the best existing model of a government fitted to secure the freedom, the dignity, and the happiness of the subjects.

While we unite with the whole civilized world in giving thanks to the Almighty Ruler for the re-establishment of hereditary thrones, the restoration of the ancient landmarks of kingdoms, and the auspicious commencement of peaceful times, we joyfully seize this occasion, to renew our assurances of unshaken loyalty to the venerable monarch, who, during a long reign of unexampled difficulty, has ever been studiously alive to the improvement, and happiness of his subjects, and who, we earnestly hope, will yet receive the fulfilment of his heart's desire, in beholding the confirmed tranquillity of Europe, and the increasing prosperity of the land which gave him birth.

Signed by our appointment, this 16th day of May 1814.

JAMES PLAYFAIR, Rector.

CARLETON-HOUSE, MAY 30, 1814.

This day the Prince Regent, in the name and on the behalf of the King, was pleased to invest George Earl of Galloway with the ensigns of the Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle.

The Prince Regent having signed the several instruments for that purpose, which were presented to his Royal Highness on the 23d instant by Robert Quarre, Esq. Gentleman Usher of the Green Rod, in the absence of the Secretary, the Earl of Galloway was called into the Royal Presence, being preceded by the Dukes of Atholl and Buccleuch, two of the Knights Brethren of the Order, and supported by the Duke of Gordon and the Earl Poulett, the two Senior Knights present. Upon entering into the Royal Presence, with the usual reverences, the Earl of Galloway was presented by the said two Senior Knights, and, kneeling down, his Lordship was knighted by the Prince Regent with the sword of state; the Earl having kissed his Royal Highness's hand, rose up, when the Gentleman Usher of the Green Rod administered the oath to his Lordship; then Green Rod kneeling, presented the Ensigns of the Order upon a crimson velvet cushion to the Prince Regent, who put the ribbon over the Earl's left shoulder; and his Lordship, having again had the honour of kissing his Royal Highness's hand, withdrew, in the same manner in which he had entered.

The ceremony was performed in his Royal Highness's closet, several of the Great Officers of State and of the Court being present.
