

Edinburgh Gazette.

PUBLISHED BY AUTHORITY.

FROM FRIDAY, APRIL 11, TO TUESDAY, APRIL 15, 1817.

The following Addresses have been presented to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses his Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The loyal and dutiful Address of the Freeholders, Heritors, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Caithness.

WE, his Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Caithness, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness on this occasion, with our sincere and heartfelt congratulations on your escape from the dangers with which you were lately beset while in the exercise of your functions as Regent of these realms.

Lamenting, in common with all his Majesty's loyal subjects, the continuance of that unhappy malady which has so long separated our venerable Monarch from his people, we have great cause to rejoice that the royal authority has devolved upon a Prince who has exercised his high functions with such attention to the true interests of the empire.

We regard with abhorrence the atrocious assault upon the person of your Royal Highness; and tracing this wicked attempt against the life of your Royal Highness, and against the peace of the country, to the machinations of a few factious demagogues goading on a misguided people, and availing themselves, for the accomplishment of their wicked purposes, of calamities which no human prudence could prevent, we firmly trust, that in the loyalty and good sense of an enlightened nation, your Royal Highness will find ample security to your person and government against all such flagitious attempts.

Signed in presence, and by authority of the Meeting, at Thurso, this 14th day of February 1817.

J. A. TRAIL, Ps.

[Presented by George Sinclair, Esq.]

To his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town-Council of the Royal Burgh of Wick, in Common Council assembled.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town-Council of the Burgh of Wick, in Common Council assembled, beg leave most humbly to approach your Royal Highness with assurances of our warm and unalterable attachment to our beloved Sovereign, and to your Royal Highness's illustrious family and government; and to express our concern and indignation at the outrageous attack on your Royal Highness, in returning from opening, in the name and on the behalf of our revered Sovereign, the present sessions of the Parliament of the United Kingdom.

We bless the Sovereign Disposer of all events, by whom Kings reign, for defeating, in his great mercy to this nation, the intentions of wicked and traitorous men, and preserving to us, and to our fellow subjects, the invaluable blessings of your Royal Highness's government.

Previous to the late horrid attempt, we had fondly hoped, and firmly believed, that no one of his Majesty's subjects was capable of committing so atrocious a crime; and when we reflect how much your Royal Highness's government has added to the glory of the nation, without impairing in one single instance the liberty of the subject, we feel increased detestation and horror at the late traitorous attack on the sacred person of your Royal Highness.

We look with confidence to the wisdom of Parliament, and the vigilance and energy of your Royal Highness's government, for taking such measures as may lead to the discovery and punishment of the miscreants who made that attack, and for preventing, as far as possible, the recurrence in future of such dangerous and disgraceful deeds.

We have seen, with grief and the strongest disapprobation, some unprincipled demagogues taking advantage of the distresses which at present prevail, to excite among the ignorant multitude a spirit of disaffection to our unrivalled constitution and government. The distresses which these designing and sedition men so artfully and malignantly aggravate, and so grossly and wilfully misrepresent, as to their origin and causes, will, we trust, be gradually and even speedily removed; and, in the meantime, they are much alleviated by acts of public and private beneficence, which, to the immortal honour of the country, were never more frequent or more liberal. Your Royal Highness's example has been of incalculable value, and has, if possible, made you dearer than ever to the hearts of all his Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects. Your Royal Highness has shewn, to the joy of the whole kingdom, how deeply you sympathise with your people, and that your Royal Highness is not less ready to share with them in their sufferings than in their glory.

Signed in our name and by our appointment, and the seal of the Burgh affixed hereto, at Wick, this 20th day of February 1817.

WILL. MACLEAY, Provost.

[Presented by George Sinclair, Esq.]

To his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Magistrates of Burghs, of the County of Lanark, beg leave humbly to approach your Royal Highness with the truest feelings of attachment to your person, family, and government. We behold, with the utmost detestation and abhorrence, the daring and treasonable outrage which has been committed on your sacred person on your return from discharging one of the most important duties of the Sovereign authority. We beg leave to express our congratulations on your Royal Highness's providential escape; and we entertain the fervent hope, that the authors and abettors of an attempt so unworthy the character of a great and enlightened people, may be brought to condign and exemplary punishment.

We beg leave to assure your Royal Highness of our determined and unshaken loyalty, and that we shall ever regard any insult or violence upon your royal person, as aimed at our laws and constitution.

by which our dearest privileges and best rights have been established, and our country has become the admiration of surrounding nations, and which constitution we venerate as Britons ought to do, and are determined to use our most strenuous exertions to hand down to posterity unimpaired.

We sincerely deprecate the dangerous and unconstitutional projects of annual Parliaments and universal suffrage, evils ever regarded by the wise and judicious of all parties as only names for anarchy and revolution. These dangerous designs we abhor and reprobate, and are firmly resolved to oppose and counteract.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, at a General Meeting called by public advertisement, for the special purpose, by

BELHAVEN and STENTON.

Dated Hamilton, 18th February 1817.

[Presented by Lord Archibald Hamilton.]

To his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the County of Kincardine.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's faithful subjects, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Commissioners of Supply, Justices of Peace, and Heritors of Land in the County of Kincardine, in General Meeting assembled, at the Head Burgh of Stonehaven, the 17th day of February 1817, humbly approach your Royal Highness, to express our indignation and horror at the late atrocious outrage offered to your royal person, when returning from the discharge of a most important function of the royal prerogative, the opening the session of Parliament.

Unshaken in our attachment to our Sovereign and his illustrious House, unalterable in our veneration of the constitution of these kingdoms, we hasten to testify our dutiful regard for the person of your Royal Highness, and to declare our perfect confidence, that, from the wisdom of Parliament, will proceed every measure that can promote the happiness and welfare of the nation.

While we are sensible of the present distress, which affects every class of the community, yet, entertaining the confident expectation of our deliverance from a temporary evil, by the prudence and patriotism of our constitutional guardians, it is with unfeigned sorrow that we see the malicious attempts of wicked and designing men to mislead the uninformed, and to persuade them, that their relief is to be found in violence, and in wild and visionary measures, which, under specious pretences, would utterly destroy the constitution.

Deeply impressed with these sentiments, we feel it our duty to our country to pledge ourselves, individually and collectively, to support the just exercise of the authority of government, to maintain the constitution as by law established, and to resist any attempt, directed by craft or violence, against the civil liberty or social order of the state.

Signed in name and appointment of the Meeting, by our Preses, the Right Honourable John Lord Viscount Arbuthnott, Lieutenant of the County of Kincardine.

ARBUTHNOTT.

[Presented by G. H. Drummond, Esq.]

To his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble Address of the Magistrates, Town-Council, and Community of the Royal Burgh of Annan.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Bailies, Dean, Treasurer, Town-Council, and Community of the said Royal Burgh of Annan, humbly approach your Royal Highness with assurances of our unfeigned veneration and respect.

With the firmest and most cordial loyalty and attachment to your Royal Highness, as the representative of our beloved Sovereign, we contemplate with abhorrence and detestation the atrocious outrage offered to your Royal Highness, on your late return from opening the session of Parliament, whereby your royal person was endangered, while exercising one of the most important prerogatives attached to your station, as Regent of this United Kingdom.

That the perpetrators of an act so daring and detestable in its nature, may speedily be delivered over to the justice of their country; and that Divine Providence may preserve your Royal Highness for many years, and cause you to live in the affections of a generous and loyal people, is the fervent prayer of the Magistrates, Town-Council, and Community of the Royal Burgh of Annan.

[Transmitted by W. R. K. Douglas, Esq. and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Grand Master and Patron of the Order of Free Masons in Scotland.

The dutiful and loyal Address of the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

WE, the Office-Bearers and Brethren of the Grand Lodge of Free Masons in Scotland, humbly beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, to express our deep concern at the late wicked and treasonable attack, committed by some desperate individuals, amidst the tumults and disorders of a misguided populace, upon the sacred person of your Royal Highness, when returning from the exercise of one of the most important functions of the high authority with which your Royal Highness is invested, and so inseparably connected with the liberty, welfare, and happiness of every class of his Majesty's subjects.

It is written in the Institute of our Order, that we shall not, at our meetings, enter into religious or political discussions; upon the present alarming occasion, however, we feel ourselves justified in humbly presenting ourselves to the notice of your Royal Highness, and joining our voice to that of our fellow subjects, in renewing the assurances of our fervent and unalterable attachment to your Royal Highness, and to your illustrious House, and of our firm adherence to our present constitution, under which our country has flourished through so many ages, in the fullest possession of civil and religious liberty.

Signed and sealed in our name, and by our appointment, in Grand Lodge assembled, this 3d day of February, in the year of our Lord 1817.

JOHN MARJORIBANKS, Acting Grand Master.

[Transmitted by Sir John Marjoribanks, Bart. Acting Grand Master, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The loyal and dutiful Address of the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and others, Heritors of the Shire of Ross, assembled in a General Meeting of their number.

May it please your Royal Highness,

IMPRESSED with the strongest feelings of loyalty to his Majesty, and sincere attachment to the illustrious house of Brunswick, and feeling with gratitude the exertions which have been made since your Royal Highness assumed the reigns of government, to put an end to the mischievous system thereof which prevailed in a neighbouring nation, threatening the overthrow of all well regulated states, and which, by the steadiness and vigour of your councils, and the prowess of his Majesty's fleets and armies, joined to those of his high allies, has restored to us and to the nations of the Continent of Europe the blessings of security and peace, at the same time that they have raised this empire to an unrivalled pitch of greatness.

We have heard with astonishment and surprise, that a treasonable and most foul attack was made on your Royal Highness, by an unprincipled and ferocious mob, when returning from exercising one of the most important duties of your high and exalted situation, in opening the session of the Parliament of the United Empire; and we beg leave humbly and heartily to congratulate your Royal Highness on the providential escape which you then made.

We do not forget that your august father and our beloved Sovereign, who has always and still does reign in the hearts of his subjects, was some years ago assailed on a similar occasion, and in the same way, by a jacobinical mob, set on by some unprincipled demagogues, who, as now, under a false pretence of reform, were labouring to subvert our excellent constitution, and to bring about a revolution in the government; in hopes thereby to raise themselves from insignificance to power.

By the vigour of his Majesty's councils and the wisdom of Parliament these hopes were crushed. We feel the fullest confidence that the present attempt to delude the lower orders of the people, (while they are suffering under the pressure of distress, occasioned by causes sufficiently obvious to the thinking and reflecting part of the community, and which, we are confident, will be soon alleviated by the wisdom of Parliament and the exertions of government, under the sanction of your Royal Highness's authority), may be so far explained as to open their eyes to the delusions that are daily practised on them, by the detestable arts of factious and designing men.

We do earnestly pray that the Divine favour and protection may be continued to shield your Royal Highness from such base and atrocious attempts, and that you may be long preserved to watch over the interests, and to enjoy the affection and confidence of a great, free, and loyal people.

Signed in our name, and by our authority, at Dingwall, the 26th day of February 1817, by Sir Hector Mackenzie, Bart. Lieutenant-General of the Shire of Ross, our Preses.

HECTOR MACKENZIE.

[Transmitted by Charles Fraser, Esq. and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

Unto his Royal Highness George Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The loyal and dutiful Address of the Ministers and Elders of the Presbytery of Edinburgh, assembled on the 26th day of February 1817.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Ministers and Elders of the Presbytery of Edinburgh, beg leave to approach the throne, for the purpose of expressing our abhorrence of the attack lately made on the person of your Royal Highness, and of presenting our heartfelt congratulations on your Royal Highness's providential escape.

While our dutiful attachment to your Royal Highness makes us regard with horror the personal danger to which you were exposed, we are also deeply impressed with the consideration, that the particular time chosen for the violence which was offered to your Royal Highness, strongly marks it as an outrage against that constitution of government, over the functions of which your Royal Highness has been called to preside: in this view, the infatuation of its authors is no less conspicuous than their wickedness. After the native energy of our country had, under the direction of your Royal Highness's government, wrought out our deliverance from dangers of incalculable magnitude, and while we looked also with confidence to our national counsels, under the auspices of your Royal Highness, for a remedy against immediate and temporary distress, we could not have believed it possible that there should be found among us men so miserably deluded, as to be willing, by a treasonable attempt against your Royal Highness, to blast, if they could, their country's hopes, and expose it to an immediate hazard of revolution and anarchy.

We have, notwithstanding, much consolation arising from a well-grounded assurance, that the great body of the people of these realms have a just sense of their inestimable privileges, and of those blessings, in particular, which they derive from a mild and equitable administration of the powers of government committed to your Royal Highness. We know that the people among whom we labour in word and doctrine are devoted to their gracious Sovereign, to your Royal Highness, and to your illustrious House; and while, in common with our fellow subjects throughout the empire, we give thanks to God for his protection of your Royal Highness against the assaults of desperate and infatuated men, we trust that his Providence will, in this case, bring good out of evil—that the horror and indignation which the treason of a few has excited in the hearts of a loyal people, will prove an additional security to your Royal Highness against whatever might hereafter endanger either your person or government.

That Almighty God, the father of our Lord Jesus Christ, may direct and prosper the government as administered by your Royal Highness—that he may long preserve your Royal Highness as a blessing to the country, and that the descendants of your illustrious House, steadily maintaining the civil and religious rights of a free people, may sway the British sceptre to the latest posterity, are the fervent prayer of,

May it please your Royal Highness, his Majesty's most loyal, most faithful, and most obedient subjects, the Ministers and Elders of the Presbytery of Edinburgh.

Signed in our name, in our presence, and at our appointment, by JOHN SOMERVILLE, Moderator.

[Transmitted by the Rev. John Somerville, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

WE, the Commissioners of Supply, Justices of Peace, and Heritors of the County of Wigtown, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness with sentiments of the greatest veneration and respect, and to offer our most sincere congratulations on your Royal Highness's providential escape from the traitorous attempt on your invaluable life, in returning from opening the present session of Parliament.

We want words to express the horror and indignation which we feel at this atrocious and daring outrage, at a moment when your Royal Highness, in fulfilling your duty, discharged one of the most important and sacred functions of the crown.

We behold with heartfelt satisfaction the decided measures in progress, and trust the vigour of his Majesty's government, aided by the wisdom of Parliament, will speedily and effectually succeed in suppressing the wild and extravagant delusions which appear to have agitated the minds of a portion of the lower orders of the people in the metropolis and some other districts of the kingdom, and thereby prevent the machinations of desperate and unprincipled men, disturbing the peace of our happy country.

We avail ourselves of this opportunity to assure your Royal Highness of our firm and unalterable attachment to our venerable and most gracious Sovereign, his person and government; to your Royal Highness, and to every branch of the illustrious house of Brunswick, and to declare our fixed determination to defend and support to our utmost ability the glorious and enviable constitution under which we live, and to transmit it inviolate and unimpaired to posterity.

Signed in name, in presence, and by appointment of the meeting, at Wigtown, the 1st day of March 1817.

WILLIAM MAXWELL, Bart. and Preses.
