

of his Majesty, was pleased to give the Royal assent to

An act for applying certain moneys therein mentioned, for the service of the year 1819, and for further appropriating the supplies granted in this session of Parliament.

An act to amend and render more effectual an act, passed in the last session of Parliament, for building, and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes.

An act to repeal two-acts, made in the 54th and 55th years of the reign of his present Majesty, for maintaining and keeping in repair certain roads and bridges in Scotland, to provide more effectually for that purpose, and for regulation of ferries in Scotland.

And to several English road, &c. acts, and two private bills.

After which His Royal Highness delivered the following most gracious speech to both Houses of Parliament:

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

It is with great regret that I am again obliged to announce to you the continuance of his Majesty's lamented indisposition.

I cannot close this session of Parliament without expressing the satisfaction that I have derived from the zeal and assiduity with which you have applied yourselves to the several important objects which have come under your consideration.

Your patient and laborious investigation of the state of the circulation and currency of the kingdom demands my warmest acknowledgments; and I entertain a confident expectation that the measures adopted, as the result of this inquiry, will be productive of the most beneficial consequences.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

I thank you for the supplies which you have granted for the service of the present year.

I sincerely regret that the necessity should have existed any addition to the burdens of the people; but I anticipate the most important permanent advantages from the effort which you have thus made for meeting at once all the financial difficulties of the country; and I derive much satisfaction from the belief that the means which you have devised for this purpose are calculated to press as lightly on all classes of the community as could be expected when so great an effort was to be made.

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

I continue to receive from Foreign Powers the strongest assurances of their friendly disposition towards this country.

I have observed with great concern the attempts which have recently been made in some of the manufacturing districts, to take advantage of circumstances of local distress, to excite a spirit of dissatisfaction to the institutions and government of the country. No object can be nearer my heart than to promote the welfare and prosperity of all classes of his Majesty's subjects; but this cannot be effected without the maintenance of public order and tranquillity.

You may rely, therefore, upon my firm determination to employ for this purpose the powers intrusted to me by law: and I have no doubt that, on your return to your several counties, you will use your utmost endeavours, in co-operation with the Magistracy, to defeat the machinations of those whose projects, if successful, could only aggravate the evils which it is professed to remedy; and who, under the pretence of reform, have really no other object but the subversion of our happy Constitution.

Then the Lord Chancellor, by the Prince Regent's command, said;

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

It is the will and pleasure of his Royal Highness the Prince Regent, acting in the name and on behalf of his Majesty, that this Parliament be prorogued to Tuesday the 24th day of August next, to be then here holden; and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Tuesday the 24th day of August next.
