

Majesty on the evident return in the minds of the people to sounder principle and better feeling, and even a sense of the grievous delusions under which they had laboured; and deploring the infatuation of those who have endeavoured so nefariously to create disrespect for the constituted authorities of the land, we solemnly pledge ourselves to your Majesty that we will exert, with zeal and diligence, all the means in our power to counteract the progress of those principles of infidelity and irreligion which tend to incite to the perpetration of the most atrocious crimes amidst confusion and every evil work, and which indeed are so intimately connected with disloyalty, insubordination, and licentiousness in all their forms; we will earnestly strive to cherish and maintain, among the people under our pastoral charge, a due spirit of veneration and love for that system of religion and government, of whose inestimable advantages we had so long, not only the personal but the recorded experience, which has been matured by the wisdom of ages, and which challenges the admiration of the world.

We could not fail to contemplate with much interest, those occurrences on the Continent which lately threatened the peace of Europe; it is fortunate for this Island that no intention exists on the part of its sovereign to interpose in the dissensions of foreign states, except in cases of urgent necessity; as servants of the prince of peace, we trust that the same pacific maxims will ever actuate the executive councils of the nation.

Remembering with the liveliest sentiments of gratitude the paternal regard to the national establishment, of which we are members, uniformly evinced by your Majesty's illustrious predecessor, who during a long and eventful life, approved himself a patriot-king and a true Christian, the father of his people, and the great pillar of the constitution in Church and State; we feel it truly gratifying to see your Majesty, in the exercise of your high constitutional functions, following the example of a sovereign, whose memory will never be recalled without admiration and delight, while the noblest qualities of human nature are esteemed and respected amongst men. Under the government of a monarch animated by the same paternal feelings, and ruling by principles so truly laudable and patriotic as those of your Majesty, we fondly anticipate the perpetuity of the honour, the glory; and the prosperity of the British empire; we are inspired with the firmest confidence in the permanent security of our rights and liberties, sacred and civil; we trust in the strength of the Most High, that no event will occur to endanger the existence or privileges of that Church which was established by the zeal, energy, and blood of our fathers, and which we hope will, under God, continue to form the consolation and blessing of future generations in this land through many succeeding ages.

That Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, may bless your Majesty, direct your councils, and establish your throne in righteousness and peace; that your Majesty may be the instrument of Divine Providence to maintain inviolate our glorious and happy constitution of government; that after a long and prosperous reign over a free, loyal, and a happy people, your Majesty may be exalted to a crown that endureth for ever; and that the descendants of your illustrious house, which has so long been the ornament and blessing of these kingdoms, may continue to sway the British sceptre till the latest posterity, are the sincere and fervent prayers of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most faithful, most loyal, and most obedient subjects, the Ministers and Elders of this National Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

Signed in our name, in our presence, and at our appointment, by

DUNCAN MEARNS, Moderator.
