PUBLIC FUNERAL OF THE LATE FIELD-MARSHAL ARTHUR, DUKE OF WELLINGTON, K.G.

College of Arms, 4th December 1852.

THE QUEEN having been pleased to declare Her Royal will and pleasure that the Interment of the late Field-Marshal Arthur, Duke of Wellington, K.G., should be solemnized in the Cathedral Church of St Paul with all the honour due to his eminent public services and transcendent merits, the EARL MARSHAL received the Royal Command for the purpose of carrying into effect Her Majesty's pleasure accordingly.

The Military Arrangements were under the immediate direction of Viscount Hardinge, G.C.B., the General Commanding-in-Chief.

On Wednesday evening, the 10th November, at seven o'clock, the remains of the late illustrious deceased were privately removed from Walmer Castle, in a Hearse drawn by four horses, attended by an escort of the Rifle Brigade, and followed by three Mourning Coaches, each drawn by four horses, in the first of which were the Marquess Douro (now Duke of Wellington), Lord Arthur Hay, and the Captain of Walmer Castle (John J. Watts, Esq.); in the second, Thomas Charles March, Esq. Chief-Clerk of the Department of the Lord Chamberlain of Her Majesty's Household; and in the third, Mr Kendall and Mr Collins, servants of the deceased: Minute Guns were fired from the ramparts of Walmer Castle whilst the Procession moved from thence to the Station at Deal. From the Station the Body, attended by the Marquess Douro and the other persons who had followed in the Mourning Coaches, was conveyed by Special Train to London, arriving there at twelve o'clock; and thence, being followed as before, the Body was conveyed under an escort of Life Guards to Chelsea Hospital, where, about three o'clock in the morning of Thursday the 11th, it was received by Norman Hilton Macdonald, Esq., Comptroller of the Lord Chamberlain's Department, and by a Guard of Honour of the 2d Battalion of Grenadier Guards, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel the Honourable James Lindsay; and a similar Guard of Honour, furnished by the brigade of Foot Guards, mounted daily, until the Remains were removed.

The Remains lay in State in the Great Hall of the Royal Hospital at Chelsea; the arrangements being under the direction of the Lord Chamberlain.

The Octangular Vestibule, leading to the Great Hall, was hung with Black Cloth in the form of a Tent, and illumined by a Chandelier of eighteen lights, suspended from the Ceiling. On the side opposite the entrance was a Trophy of thirty Flags, from the Hall of the Hospital, and grouped around the Royal Arms, the whole being surmounted by the Royal Standard of England. On the other side of the Vestibule were Escocheons of the deceased.

The Walls of the Hall were hung with Black Cloth, decorated with the Armorial Escocheons of the deceased, and the Ceiling draped with the same material, to represent a Tent. The width of the Hall was divided into five parts by four rows of colossal Candelabra, and at the upper or western end was a Dais, reaching across the whole width, having on it twelve Candelabra of four lights each, and ten Columns composed of Spears, covered with Black Velvet, powdered with Laurel Wreaths and Escocheons. The Coffin, covered with Crimson Velvet, was raised upon a Bier on which was a Black Velvet Pall garnished with Escocheons, and at its foot were suspended the Insignia of the numerous Orders of Knighthood conferred upon the illustrious deceased. Upon Pedestals projecting from the Rail surrounding the Bier, were arranged upon Black Velvet Cushions, the British and Foreign Field-Marshal's Batons of the late Duke, surmounted by the respective National Flags; and upon others, at the head of the Coffin, were placed the Great Banner, and the Banner of Wellesley; the Guidon, the Standard, and the Bannerols of the lineage of the deceased were ranged on either side the Bier, and the Majesty Escocheon (upon a Cloth of Gold), was suspended from the Wall at the head of the Coffin. In front of the Dais was a trophy of the Surcoat, Sword and Targe, Helm and Crest, and the Spurs of the deceased. Over the Bier was a Canopy of Black Velvet (lined with Silver Tissue and enriched with Silvered Cornice and Vallance, Escocheons, Pennons, and Plumes), from which depended four Curtains, also of Black Velvet (similarly lined), edged with Silver Lace.

On the afternoon of the 11th November, the following officers of the Grenadier Guards, viz.— Colonel Godfrey Thornton (commanding Grenadier Guards), Lieutenant-Colonel Hon. James Lindsay, Major Studholme Brownrigg, and Captain Cuthbert George Ellison, with 100 rank and file of the First Battalion, attended at the Hall of the Royal Hospital. The Officers of the Guard, and of the Lord Chamberlain's Department, were seated as Mourners about the Coffin, and 50 men lined either side of the Hall, resting on their Arms reversed, both Officers and men remaining till the Hall was cleared.

On Friday, November 12, were admitted to the Hall, by tickets from the Lord Chamberlain, the Foreign Ambassadors and Ministers, Peers and Peeresses, Members of Parliament, Officers of the Army and Navy, and such other persons as the Lord Chamberlain deemed entitled to the privilege.

On Saturday, November 13, and from Monday, November 15, to Wednesday, November 17, the Public were admitted, without restriction, from nine o'clock in the morning until four o'clock on the afternoon of each day.

On each day of the public admission a detachment from one or other of the Battalions of Foot Guards in London attended to perform a like duty to that of the Grenadier Guards on the 11th, the Officers in command of each detachment, and the Comptroller of the Lord Chamberlain's Department, being seated alternately at the head of the Coffin, whilst other Officers of the Guard, with those of the Lord Chamberlain, sat on either side, being relieved every two hours; Warders of the Tower were stationed on the Dais, during the whole time of the Lying-in-State.

A Captain's Guard of the 1st Regiment of Life Guards was mounted daily at the Hospital during the Lying-in-State, and twenty troopers of the same lined the Vestibule leading to the Hall, being relieved every hour.

The Artillery and Cavalry marched through the line of Infantry, and moved by the south side of St Paul's to their respective posts.

The Foreign Batons were held and supported during the Ceremony by the distinguished persons before named, who, with the Marquess of Anglesey and the Officers representing the Army of Brunswick, occupied seats at the foot of the Coffin.

The Body being placed on a Bier, and the Pall removed, the Hat and Sword were taken from the Coffin, and the Coronet and Cushion placed thereon, as also the deceased's Baton as Field-Marshal of the British Army.

The Choir then chanted the 39th Psalm, "Diri Custodiam," and the 90th Psalm, "Domine Refugium," (the music of the two Psalms composed by the Earl of Mornington), immediately after which an Anthem was sung (the music by Mr John Goss, Organist of Saint Paul's); the Dean, Dr. Milman, then read the Lesson, after which "Nunc Dimittis" (the music by Beethoven) was chanted, followed by a Dirge, accompanied by Trumpets (the music also by Mr Goss).

The Dirge being concluded, the Body was lowered into the Vault, amid the solemn strains of the Dead March, after which the Choir sang "Man that is born of a woman," and other sentences (music by Croft and Purcell).

After the committal, the whole choir sang the sentence "I heard a voice from Heaven," (music by Croft); the remainder of the Service followed; and at the conclusion of the Collect was sung the Anthem "His body is buried in peace" (from Handel's Funeral Anthem), and the Burial-Service being ended, Garter advanced from his place at the foot of the coffin, and proclaimed the Style of the deceased, as follows:—

The Hymn, "Sleepers awake," (the music by Mendelssohn), was then sung, and upon its conclusion, the Lord Bishop of London pronounced the Blessing; after which, upon a signal given, the Guns at the Tower fired, and the Trumpets sounded a wail at the Western Entrance of the Cathedral, which concluded the Ceremony.

Mr Goss presided at the Organ, and Mr Turle, Organist of Westminster Abbey, led the Choir.

Knights of the several Orders wore their Collars.

The Queen's royal will and pleasure for the Public Interment of the Duke of Wellington having, by Her Majesty's command, been communicated to Parliament, it was determined by both Houses that they would attend the Solemnity in the Cathedral, the House of Lords being represented in the Procession by the Lord Chancellor, and the House of Commons by their Speaker; the Members of both Houses accordingly repaired to St Paul's by eleven o'clock, where galleries had been provided for their reception in the Centre Area, one on the south side for the Peers (where also the eldest sons of Peers were provided with seats in the back row,) and one on the north side for the House of Commons.

A gallery immediately in front of the Choir was erected for the Peeresses who had signified their wish to witness the Solemnity, each accompanied by a lady; where also were seated the wives of the Cabinet Ministers present, as also the Lady Mayoress. In front of the Peeresses' gallery sat Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cambridge, and Her Royal Highness the Princess Mary Adelaide, attended by Baron Knesebeck and the Suite of Her Royal Highness.

 His Serene Highness the Prince of Hohenlohe Langenburg, G.C.B.
 Prince Hermann of Hohenlohe Langenburg.

The extensive military arrangements in honour of the illustrious deceased, as Field-Marshal and Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's Forces, having rendered it absolutely necessary to abridge the civil part of the Ceremonial, by restricting it to Deputations from those Public Bodies only, which were immediately connected with the deceased, and to a representation only of the classes composing the Procession, seats were provided in the Area for such other persons of those classes who had signified their desire to be present, though not taking part in the Procession; viz:—

Privy Councillors, under the degree of the Peerage, the Vice-Chancellors, the Justices of both Benches, the Barons of the Exchequer, Knights Grand Cross, Knights Commanders and Companions of the Bath, and the Law Officers of the Crown, with such Members of the Deputations from Public Bodies as were not in the Procession.
