TUESDAY, APRIL 17, 1855.

WAR-DEPARTMENT, April 14, 1855.

LORD PANMURE has this day received a Despatch and its Enclosures, of which the following are Copies, addressed to His Lordship by Field-Marshal the Lord Raglan, G.C.B.

Before Sevastopol,

MY LORD,

March 31, 1855.

SINCE I wrote to your Lordship on the 27th instant, the operations of the siege have been continued without any material interruption from the enemy, beyond occasional shots from guns and mortars, and the more constant firing of musketry from rifle-pits, which have occasioned, I regret to say, the Casualties which your Lordship will see in the Returns I enclose.

Captain A. E. Hill of the 89th Regiment, whom I mentioned in my Despatch, No. 222, as having been severely wounded and taken prisoner, died, I regret to say, of his wounds, before he reached the Russian ambulance, as I learnt last night from General Osten-Sacken, to whom I had written for information on the subject.

He had gone forward with a view to place the sentries in front of our advanced works, as I stated to your Lordship on Tuesday, and he unfortunately mistook a Russian for a French picquet, and having challenged it in French, he was immediatly fired upon, and brought to the ground.

Early yesterday morning a fire was observed in the town of Sevastopol, which raged with violence for a considerable time, but how it originated I have not been able to ascertain.

The enemy has made no movement on the side of the Tchernaya.

The railway continues to progress in the most satisfactory manner, and last night had nearly reached the top of the hill, usually called the Col de Balaklava, and advantage has been taken of it to bring up large quantities of ammunition and stores.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

The Lord Panmure, &c., &c.
