

I also feel it my duty to solicit your Lordship's notice to the eminent services of Lieutenant-Colonel Tylden, of the Royal Engineers; he has been indefatigable in the discharge of his peculiar duties from the commencement of the siege, and he has always been at hand to aid in the repulse of the enemy when they have assaulted our trenches. He eulogizes the conduct of Captain Browne, of the Royal Engineers, Lieutenant Elphinstone, of the same corps, Lieutenant Anderson, 96th Foot, (Acting Engineer), who is wounded; and he laments the death of Lieutenant Lowry, R.E., who conducted the storming party, and was afterwards killed by a cannon shot.

Notwithstanding the frequency of the endeavours of the Russians to regain possession of the Quarries, and the interruptions to the work to which these attacks gave rise, Lieutenant-Colonel Tylden was enabled to effect a lodgement and to establish the communication with the advanced parallel, and this redounds greatly to his credit and that of the Officers and men employed as the working party; and I cannot omit this opportunity to express my approbation of the conduct of the Sappers throughout the operations. The exertions of the Royal Artillery under Brigadier-General Dacres, and those of the Naval Brigade, under Captain Lushington, R.N., in serving the guns, cannot be too warmly commended. The accuracy of their fire is the theme of universal admiration; and the constancy with which they applied themselves to their arduous duties under all circumstances, however dangerous, cannot be too strongly placed upon record.

It is deeply to be lamented that this success should have entailed so heavy a loss, as is shewn in the accompanying Returns, which however are still incomplete; but I have the assurance of the principal Medical Officer that many of the wounds are slight, and that by far the greater portion of the sufferers are progressing most favourably.

I have just learnt that the enemy have abandoned a work in the rear of the "Ouvrages Blancs," which they constructed at the commencement of the month of May. The French took possession of it on the 7th, but did not retain it. In the other works they captured 62 pieces of artillery, and they have 14 officers and about 400 men prisoners.

We have a few prisoners, and amongst them a Captain of Infantry, who was wounded, and taken by Corporal Quinn, of the 47th.

I have, &c.,

RAGLAN.

The Lord Panmure, &c., &c., &c.

Enclosure 1.

Nominal Return of Officers who have been Killed, from the 4th to the 7th June 1855, inclusive.

KILLED.

6th June 1855.

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Captain G. Dawson

7th June 1855.

ROYAL ENGINEERS.

Lieutenant T. G. Lowry

2D BATTALION, 1ST ROYALS.

Captain B. H. E. Muller

34TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Lieutenant H. M. Lawrence

55TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Lieutenant Richard J. T. Stone

62D REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Major W. F. Dickson
Captain J. B. Forster

68TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Lieutenant James Marshall

88TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Brevet-Major Edward Bayley
Captain Edmund Corbett
Jackson Wray
Lieutenant E. H. Webb
J. B. BUCKNALL ESTCOURT,
Adjutant-General.

Enclosure 2.

Nominal Return of Officers who have been Wounded, from the 4th to the 7th June 1855, inclusive.

WOUNDED.

4th June 1855.

17TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Lieutenant J. B. H. Boyd, slightly

48TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Lieutenant F. C. Trent, slightly

6th June 1855.

3D REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Lieutenant H. A. A. Breedon, slightly

ROYAL ARTILLERY.
Captain Mortimer Adye, severely
A. Gordon, slightly

ROYAL ENGINEERS.
Lieutenant C. G. Gordon, slightly

7th June 1855.

3D REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Captain G. J. Ambrose, severely

7TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Major Frederick Mills, slightly
Captain W. W. Turner, slightly
Lieutenant H. M. Jones, slightly
L. J. F. Jones, slightly
G. H. Waller, slightly

19TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Lieutenant E. W. Evans, severely

20TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Lieut. and Adjutant F. Padfield, severely

30TH REGIMENT OF FOOT.
Captain M. Pennefather, severely

