FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1855.

ADMIRALTY, September 10, 1855.

DESPATCHES, of which the following are Copies, have been received from Rear-Admiral Bruce, Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's Ships and Vessels on the Pacific Station :

No. 44. President, at Petropaulovski, June 15, 1855.

I HAVE to report, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that arriving off this port on the 30th May I found the place completely evacuated ; not a ship, gun, or person to be seen ; nothing but empty embrasures and deserted houses.

2. I entered the inner harbour on the following day in the Barracouta, accompanied by Captain Penanros, of the French frigate Alceste, when we found three Americans (the only residents left), from whom we learned that the Russian ships named in the margin* were cut through the ice, and took their departure on the 17th (5th) April with all the guns and munitions of war, and all the soldiers and government employés, 800 in number ; but of their destination we could obtain no clue.

3. I reached the rendezvous, lat. 50° N., long. 160° E., in my flag-ship, on the 14th May, and the Dido and Pique arrived the same day ; the Encounter and Barracouta had been there since the 14th April. Great credit is due to Captain O'Callaghan and Commander Stirling for the zealous exertion by which they effected this object ; and their Lordships will remark the promptitude with which they were despatched by Rear-Admiral Sir James Stirling.

4. The French frigate Alceste, and the Brisk, were in the vicinity of the rendezvous at the same time ; but the prevalence of thick fogs and adverse weather prevented my seeing the Bay of Acotska before the 20th ult., when six of the ships being together, I trusted to the prompt appearance of the seventh, and accordingly proceeded to the port in tow of the Barracouta, followed by the Alceste, in tow of the Brisk. The Dido, Pique, and Encounter arrived the same evening.

5. Commander Stirling, of Her Majesty's steam-sloop Barracouta, while separated from the squadron, having, during a break in the fog, looked into the anchorage to see if it was there, took, with much judgment, that opportunity of reconnoitring the harbour ; and I was informed by him of the ships being no longer in it.

6. The Amphitrite, from Honolulu, having met me on the 11th instant, while I was in the act of following the Russian ships into the Sea of Ochotsk, and given me such information as to convince me that a combined English and French force was already there, instead of proceeding I despatched Her Majesty's ships Pique and Barracouta on the 13th, and Amphitrite on the 14th, to reinforce the squadron of Sir James Stirling at the mouth of the Amour. The Encounter sailed on the 12th for Sir James Stirling's rendezvous at Haksdadi, in the Strait of Maksmai, to inform His Excellency of the movements of the other ships, in case he should not have left there ; the Amphitrite will rejoin my flag off Sitka so soon as Captain Frederick finds her services are not required in the Sea of Ochotsk.

8. Resuming the subject of Petropaulovski, I would observe that the enemy must have worked in an indefatigable manner after the departure of the allied squadron last year, as we found 9 batteries for 54 guns had been constructed with much skill and labour, by means of fascines strongly bound together, 25 feet thick, staked and filled in with earth, and some of them ditched round, with covered ways leading from one to the other, and trees planted in the rear. Every possible preparation had been made to receive us prior to the orders arriving from St Petersburg to evacuate the place.

9. I caused the batteries to be destroyed, but having met with no opposition on approaching Petropaulovski, I considered it a point of honour to respect the town.

10. I found hidden in the Rakovia Harbour a fine Russian whaler, of 400 tons, called the Aian, built at Abo in 1853. She would have sailed from here three weeks since for Aian, with the family of the Governor of the place ; and, among other articles of cargo, an engine for a small steamer said to be there, but the opportune arrival of some of the squadron off the port prevented her departure. As I found her deserted, and her sails, boat, and anchors are not to be found, she will be destroyed.

11. I am disappointed in not having succeeded in opening a communication with the inhabitants who have fled from the town ; for I hoped, to obtain the release of the two English prisoners they have among them; I learn, however, from the Americans, that they were very well treated.

12. In conclusion, I desire to add that although it has necessarily been a great disappointment to the squadron under my command to find upon arrival at this place, more than 2,000 miles outside their station, that the enemy had escaped, and the batteries were deserted, yet their Lordships will not fail to observe that not the less credit is due for the great zeal and anxiety that has been shown by each of the ships in pushing onward, in the hope of being in time to take part in the anticipated operations at this port.

13. The best understanding subsisted between Captain Penaros of the Alceste, and me, and I cannot say too much in favour of the zeal and activity he displayed to meet every wish of mine, and to keep the appointed rendezvous; the same continues with respect to Rear-Admiral Fourichon.

I am, &c.,

H. W. BRUCE,
Rear-Admiral and Commander-in-Chief.

The Secretary of the Admiralty.

No. 54.
SIR,

President, of Sitka,
July 17, 1855.

I REQUEST you will inform the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty that before leaving Petropaulovski I succeeded in opening a communication with Captain Martinhoff, the temporary Governor of that place, who had retired into the interior, having for its object the release of two prisoners taken last year, as reported in my general letter of the 15th ultimo, No. 44.

Having forwarded a safe conduct to Captain Martinhoff, through the kind offices of an American resident in Petropaulovski, that officer sent 150 versts inland for them, and on their arrival, on the 25th ultimo, delivered them up to Captain Houston, of Her Majesty's ship Trincomalee, and three Russians that had been detained on board the French brig Obligado since last year, were given in exchange.

The two men proved to be William Garland, ordinary seaman, of Her Majesty's ship Pique, and Pierre Langois, of the French frigate Forte. The latter will be handed over to the Forte on my arrival at San Francisco, and the former will, at his own request, be appointed to the Brisk, his proper ship having sailed for the China Station. Both appear to have been treated with much kindness during the time they have been in the hands of the enemy.

I have, &c.,

H. W. BRUCE.

The Secretary of the Admiralty.

WAR-DEPARTMENT, September 12, 1855.

LORD PANMURE has this day received a Despatch and its Enclosures, of which the following are Copies, addressed to his Lordship by General Simpson:—

MY LORD,

Before Sevastopol,

September 1, 1855.

THE siege operations during the past week have progressed slowly, the brightness of the nights rendering the work to be performed a task of great difficulty. The head of the sap is now about 150 yards from the salient of the Redan, and the enemy interrupt the work by every means in their power.

On the night of the 28th a 13-inch shell fell into a magazine on the left face of the Mamelon, which exploded, causing some few casualties, but in no way interrupting the continuance of the fire.

On the night of the 30th ultimo, the Russian pickets made a rush at our advanced trench, upset a few gabions, and unfortunately killed Lieutenant Preston, of the 97th Regiment. In this affair Captain Pechell, of the 77th Regiment, who commanded the advanced party, and Lieutenant-Colonel Bunbury, of the 23d Regiment, who commanded the supports, behaved with great gallantry.

Great activity prevails on the part of the garrison in making use of the new raft bridge across the harbour, and stores of all kinds are daily transported to the north side.

Large working parties are employed in throwing up works on the north side, but as yet they are in too unfinished a state to judge of their exact nature.

From the information we continue to receive, it appears that the enemy is concentrating his force between the Mackenzie Heights and Fort Constantine; and although several minor changes of position have been made, no movement of importance has occurred to indicate a positive intention to attack.

All our accounts confirm the reports of the great losses of the enemy daily in Sevastopol, and that some discontent prevails in their ranks.

I have the honour to enclose the Lists of Casualties.

I have, &c.,

JAMES SIMPSON,
General Commanding.

The Lord Panmure, &c., &c., &c.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

Buoys on Stellwagen's Bank, entrance to Massachusetts Bay.

THE following buoys have been placed on Stellwagen's Bank, at the entrance to Massachusetts Bay, to mark the approaches to Boston Harbour ; viz :—

A first class can buoy, painted red, in about 11 fathoms water, N.W. by N.  $\frac{1}{4}$  N. (true), six miles from Race Point Light-house, and E.S.E. (true),  $28\frac{1}{4}$  miles from Boston Light-house.

A second class nun buoy, painted with white and black perpendicular stripes, in about 15 fathoms water, E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  S. (true),  $26\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Boston Light-house.

A first class can buoy, painted black, in about fifteen fathoms water, E. by N. (true),  $21\frac{3}{4}$  miles from Boston Light-house.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

BUOYS.

Newburyport Harbour, Mass.

A NUN BUOY, of the third class, painted black and white perpendicular stripes, has been placed in five fathoms water, at low tide, off Newburyport Bar, the west light bearing W. by S., distant 2,267 yards. Vessels bound in over the bar should bring this buoy in range with the west light, and run for it. This course will carry them over in seven feet at low water.

The eastern light has been extinguished, and in its stead a small bug light has been lighted. In running in at night the bug light and the western light must be brought in range.

When over the bar, and half way to the shore, there will be found a spar buoy, painted black, to be left on the port hand. Then the course is N. W.  $\frac{3}{4}$  W., up past a buoy in mid-channel, painted black and white perpendicular stripes, to the red buoy on Black Rocks, when it is W.  $\frac{3}{4}$  S., passing a buoy off Joppa Flats, painted black, (to be left on the port hand) and a red buoy on Joe Noyes Point (to be left on the star-board hand), to the upper mid-channel buoy, painted black and white perpendicular stripes, thence between the two piers up to the anchorage. These piers are near the city.

By order of the Light-house Board.
