FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1855.

WAR-DEPARTMENT, September 19, 1855.

LORD PANMURE has this day received a Despatch (of which the following are extracts), and the subjoined Returns of Casualties from the 31st ultimo to the 2d instant, addressed to his Lordship by General Simpson :—

Extract of a Despatch from General Simpson to Lord Panmure, dated before Sevastopol, September 4, 1855.

“ FROM the heavy fire maintained by the enemy on the head of our sap, the progress made has been slow, and accompanied, as must be expected, by several casualties amongst the sappers and working parties; and it is with great regret that I have to report the death, last night, of Captain Pechell, 77th Regiment, whose conduct I had occasion to bring before your Lordship’s notice in my Despatch of the 1st instant.

“ Within the last few days a second bridge has been commenced from the north shore to Karabelnaia, the object being evidently to expedite the removal of stores from the dockyard.

“ The continued reports we receive induce General Pelissier and myself to believe that the enemy still meditate an attack in force on our positions on the Tchernaya, to meet which the troops are kept in a continued state of readiness.

“ The 82d Regiment have arrived from Corfu, and have disembarked this day. I intend them to relieve the 13th Regiment at Balaklava, which has joined the 1st Division under Lord Rokeby.

“ The health of the troops is excellent.

“ I enclose the List of Casualties.”
