Pontailiac Light, River Gironde.

The French Government has given notice that on the 10th July 1856 a light, alternately red and white, (each colour lasting twenty seconds, without intervening eclipse,) was exhibited from the summit of a wooden tower erected on the high ground of Pontailiac, situated near the entrance and on the north bank of the River Gironde, on the west coast of France.

The tower is 104 feet high, and the light 177 feet above the level of water, and should be visible 15 miles in clear weather. It stands in latitude  $45^{\circ} 38' 10''$  N., longitude  $1^{\circ} 3' 42''$  W. of Greenwich.

The north channel leading into the Gironde is lighted already by three lights, exclusive of that of Cordouan; one on Point de la Coubre, the second on Point de la Falaise, and the third on the tower of Terre Nègre.

Sailing Directions.—In entering the Gironde by the north channel at night, bring the white fixed light of Terre Nègre on with the red and white light of Pontailiac, and keep them so until the Point de la Coubre Light bears N.N.E., then alter course immediately, and steer for the revolving light of Cordouan, until you have brought the lights on Point de la Falaise and Terre Nègre in one. Steer for and keep these lights in one until Cordouan Light bears S.S.W., after which alter course to S.E. by S.

[All courses and bearings are magnetic. Var.  $20^{\circ} 45'$  West.]
