Board of Trade, Whitehall,
November 18, 1856.

The Right Honourable the Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade and Plantations have received, through the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, a copy of the following Despatch addressed by Her Majesty's Consul at Bangkok to Her Majesty's Plenipotentiary in China, announcing the withdrawal of the prohibition to export rice from Siam.

British Consulate,
Bangkok, August 15, 1856.

SIR,
I HAVE the honour to report to your Excellency that His Majesty the First King has authorized me to state that the rice trade of Siam is now open, although the royal proclamation to this effect, already prepared, has not yet been issued.

In reply to my further inquiry His Majesty said that he could not guarantee for any definite period the absence of all restriction in the exportation of rice by foreigners; should there arise the necessity of recurring to a prohibitory edict, the month's notice conceded by treaty would be given to the Consul; at present there existed on the part of the Government no wish or intention to interfere; and His Majesty hoped that in future the rise of prices on the approach of scarcity would be found to afford all needful protection to his subjects, and to be in itself a sufficient security against an excessive export of food.
