BOARD OF TRADE, WHITEHALL GARDENS,

January 21, 1882.

Her Majesty the Queen has been graciously pleased to confer the 'Albert Medal' of the Second Class' on—

FREDERICK JAGGERS, Boatman, of South Shields Coast Guard Station.

The following is an account of the gallant services in respect of which the decoration has been conferred:—

The Norwegian schooner 'Atlantic' was wrecked off the South Pier, at South Shields, on the 14th October 1881, communication with the stranded vessel was speedily effected by means of the rocket apparatus, but as one of the crew was being hauled ashore, the whip—which is an endless line used for hauling to and from a stranded vessel—fouled the rocks. FREDERICK JAGGERS, Coast Guard Boatman, at the risk of his life, went into the surf with the view of clearing the line, but was washed off his feet by a heavy sea, and thrown against the rocks, which his head struck with such force as to render him insensible. He was then hauled out of the sea.

For this praiseworthy attempt the Board of Trade awarded F. JAGGERS their Bronze Medal for gallantry in attempting to save life at sea.

On the 26th November last (about six weeks after the wreck of the 'Atlantic') the ketch 'Ida,' of Ipswich, ran ashore near the Pier, at South Shields. Between the 'Ida' and the rocket apparatus was the wreck of a brig, which made communication by rocket difficult. JAGGERS volunteered to be hauled off to the brig, although cautioned of the danger attending such an enterprise, as it was feared her masts would fall, but he reached the brig safely, and from her fore rigging succeeded in throwing a line on board the 'Ida,' by means of which the crew were saved.
