

Brunswick, August 17. The French have evacuated Gottingen, after destroying the Works of that Place, and setting fire to the Powder Magazine, by the Explosion of which, 50 Saxons were killed, the Ramparts of the Town almost all blown up, and the Town itself considerably damaged.

As Prince Frederick of Brunswick was just at this Time in the Neighbourhood of Lünebeck with his Corps, upon his return from the Expedition it had made on the Werra, he immediately marched, on the Advice he had received from Gottingen; and it was thought he intended occupying the Town, till he could receive farther Orders from Prince Ferdinand.

Hamburg, August 17. The 14th Instant, the Danish Troops in the Duchy of Mecklenbourg Schwerin begun to evacuate that Country; and several Regiments have already repassed the Trave, and returned back into Holstein. The Danes are employed in selling their Magazines; and we hear that there is to be a Reduction made in that Army.

The Reigning Duke of Mecklenbourg Schwerin is returned from hence to his Residence of Schwerin; and the Dutchess his Consort will follow his Serene Highness in a few Days.

Hamburg, August 20. The Russians evacuated Colberg the 10th of this Month; and the Kingdom of Prussia on the 6th. The 16th there were not any Russian Troops to remain either in Prussia, or Pomerania.

Hague, August 20. We hear, that notwithstanding the Reports that the Trenches before Alameda had been opened on the 25th past, it does not appear, by the Letters from Madrid of the 2d Instant, that they had, on the 28th of July, received any certain Advice of that Operation.

Those Letters mention an Action, which does great Honour to His Britannick Majesty's Ship Fallas, which had attacked, in the Road of Cadix, two Spanish Chebecks, of 34 and 24 Guns, and obliged them, in Sight of the Town, to take Refuge under the Cannon of their Forts, with considerable Loss.

The Russians continuing to withdraw their Troops, Pomerania is already quite evacuated; and every Thing is conducted with great Order.

Hague, August 24. The French Army, under the Marshals Soubise and D'Estrees, abandoned the Banks of the Fulda the 17th at Night, and marched away by their Right, in the Space which lies between Spangenberg and Lichtenau. The Army under Prince Ferdinand followed them on the 18th, and encamped at Homberg, where his Serene Highness's Head Quarters were the 19th in the Morning. The Hereditary Prince is so posted, as to be able to join Prince Ferdinand: And the Prince of Condé has marched by his Right towards the Town of Fulda, with a view to cover the Retreat of the French Army. Munden is in the Hands of the Allies; and Cassel was summoned on the 18th by Prince Frederick of Brunswick. We are not yet informed, what Garrison has been left in that Town, about which the Accounts differ widely.

The King of Prussia defeated General Laudohn on the 16th at Langen-Bielau. That General had been detached by Marshal Daun to disturb the Siege of Schweidnitz, with a Body of 30 Battalions, and a large Corps of Cavalry. If the Austrians do not find Means to prevent it, it is expected the Town will be taken in a few Days, as the second Parallel was completed within less than 300 Paces of the Cassis.
