

Borough of Dunbeved otherwise Launceston in the County of Cornwall, in Common Council assembled, do from our Hearts congratulate your Majesty and your Royal Consort on the Birth of our Illustrious Prince, the Duke of Cornwall.

This Town, the first in the Dutchy distinguished by various Marks of your Royal Favour, ought not surely to be the last in tendering its most respectful Duty to the Throne, on so memorable an Event; the Source of future Happiness to Britain.

We promised ourselves indeed innumerable Blessings immediately on your Majesty's Accession. Many, how many, have we not already enjoyed? But than this can there be any greater, than that you may continue long to reign the fairest Pattern of conjugal Affection, and the brightest of Examples to his Royal Highness.

Given under our Common Seal, this Sixth Day of September, in the Second Year of your Majesty's happy Reign.

The following Address of the Burgesses of New Radnor, Rhayader, Knighton, Knucklafs, and Cefn'lyls, has been presented to His Majesty by Edward Lewis, Esq; their Representative in Parliament, being introduced by the Lord of His Majesty's Bed-Chamber in Waiting: Which Address His Majesty was pleased to receive very graciously.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty,

May every Felicity attend your Majesty and your Royal Consort; and may his Royal Highness the Prince, inheriting your Majesty's Virtues, and formed by your Example, like your Majesty, be a Blessing to your People.
