Bank of England, January 21, 1775.

Whereas some false and scandalous Paragraphs have appeared this Day in The Morning Post and Gazetteer, concerning the Forgery of Bank Notes, it is thought highly necessary, to prevent Imposition upon the Public, to state the Fact.

Some Posts ago, one Ten Pound Note arrived from Holland, which, upon first Sight, the Merchant it came to thought was a Forgery, and brought it to the Bank, but did not present it for Payment; since which some few more have appeared, all from the same Plate and same Value, the whole Amount being under Two Hundred Pounds. None have been paid at the Bank, nor can any Person conversant with Bank Notes be deceived by them.
