Vaughan had put the Whole in Motion, and at their Head advanced towards the Enemy's Citadel.

I could eafily perceive, on my approaching the Island, and viewing the Enemy's Works which they had erected upon the Mountain that commands Kingston Bay and that of Warrawarou, that the Whole appeared in perfect Repair, with a numerous and strong Garrison. However, such was the Spirit of General Vaughan, that he marched to the Foot of the Works (having dispersed every Impediment in his Way) and reconnoitred them in every Part, in Hopes to find fome Place vulnerable, where he might make the Attack with a Probability of Succels; but finding they were in every Part complete, I concurred with him in Opinion, that an Attack ought not to be hazarded with the Force which he commanded. The Troops therefore returned to the Beach, and were reimbarked, without the Enemy's daring to move from their Entrenchments.
