Kiow, February 12.

The Empress of Russia is safely arrived at this Place with her whole Suite, accompanied by the Imperial Ambassador and the English and French Ministers. Her Imperial Majesty is in perfect Health, and has not suffered in the least from Fatigue during her Journey; notwithstanding the Length of it, (near 1200 English Miles) and the Inclemency of the Season. The Carriages were fixed upon Sledges, the Motion of which over the beaten Snow was perfectly smooth and even. Her Majesty was every where extremely well lodged in Houses built on Purpose for her Accommodation; her Table was served with the same Regularity as at Peterbourg. Her Imperial Majesty was received here by Field Marshal Romanzow, Governor-General of this and the neighbouring Provinces; and the greatest Demonstrations of Joy and Duty were expressed by the Inhabitants of the several Places through which her Majesty passed.
