

May your Majesty live long in the Hearts of a People who enjoy the Felicity of Freedom and Happiness under your Majesty's auspicious Government; and may the Blessings which your Majesty and your Royal Consort's Care and Concern for their Welfare have diffused throughout the Kingdom, be delivered down by the Wisdom and Virtues of your Majesty's Posterity to the latest Ages.

By Order of the Meeting,

Griffith Evans, Sheriff.

[Delivered by Ewan Lloyd Vaughan, Esq; Representative in Parliament for that County.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Nobility, Gentry, Clergy and others in the County of Rutland, humbly beg Leave, amidst the general Joy of the Nation, to add our unfeigned Congratulations on your Majesty's happy Recovery from your late Indisposition, brought on, as we have but too much Reason to think, by your Majesty's having too studiously and anxiously attended to the Prosperity and Interests of your Subjects: This fortunate Event we anxiously wished and most ardently prayed for; and we feel the strongest Gratitude to the Almighty for His merciful Attention to the Supplications of a distressed People, and for the happy Prospect we have now before us of your Majesty's long Continuance to govern us with the same Mildness, Equity and Moderation, and the same Attention to the general Good of Mankind, which has hitherto so eminently distinguished your Majesty's Reign.

That these our Hopes may not be disappointed, and that your Majesty may long continue to reign with perfect Health and Happiness over a free and loyal People, is the devout Prayer of your affectionate and loyal Subjects of this County.

Signed by the unanimous Desire and on Behalf of the County, by me

William Belgrave, Sheriff.

[Delivered by the Earl of Winchelsea, Lord Lieutenant of that County.]

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, Heritors and other Gentlemen of the County of Caithness, beg Leave to approach the Throne with Sentiments of the utmost Loyalty and Affection. Sensible of the many Advantages that have resulted to the British Empire from your Majesty's mild and equal Administration: That our Laws and Liberties have been preserved inviolate: That our Commerce has flourished; and every elegant and useful Art found a liberal Protection under your fostering Hand; we could not but deplore that afflicting Calamity which for a Time suspended the Functions of Government, and deprived the Nation of your paternal Care.

And now, with Hearts full of Gratitude to Almighty God, and of the sincerest Love and Reverence for our Sovereign, we beg Leave to join with our Fellow Subjects of these Realms in offering our Congratulations on your Majesty's happy Recovery, and Re-assumption of the Reins of Government; earnestly imploring Heaven, That your Majesty's Reign may be as distinguished by Length of Years and Fulness of Prosperity, as it has been by the Exercise of every Public Duty, and of every Private Virtue.

Signed in Name, and by Appointment of the Meeting, by Benj. Dunbar, Præses.

Thurso, March 31, 1739.

[Delivered by Sir John Sinclair, Bart.]

To the KING.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful Subjects, the President and Fellows of the Royal College of Physicians in Edinburgh, humbly beg Leave to approach your Throne, and to join in the universal Expressions of Happiness on the Restoration of your Majesty's Health.

We assure your Majesty that the painful Solitude with which your Subjects in general were affected during the Interruption of it, was felt by none in a more sensible Manner; and that our Hearts are proportionally filled with Joy and Gratitude to Heaven on the auspicious Event of your Recovery.

Your Majesty has on this Occasion experienced, in the faithful Attachment and warm Affection of your Subjects, the Effects of those Virtues by which you have endeared yourself to a free People; and the Satisfaction which you must now feel is another Source of Pleasure to them.

May your Majesty long enjoy the Blessings of Health and domestic Felicity; and may you always attain the Objects of your most earnest Wishes and Exertions, which are to raise the Reputation and encrease the Prosperity of your People, to promote Virtue, Science, and the useful Arts, and to avert from your Kingdoms and from other Nations the Horrors of War.

Joseph Black, President.

Physicians Hall, Edinburgh,

April 24, 1789.

[Delivered by his Grace the Duke of Montagu.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

AMIDST the Congratulations of a loyal and affectionate People, may your Majesty be pleased to permit us the President, Vice-Presidents and Trustees of the Westminster Hospital to approach your Throne, and express our Joy on your Majesty's perfect Recovery; at the same Time we return our most humble Thanks to the Divine Providence, which has restored your Majesty to the ardent Wishes of your faithful Subjects. A Reign distinguished for embracing every Object that can promote the internal Peace, Happiness and Security of the People, is sufficient to endear your Majesty's Name to the latest Posterity; but the Affection of your Majesty's immediate Subjects could never have been so clearly evinced, unless an Illness (however to be lamented) had afforded them an Opportunity of manifesting an Attachment unparalleled in any other Age or Country.

Grey de Wilton, Vice President, in the Chair.

[Delivered by the Lord Viscount Fitzwilliam, one of the Vice-Presidents.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Master, Wardens and Society of Apothecaries of your City of London, humbly intreat
