

ing to stay there, till they have gathered the Arrears of their Contributions. The Marquis de los Balbases, the chief of the Spanish Embassy at Nimeguen, intends to make a turn hither with his whole Family.

Hague, Sept. 27. The death of the Bishop of Munster is confirmed, and the Bishop of Paderborne, who was his Coadjutor, is to be his Successor: But, it's believed, the Dukes of Lunenburg will possess themselves of the Dutchy of Ferden, and what the late Bishop had in the Dutchy of Bremen, for their Troops we hear are moving that way. Her Highness the Princess of Orange has been indisposed, and it was feared would have miscarried, but at present, God be thanked, she is pretty well again. The Prince, so soon as Maeftricht is restored to the State, intends to make a step thither, to settle the Affairs of that City as well Civil as Military.

Amsterdam, Sept. 30. This morning we have an account that Viceadmiral Everetz is arrived in the Texel with his Squadron, and several Merchantmen under his Convoy, from the Streights. They came from Cadix the 5th instant. The said Squadron was composed of 18 Men of War, 9 belonging to this Admiralty, 4 to the Maese, and 5 to the Northern quarter.

Rome, Sept. 27. The Affair of the Republick of Genova is accommodated, the Envoy of that State having made the Submissions required, and the King has given Orders for the discharging all the Genovese Ships that have been taken by his Men of War or Gallies. From the Rhine we have an account, that a Party of the Garrison of Maeftricht, burnt the 19th instant several Villages in the Countrey of Fuliers, for being wanting in their Contributions. Our Letters from the Mareschal de Crequi's Camp are dated the 20th instant at Minsfeldt, they tell us, that the Imperialists begun to have great want of Forage, which would suddenly oblige them to decamp. That the 19th arrived in the Camp Depuies from Spire, and had offered the Mareschal de Crequi what Provisions and other Necessaries their City could afford. They of the East India Company assure us, that the Missionaries sent from hence, have converted the great King of Siam to the Christian Religion, and that that King is going to send a splendid Embassy hither. Monsieur Morstin, great Treasurer of Poland, is arrived here from Italy, where he hath past some part of this Summer. Yesterday we had the news here of the death of the Bishop of Munster, and that the Bishop of Paderborne, who was his Coadjutor, was to succeed him.

Dino, Octob. 1. The 29th past, the Peace between this Crown and the States General of the United Provinces, was published here with the Ceremonies usual on such occasions. The Mareschal de Belisfunds, who has been some time in disgrace, has leave to return to Court. The King is going to make a new Establishment for his Guards, as well as for the other Troops of his Household, which will give them several new advantages, and they are to have much richer cloaths than formerly. The King has resolved to reduce every Company of Foot from 60 to 45 men, and we are told that there are above 3000 Companies in the Kings Pay, so that this Reform will amount to 45000 men. The Duke of Luxemburg has passed the Meuse at Dinant with the Army under his command; it is thought he has his eye upon the Elector of Brandenburg's Countries and upon Fuliers.

Newcastle, Sept. 17. The Lord Hume having sent to inform Colonel Strother, (one of His Majesties Deputy-Lieutenants and Justices of the Peace for the County of Northumberland) that several Scotch Men, who were declared Rebels and Fugitives by the Laws of Scotland, and His Majesties Privy Council there, harbored themselves on this side the Borders, and rode Armed up and down this County, and that they were lately at Learmouth, the said Col. Strother, accompanied with his Brothers Col. Salkcild, Mr. Strother and Mr. Marley, with their Servants, went on Saturday last by break of day to Learmouth, to make search for the said Persons, but not finding any of them, went thence to the Lord Humes, and there dispersed his Servants, to learn what information they could of those Rebels. After dinner Colonel Strother, Col. Salkcild, Mr. Strother, Mr. Marley, and four Servants returning home, they overtook near Crokeham in this County 14 or 15 Horsemen well mounted and armed, who stopt when they came up to them; And Colonel Strother demanding what their business was, and whither they were going so well armed? They whipt out their Pistols, and before Colonel Strother and those with him could get out theirs, discharged them among them; one shot took place upon Mr. Marley, and struck him in the head, so that he fell down dead, Mr. Strother's Horse was killed, having three shot in him, and Colonel Strother was wounded; but in return, they killed one of the Rebels, one Carr of Chirrie-trees, upon which all the rest fled. It is said that 4 others were wounded, and since taken. The Coroners Inquest have set upon the body of Mr. Marley, and upon examination of Witnesses, they found it Wilful Murder in one Henry Hall, Edward Young of Lelsford, Andrew Young of Coverton, Alexander Humes of Erkles, Andrew Grey, alias Morison, Hector Aire, and in the rest, (whose Names are not yet known.) It was proved upon Oath, That they lay in wait for Colonel Strother and his Companys coming back, having had intelligence that they had been searching for them; and that one of them watching near Crokeham gave the rest notice, and cried, The Rogues are now coming, and if ever you will have your Revenge, you must take it now, &c. All possible diligence is using for the discovery and apprehension of this wicked Crew, in order to the bringing them to condign punishment.
