Stockholme, Nov. 22.

From Schonen we have an account, that the 15. instant the King gave Audience to a Moscovite Ambassador at Carelschawen: and that thence His Majesty was going to see a new Haven, lying between that place and Calmar, which being easie to be fortified, very commodious for building of Ships (by reason of the great quantity of Oak growing thereabouts) capable to harbor a very great Fleet, much easier of access then Stockholme, and nearer to the Provinces on both sides of the Balticke, is intended to be for the future the station of the Kings Ships. There have been very great Storms in these Seas, and several Swedish Vessels have been lost, among which it's said is that which carried Major-General Grotehuysen to his designed Government of Wisnar, but the greatest loss is that of several Vessels carrying over Soldiers for Pomeran, which were cast away on the Isle of Bornholme. above 700 Soldiers perishing.

Lisbon, Nov. 28. The 22 instant the Cortes met in the great Hall of the Palace, which was very richly adorned. About two in the afternoon the Prince, in his ordinary Dress, as were all the Nobility, attended by six Mace-bearers, seven Heralds, and the Officers of his House, entred the Hall, and being sat on his Throne, the Bishop of O-Porto made a long Oration in praise of his Highness, and of the Choice he had made for the Infanta, and recommended to the three Estates the dispensing with the Laws of Lanego about marrying with a Stranger; and the supplying his Highness with money for the defraying the Charges of this Marriage. Then spake one of the Procurators for this City, a Lawyer, in behalf of the Commons, extolling the Prince and his Government, as also the Duke of Savoy and his Family, and ended with the offer of themselves and their Estates to the service of his Highness. This done a Herald called the Nobility to do Homage to the Prince, and after them the Commons, and lastly the Bishops. Then the Herald appointing to each of the three Estates a several place of meeting, viz. at three several Convents, and directed them to begin their meetings the next day, the Prince arose, and returned to his own Apartment with the same Attendance that he came with. The next day the three Estates met apart, and the Marquis de Griveu, one of the Procurators for this City, made a long and eloquent Oration to the Commons, of whom a great many were of the Nobility, upon the occasion of their meeting, which was so well liked, that 'tis not doubted but they will grant whatever the Prince shall desire of them, though there are like to be some difficulties about the manner of the raising money. What sum will be demanded is not yet made known.

Genova, Dec. 13. The 9th instant the 8 French Gallies commanded by the Chevalier de Noailles returned hither from Legorn, and upon the Senates refusing a second time to permit them to winter in their Arsenal, they sailed again the 11th homeward. The 10th at night sailed hence two Dutch Men of War, with four English Merchant Ships, the Laurel, Mary Rose, Primrose, and Delight, homeward bound.

Prague, Dec. 9. The Plague is quite ceased at Vienna, and the Churches opened; but here we are still under some apprehensions of it; for yesterday it broke out in a house far distant from those that were formerly shut up. The Marriage between the Dauphin and the Princess of Bavaria is concluded, as it's hoped that will be ere long between the Elector and the Emperors Daughter.

Marienzal in Franconie, Dec. 12. The Great Master of the Teutonique Order, at present Viceroy of Hungary, having convoked a general Chapter to be held here, and those that have Voices there, being arrived, the 3d instant was performed the Ceremony of introducing Prince Louis Anthony of Neuburg, third Son to the Duke of Neuburg into that Order; the Ceremony whereof was thus, The Chapter being met in the great Church, the said Prince was conducted thither, where Count d'Ortingen and Count Fagger having deposed upon Oath that they had examined the Princes Arms, and found them what they ought to be, the said Prince took the Oaths of Poverty, of Chastity, and to go to the War against the Infidels, when there is occasion, and then the Grand-Master put on him the Habit, which is a White Cloak with a Black Cross, saying these words, We Promise to give you as long as you live, Water, Bread, and a Habit. After the Ceremony was ended, the Prince and all the Knights were treated at Dinner by the Great Master. The next day another Chapter was called, where the said Prince was chosen Coadutor to the Great-Master, who by virtue of this Dignity enjoys a Revenue of 200000 Florins in Germany, has great Pretensions on the Princes of Italy, who have taken away several Lands belonging to that Order, and takes place in the Dyet next to the Electors.

Hamburg, Dec. 22. The French are raising a Regiment of Foot here, and another, as we are informed, at Francfort. They have hired all the Vessels in this River, and the Wejer, which used at the time of the Vintage, to go only with Ballast for France, and to return laden with Wines, on which they mean to transport great quantities of Oats, and other Corn (which they are therefore buying up in these parts) to Calais and Dunkirk, and other places on that Coast. The Duke of Zell has ordered some Troops to march, in order to dislodge those of the Elector of Brandenburg which are now quartered in the Country of Mecklenburg; but it's hoped that matter will be composed by the Dutch Minister the Sieur d'Amerongen, who labors in it.
