

every other Occasion, I feel it my Duty to mention to your Lordship as that of a most zealous Officer, and I beg Leave to add, that Lieutenant Downie assures me he met with every possible Assistance from Mr. Thomas Napper, Midshipman, who accompanied him in a Four-oared Boat. The Seahorse during the Time kept up a quick and well directed Fire on the Fort, Gun-Vessels, and Convoy; and having every Reason to believe I had sunk one of the Gun-Launches, and damaged and sunk several others of the Convoy, Night coming on, with light Winds, the Main-Toppallant-Mast, Sails, Braces, Bow-Lines shot away, I felt it imprudent any longer to attempt the Destruction of the Whole by exposing the Ship to the well-directed Fire of the Gun-Vessels, which latterly struck her every Shot. For the Exertions, on this Occasion, of Lieutenant Ogle Moore, Lieutenant Charles Brown Yonge, who had not received his confirmed Commission, Mr. Spratt, Master, Lieutenant Clarke, of the Royal Marines, Lieutenant Hagemeister, of the Russian Navy, I feel severally indebted; and indeed I should do Injustice to every other Officer and Man on board did I not mention them in the same Manner.

It would give me greater Satisfaction could I inform your Lordship we met with no Loss on this Service; however I feel that sustained in having only One Seaman killed, as trifling, considering the well-directed Fire in so many different Directions of the Enemy. Trusting that my Proceedings will meet your Lordship's Approbation,

I have the Honor to be, &c.
