Officers of the Navy and Army, according to their respective Ranks, the Seniors nearest the Body.

Upon Arrival of the Procession at the great West Door of Westminster Abbey, the Six Conductors and Forty-seven Poor Men divided, and ranged themselves on each Side without the Door. There not being sufficient Space in the North Transept for the whole Procession, the Gentlemen, Esquires, and others were arranged, under the Direction of the Officers of Arms, on each Side in the Body of the Church; and the Members of the House of Commons, the Nobility, and those who had Duties in the Solemnity, entered by the Iron Gate leading to the North Transept. Near the Entrance of the Church, the Dean and Prebendaries, attended by the Choir, had fallen into the Procession immediately after the Great Banner, and before the Heralds who bore the Trophies; the Choir, assisted by that of His Majesty's Chapels Royal, and of St. Paul's Cathedral, singing the Sentence in the Office for Burial "I am the Resurrection and the Life, &c." with the Two following Sentences, and continuing to sing until the Body was placed near the Grave.

The CHIEF MOURNER was seated on a Chair at the Head of the Body, his Supporters and Trainbearer, and the Six assistant Mourners, and Four Supporters of the Pall, on Stools near him. The Relations stood around the Grave; and Garter was seated near the Chief Mourner. The Bannerolls were borne on each Side of the Body.

Then the Rev. Dr. Vincent, Dean of Westminster, read, "For as much as it hath pleased Almighty God," &c. Then the Choir sung, "I heard a Voice from Heaven," &c.; and after the Second Collect in the Burial Service, Part of an Anthem, "His Body is buried in Peace; but his Name liveth evermore."

The Service at the Interment being over, Garter proclaimed the Style; and the Comptroller, Treasurer, and Steward of the Deceased, breaking their Staves, delivered the Pieces to Garter, who threw them into the Grave.

The Interment ended, the Standard, Banners, Bannerolls, and Trophies were deposited on the Table behind the Chief Mourner; and the Procession being called over by the Officers of Arms, returned to the Painted Chamber in the Order in which it came from thence.

During the whole of this solemn Ceremony the greatest Order and Decorum were observed; and, as the Procession passed, every Testimony of Respect was manifested by a great Concourse of Spectators.
