We now approach your Throne with peculiar Satisfaction to testify the lively Joy we feel in contemplating the many distinguished Characters whom your Majesty has been pleased to honor with the highest Marks of Confidence, by entrusting to them the most important Offices in your Majesty's Government. We feel, in common with your Majesty's other Subjects, the cheering hope, that an Administration thus composed of Men whose Talents, Worth, and Integrity have long been acknowledged and admired, will, by adopting a System of manly Energy and liberal Policy, by Wisdom in cultivating, and Economy in managing our Resources, promote the best Interests of a loyal People, secure their Liberties, maintain their Independence, and pursue such Measures as will lead to the Attainment of an honorable and lasting Peace. With these our Congratulations we mingle Sentiments of the most heartfelt Gratitude for that exercise of your Royal Prerogative from which we anticipate such happy Consequences, and pray that your Majesty's paternal Solitude for your People's Welfare may be rewarded by the Contemplation of their external Glory and domestic Tranquillity, by the Friendship and Esteem of surrounding Nations, and by the Affection of a free, united, and happy People.
