

from the eighth day of August next, the importation of hides, or pieces of hides, dressed or undressed calf-skins, or pieces of calf-skins, dressed or undressed horns or pieces of horns, tallow, and wool (except cotton wool), and also of goat-skins, dressed or undressed, in any foreign ship or vessel, from any port from which the British flag is excluded; and that on the arrival at any port of the United Kingdom of any foreign ship or vessel, from any port from which the British flag is excluded, with any of the articles abovementioned, the said goods shall be admitted to entry on payment of the same duties of customs and excise as are due and payable on the like goods when imported in any British or Irish-built ship or vessel:—And the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary directions herein accordingly.

Chetwynd.

THE following Addresses have been presented to His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; which Addresses His Royal Highness was pleased to receive very graciously:

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

The humble Address of the Bishop and the Clergy of the Diocese of Bristol, resident within the City and Deanery of Bristol.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Bishop and the Clergy of the Diocese of Bristol, resident within the City and Deanery of Bristol, humbly beg leave to approach your Royal Highness with sentiments of the deepest condolence on the dreadful act of assassination committed upon the person of the late Right Honourable Spencer Perceval.

Such a deed, at all times, and under all circumstances, most abhorrent from the feelings of Englishmen, cannot but call forth, upon the present occasion, a more than usual degree of regret and indignation.

A faithful and upright Minister, acknowledged by every description of His Majesty's subjects to have uniformly acted according to the dictates of a most pure and uncorrupted mind, is suddenly cut off by the arm of an assassin, within the walls of that house where he had long and laboriously dedicated his best services to his Sovereign and his country.

But, in addition to the grief and indignation which this atrocious act has universally excited, we cannot but be sensible to the loss which religion has sustained by the death of this virtuous Statesman, whose attention was steadily directed to its interests, and who extended its influence upon the minds and hearts of men, by that best lesson, the example of his own life.

We humbly entreat your Royal Highness to accept, together with our condolence upon this calamitous event, the assurance of our unfeigned loyalty to His Majesty, of our dutiful attachment to your Royal Highness, and of our determination to persevere in inculcating such principles as, under Divine Providence, may best promote the welfare of our fellow-subjects, and most effectually maintain and support our present happy constitution in church and state.

[Presented by the Lord Bishop of Bristol.]

To His Royal Highness the PRINCE REGENT.

May it please your Royal Highness.

WE, the Mayor, Aldermen, Capital Burgesses, Clergy, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough and Town of Sudbury, in the County of Suffolk, sincerely participating in the universal sentiment of deep regret and abhorrence at the atrocious assassination of The Right Honourable Spencer Perceval, in the Commons House of Parliament, whilst in the execution of his public duty; a man pre-eminently distinguished no less for his public than his private virtues, humbly beg leave to offer our condolence to your Royal Highness on this truly afflictive and melancholy occasion.

In deploring an event which in the natural course of things would have excited feelings of universal concern, we cannot help drawing some degree of consolation from the reflection, that this has been the act of a solitary misguided individual, unconnected with any sanguinary system whatever.

We are anxious at the same time to avail ourselves of the opportunity of expressing our unfeigned loyalty and attachment to our revered Sovereign, and to your Royal Highness's person, together with our firm determination to support, unimpaired, our invaluable constitution, and to resist any hostility that may be offered to the government, religion, and laws of this happy country.

In testimony whereof we, the said Mayor, Aldermen, Capital Burgesses, Clergy, and principal Inhabitants, have hereunto set our hands, and the said Mayor hath caused the common seal of the said Borough to be affixed thereto, this 29th day of May, in the year of our Lord 1812.

[Presented by Captain Agar, one of the Representatives for Sudbury, and also by Dr. Lauchlan Maclean, M. D. Senior Alderman.]

To His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The Humble Address of the Noblemen, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the county of Hertford.

May it please your Royal Highness.

WE, the Noblemen, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the county of Hertford, most humbly approach your Royal Highness, to testify our horror, and express our deep concern at the late unexampled and atrocious act of assassination committed on the person of the Right Honourable Spencer Perceval, First Lord of the Treasury, and Chancellor of the Exchequer, within the walls of Parliament, and on his way to discharge the important duties of his station; whereby your Royal Highness and the country have been deprived of an able and faithful Minister, and society of one of its brightest ornaments.

We trust that such crimes, heretofore unknown to the manly and generous mind of a British people, may not again occur; but we cannot help most sincerely lamenting, that the character, of
