Foreign-Office, December 4, 1813.

A DISPATCH, of which the following is a copy, has been this day received by Viscount Castlereagh, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, from Lieutenant-General Sir Charles William Stewart, K. B. dated Munich, near Frankfurt, November 18, 1813.

My Lord,

IN a former dispatch I stated to your Lordship, the substance of a report, received on the morning of the 15th, from General Thielman, of the surrender of Dresden and its garrison as prisoners of war. By the more official advices which your Lordship will now receive, you will learn the report received at the head-quarters of the Army of the North was not correct, as to the surrender of the garrison as prisoners of war. A capitulation was demanded and acceded to, by which the garrison was to return to France, and be exchanged man for man. This has not been ratified by the Commander-in-Chief, so there must be still some short delay before this important place is in our possession.

I sincerely regret having given your Lordship a report which came to me on such good authority, which, nevertheless, has turned out not to be confirmed in all its facts.

I have the honour to be, Sir, &c.

(Signed) CHARLES STEWART.

Viscount Castlereagh, &c.

Admiralty-Office, December 4, 1813.

DISPATCHES from Captain Farquhar, commanding His Majesty's naval forces in the Elbe and Weser, addressed to Mr. Croker, announce that on the 23d ultimo, the French garrison of Carlsburg, (Bremerlehe) consisting of two hundred and thirty-six officers and men, with thirteen pieces of heavy ordnance, surrendered themselves prisoners of war to the combined British and Russian forces; the latter commanded by Colonel de Radinger, and that on the 24th ult. the garrison of Blexen also surrendered prisoners of war to the same forces. The officers of this garrison are to be sent to France on parole, not to serve against the allies for one year.

Captain Farquhar reports, that the banks of the river Weser are now perfectly clear of the enemy.
