

Whilst we return sincere thanks to Almighty God, that he has been graciously pleased to preserve your Royal Highness to a loyal people, we trust, that the authors and abettors of an outrage, alike disgraceful to human nature, and foreign to our national character, shall be made to answer to the offended laws of their country.

We cannot sufficiently express our regret, at the excesses which an ignorant and misguided populace have committed in the metropolis, nor our detestation of the conduct of a few factious, wicked and designing individuals, who, by propagating delusion and disseminating sedition, have led others to the commission of such outrages, and finally of that act of treason, which excites our present just indignation.

We beg leave to assure your Royal Highness, that, in spite of the wild and visionary ideas which are circulated elsewhere, one opinion, one feeling pervades all hearts in this part of the empire, the most devoted attachment to your Royal Highness's Person, Family and government, the most unqualified confidence in our national Parliament, and, above all, the most sincere veneration for that Constitution, which, the boast of our own and the envy of every other country, combines private security with public liberty; establishes a common bond of union among all ranks of society, and forms that firm basis, upon which our national glory, prosperity and happiness rest.

We trust, that your Royal Highness will believe that such are the opinions held by those of every class, who possess either virtue, talent, education or property, and that you will totally disregard those deluded or designing individuals, who insult His Majesty's faithful subjects, by presumptuously and falsely assuming a delegation to speak their sentiments.

We earnestly hope that your Royal Highness's valuable life will be long preserved, and that, after an honourable discharge of your high office, as Regent of these United Kingdoms, during the lamented indisposition of our revered Sovereign, your Royal Father, you will long wear, with undiminished glory, the British Crown, and be enabled to transmit our venerable Constitution, as by law established, to succeeding generations.

Signed in our name and by our appointment,
Elibank, Preses.

[Transmitted by the Right Honourable Lord Elibank,
and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales,
REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

May it please your Royal Highness.

WE, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates and Council of the ancient Town of Stirling, beg leave humbly to approach your Royal Highness, and to express our extreme abhorrence of the very atrocious and treasonable attempt, which was lately made against your sacred Person, when returning from performing one of the most important functions of your station, as Regent of the empire.

We beg leave to assure your Royal Highness of our unshaken loyalty, and that we shall ever consider any disrespect or violence offered to your Royal Person, as aimed at that venerable Constitution, under which, by the blessing of Providence, these lands have so long prospered.

We fervently pray, that the great Ruler of the universe may long preserve your Royal Highness, and that the sceptre of these realms may be swayed by the illustrious House of Brunswick, to the latest generations.

Signed in our names and by our appointment,
and sealed at the Town House of Stirling, this 15th day of February 1817, and of His Majesty's reign the 57th year.

Thomas Littlejohn, Provost.

[Transmitted by General Campbell, and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness George Prince of Wales,
REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Burgesses and other Inhabitants of the Town of Sligo, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, with sentiments of abhorrence of the late wicked attack upon the Person of your Royal Highness, and to offer our sincere congratulations at your Royal Highness's happy escape.

Attached as we are and have ever been to our glorious Constitution, and viewing as we do the attempts of designing men to undermine it, and to introduce those principles which have deluged the world with blood, we conceive the present a fit opportunity to rally round the Throne, and we trust, that by your Royal Highness's just and vigorous administration of the laws, our Government, which, by its excellence and energy, has given repose to Europe, will prove, that it is capable of maintaining itself, of crushing the disaffected, and continuing the blessings of liberty and peace to His Majesty's subjects.

[Transmitted by His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant,
and presented by Viscount Sidmouth.]

To His Royal Highness The Prince of Wales,
REGENT of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The humble and dutiful Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of the Royal Burgh of Newburgh, in Fife.

May it please your Royal Highness,

WE, the Magistrates and Town Council, beg leave to approach your Royal Highness, with the most profound sentiments of duty and respect, to express our horror and indignation at the late most daring, wicked, and villainous outrage offered to your Royal Person, at the moment of your return from the House of Parliament, on the occasion of your Royal Highness's exercising the sacred duties of the Crown, and fulfilling, in the name and on the behalf of His Majesty, the very important performance of one of the estates of the realm.

With the deepest concern we have to deplore, that any one should be found within His Majesty's
