THE following Addresses, having been transmitted to Viscount Sidmouth, one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, by the several persons whose names are respectively subjoined to each Address, were presented by His Lordship to His Majesty, who was pleased to receive the same very graciously:

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of the College of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin, niest humbly approach the Throne with renewed declarations of our devoted attachnent to your Majesty's Person and Government

We have seen with regret and detestation the efforts used, in the very bosom of the empire, by insidious and profligate men, to excite a spirit of hostility to the long-venerated establishments of the realm, and to weaken the affection which attaches every virtuous subject to the person of his Sovereign.

Deeply grateful for the many plessings which we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and paternal Government, we cannot repress our indignation at the attempts of irreligion and treason to destroy the obligations of law, to revile the administration of justice, and to dissolve every moral sanction which sustains and guards society.

But we are not dismayed by these dangers.

We trust a spirit is arising in the country which will successfully counteract these designs, that menace at once the best interests of social life and the dearest hopes of humanity. We humbly yet confidently hope; that the same gracious Providence which has hitherto guarded the safety of this realm, will defeat every attempt to impair our happy Constitution, under which we have so long enjoyed advantages unparalleled in the history of the world. Removed, by our peculiar duties and pursuits, from interference in the ordinary occurrences of political life, we should, nevertheless, feel ourselves deficient in gratitude as well as allegiance, if, at a crisis like the present, we should neglect to express to your Majesty those sentiments of respect and attachment by which our Body has ever been, and we trust ever shall be distinguished.

We beg leave, in all humility, to add, that it shall be our most anxious care to inspire the youth committed to our charge with the highest estimation of those national benefits which they inherit from their ancestors, and with an ardent desire to transmit them unimpaired to posterity.

Trinity College, Dublin, December 22, 1820.

Transmitted by His Excellency the Lord Lieute nant of Ireland.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Sovereign, Burgesses, and Freemen of the City of Armagh.

WE, the Sovereign, Burgesses, and Freemen of the City of Armagh, beg leave to approach your Majesty, in this season of public agitation, with an assurance of our most devoted attachment to, the sacred Person of your Majesty, and to the Constitution of the Government of these countries.

We can never forget that to your wise and vigorous administration of the resources of the empire we have, under the Divine Providence, becautide the for the glorious issue of the great struggle in which we had been long engaged for the independence of Europe, with the violence of a revolutionary nation wielded as it was by a military despotism.

We regard with astonishment and indignation the conduct of those who are labouring to disparage and degrade a Constitution, which other nations are at this very time vainly endeavouring to imitate, as their only expedient for raising themselves to political dignity and, prosperity. But though we are shocked by the profligate and audacious impiety, which in this country of freedom and forbearance has found, an opportunity of obtruding itself on the notice of the public; we derive consolation from observing of irreligion; for we hold it to be impossible that a British public should long continue to be associated with men who have chosen " evil to be their good," who have no hope for this life but in confusion, or for the next but in annihilation.

In one of those seasons of difficulty, to which, by the operation of causes not subject to human control, all nations must be occasionally exposed, the people may for a time listen to the representations of such men, because they affect to commiserate the general suffering, and propose their own wild remedies for that which should be patiently endured as the order of the Divine Providence. But we are persuaded that the nation, which in the cause of a wise and generons policy submitted to all the burthens and privations of a protracted contest with the usurper of the continent, which in the cause of morals deliberately relinquished a traffic believed to be connected with the best interests of its commerce, and which in the cause of religion is actually endeavouring to spread the light of the gospel over all the benighted regions of the world, cannot long be influenced by such men. as are now forward in disturbing the public trauquility. On the contrary we look with confident expectation to a result which shall strengthen the bands of the Government, and vindicate the character of the people.

We securely trust that the present agitation will terminate in manifesting the vigour with which a free government can expel from its constitution the impurities with which it is occasionally tainted; that the people, awaking to a recollection of those sound principles of religion, of morals, and of policy, by which they have been habitually directed, will attach themselves more closely to the inestimable Constitution which they have inherited from their ancestors; and that the world, which has already witnessed with amazement the military and naval energies which true liberty could supply, shall soon contemplate with equal admiration the interior efficacy of a balenced and free government, in resisting the malignity of domestic enemies, and securing from the mischief of their machinations the most valuable interests of social life. By this double triumph over external and internal enemies we firmly hope that your Majesty's Government shall become illustrious to other nations and to posterity, for having asserted the general independence without indulging the ambition of conquest, and for having suppressed the efforts of faction without yielding to the temptation of power.

James Iles, Sovereign.

[Delivered by the Rev. Dr. Miller.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty. May it please your Majesty.

WE, the Nobility, Clergy, Gentry and Freeholders of the County of Meath, beg leave to approach your Majesty to renew the tender of our dutiful homage and allegiance, which on your Majesty's accession to the Throne we pressed forward-amongst the most zealous of your Majesty's subjects to lay at your feet, and to repeat the assurances we expressed on that auspicious occasion | pride and self-congratulation that we can assure that the abettors of sedition are also the advocates | of our unalterable attachment to your Majesty's sacred Person and to the Constitution, the blessings of which, the happy experience of our own days, no less than that of times past, has taught us to prize and venerate amongst the choicest gifts of a protecting Providence.

The great stake which this country must always have in the peace and tranquility of the sister kingdom, cannot suffer us to remain insensible to the dangerous tendency of the ferment that has been excited among such numbers of the midding and lower classes of your Majesty's subjects in that part of this empire, by the seditious and blas-phemous publications that daily issue from a press, licentious beyond all that could be contemplated or countenanced by the warmest advocates of its freedom.

Under these impressions we feel that we are imperiously called upon to express our abhorrence of the avowed designs of those flagitious publications, and of the daring attempts of the incendiaries with whom they originate, to bring intecontempt all the constituted Authorities of the State, to dissolve the ties that should bind the different orders and classes of the community in a well understood unity of interests, and for the general prosperity and security, to emancipate the public mind from all the restraints of law, morals, and religion, that have hitherto guided or coerced man in civilized society and in the establishment of social order, and thereby to undermine the only solid foundations on which the Throne your Majesty so auspiciously fills, can permanently rest, or the rights or privileges which are the birthright of all your subjects can be preserved and perpetuated. Deep would be the humiliation should the great people who, during the period of unequalled splendour and triumph in which your Majesty administered the Government in your ever-to-be-venerated. Father's name, acted so glorious a part in earning for these kingdoms the proud title of the deliverers of Europe, combine to subvert the Constitution in the enjoyment and under the influence of which the British and Irish names were graced with that high distinction .- Unaccountable would be the infatuation, should they introduce into the bosom of their own country the horrible train of evils from which they spilt their best blood and expended their treasures to rescue other nations. But we entertain a firm persuasion that so foul a stigma can never attach to the character of the people of England in their true designation. The calm, rational, deliberative decisions of that reflecting people and their rooted attachments to institutions planned and matured by the progressive wisdom of ages, and endeared to them by the protection and security they derive from them will eventually prevail over a wild spirit of innovation, excusable in less favoured nations; and in proportion to the danger with which the Throne and the Constitution may be threatened, will be the zeal and the spirit with. which the loyal, the moral, and the religious, and all that form the civil strength of the empire will unite to support them, as they have done in all similar times of momentary delusion and partial disaffection.

In the mean time, it is not without a feeling of your Majesty that the contagion of disaffection has not reached your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects in this extensive County: However they may differ on some doctrinal points of religion, they are cordially and firmly united in a high principled obedience to the precept of their common faith, which renjoins them to "fear God and honour the King."

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the principal Inhabitants of the Parishes of Passage and Monkstown, County of Cork, approach your Majesty's Throne with sentiments of unshaken attachment to your illustrious House and our glorious Constitution.

We, in common with the great majority of our fellow subjects, lament that persons have for party purposes been found deviating from those principles which experience has proved to be our best defence, thereby encouraging the ignorant in disloyalty to their King and disobedience to the Laws.

We feel ourselves called upon at this crisis to declare that we will, by our example and influence, as far as in us lies, frustrate the vile machinations of a desperate faction aided by uncurbed and licentious falsehoods which are disseminating at this juncture for the purpose of trampling under foot that proud fabric in the establishing of which our ancestors bled.

We further assure your Majesty that we rely on the wisdom and firmness of your Majesty's Councils in meeting the present evil, thereby continuing to these realms that security we have always enjoyed; and when we recollect your Majesty's gracious declaration on ascending the Throne, "that your Majesty would maintain unimpaired the Religion, the Laws, and Liberties of the empire," the result cannot be doubtful.

That your Majesty may long live to reign over a happy, loyal, and satisfied people, is our constant prayer.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty. SIRE,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the undersigned Clergymen, Gentlemen, and other Inhabitants of the Parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, in the County of Middlesex, feel ourselves in duty bound, at this period of abounding sedition and blasphemy, to declare our unshaken loyalty to the Throne, and our firm attachment to the Constitution of the realm.

Sensible of the invaluable blessings which, as Englishmen, we enjoy in the mild and equitable administration of those laws by which our country is distinguished, we cannot but deeply lament the efforts which have been made by licentious and factious men and by a corrupting press to bring contempt upon every civil and religious institution, and to annihilate every thing that is dear and valuable to man, as a political, moral and religious being.

Stimulated by a sense of interest, as well as of duty, we do solemnly express our persuasion, that the intelligent and virtuous of our fellow-countrymen, upon whom the stability of the empire must finally depend, are devoted to your Majesty, and will unite with heart and hand, in the hour of menaced danger, to save the Constitution of their beloved country. And we pledge ourselves, as far as the exertions of men can avail, that we will be among the foremost to protect from insult the Throne and constituted Powers of this kingdom.

Under these impressions we fervently pray, that your Majesty's reign over a free, virtuous and united people may be long and prosperous; and that the British Constitution may triumph over every enemy, foreign and domestic, until the end of time.

To this sincere and ardent prayer, we, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, have subscribed our names.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, the undersigned, being Members of the loyal Lodge of the United Order of Ancient Druids, No. 76, held at the House of Brother John Burton, known by the sign of the Ancient Druid, Newcastle-Street, Nottingham, beg leave most humbly to assure your Majesty of our unfeigned regard for and unalterable attachment to your Majesty's sacred Person and Government.

Sire, under Divine Providence, we attribute to the wisdom of those Counsellors whom your Majesty honoured with your choice, the accomplishment of our wishes, and realization of the hopes of the best part of your Majesty's subjects; the putting down of the most desolating tyranny Europe ever experienced, and finally preventing the further ambitious projects of our inveterate and most implacable foe. We then hailed the day of peace, congratulated each other in having maintained a firm attachment to our Sovereign during the long and arduous contest, and since have encouraged each other to bear up under those difficulties which in common we have suffered with others, and which are inseparable from so sudden and so great a change. We could then smile at the attempts of a faction to impose on us predictions never verified, and prophecies never to be fulfilled; a faction then contemptible has now, by using the most specious pretences to mislead the unwary, become bold by an accession of strength; employing the most desperate means for desperate purposes, and growing furious from repeated disappointments, have at length so far succeeded as to convert the boast of our country, the press, into an engine of destruction.

Sire, as tathers, as masters of families, we most deeply deplore the fatal effect of the licentiousness of that press, once the sacred guardian of our have been recently given against those profune and liberties, but whose baneful influence has of late blasted the hopes of many a fond parent, and deeply wounded the morality of the rising generation, and whose efforts, aided by certain circumstances, enabled it daily, nay hourly, to throw around the envenomed arrows of infidelity, blasphemy and sedition

Sire, we presume not to dictate; it is not our province to advise your Majesty nor recommend measures, but we most humbly hope that an effectual and a speedy check may be given to that spirit of profligacy and wickedness now too prevalent, and that a set of unprincipled men may no longer be suffered with impunity to attempt the pulling down and trampling in the dust that venerable fabric which our forefathers reared; or we much fear, instead of bequeathing to our children and posterity the invaluable blessings of the British Constitution, we shall only leave them what would embitter their days through life, and deprive them of the consolation of religion and the hope of future happiness.

Sire, once more, we most humbly beg your Majesty will be graciously pleased to accept our united professions of attachment to your Majesty's Person and Government, and we pray that your Majesty may soon enjoy the blessing (and we, your Majesty's most dutiful subjects, the happiness) of witnessing the great the very great majority of your people rallying round the Throne and the Altar.

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and faithful subjects, the Bailiff, Recorder, Aldermen, Town Clerk, Burgesses and Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Bridgnorth, in the County of Salop, beg leave most humbly to approach your Royal Person with renewed assurances of our unabated loyalty and attachment. Sensibly alive to the blessings we enjoy under our benign and well balanced Constitution, in Church and State, we view with abhorrence and detestation the persevering efforts of the factious and the infidel to shake the stability of the one and to destroy all veneration for the other; we have viewed with painful apprehension the active and extensive exertions of a press, prostituted to the most impious and seditions purposes, the scope and object of which is to demoralize the country and to bring all constituted Authorities, every public man, and even the Legislature itself into contempt; we have witnessed with deep regret the progress it has made in deluding the populace and engendering discontent, by eagerly laying hold of public events, and perverting them by misrepresentation and calumny to serve their own baleful projects. But, Sire, we rely firmly on the moral feeling, on the good sense and on the strong attachment to the Laws and Constitution which the body of the people we are persuaded preserve unimpaired, we look confidently to them as our security from those evils which we should otherwise have such reason to dread, and we hail as a most satisfactory proof of them the verdicts which | people.

We pledge ourselves never to desert the Throne nor forsake the Altar, we will stand firm in their defence, and at the foot of that Altar we will earnestly pray for the prosperity of our country, for the preservation of its civil and religious privileges, and that your Majesty may be permitted to enjoy a long and happy reign over a loyal, a free and a united

The humble, dutiful, and loyal Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the Town of Penzance, in the County of Cornwall, in Common Hall assembled, pursuant to due notice, this 22d day of December, in the year of our Lord 1820.

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the Town of Penzance, in the County of Cornwall, beg leave to offer the sincere assurance of our attachment to your Majesty's Person and Government.

· Sensible of the blessings we and our ancestors. have enjoyed under the mild rule of your Majesty's Royal House, and determined, with the assistance of Divine Providence, to hand down that inestimable benefit to our successors, we cannot but abhor the daring attempts which have been made to delude the mind and inflame the passions of the unwary, and thus cruelly to aggravate the difficulties we labour under, by pouring contempt on all laws, Divine or human, and denying the truth and hope of our holy religion.

We look up to your Majesty's paternal care and the wisdom of Parliament for the preservation of our glorious and happy Constitution, which has given more liberty and security to every class of the community of a great nation, and for a longer period of time than any recorded in history.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Nobility, Gentry, Clergy and House-holders in the Neighbourhood of Egham, Staines and Chertsey, beg leave to offer your Majesty the renewed homage of our duty and allegiance.

We deeply deplore the effects which have arisenfrom the freasonable and blasphemous publications distributed throughout the country, disgraceful to the British character, and destructive of all that has heretofore contributed to the peace, happiness and glory of England.

Residing in your Majesty's neighbourhood, we have witnessed with admiration the constant proofs which your Majesty has displayed of kindness and protection to all around you, of devotion to the Constitution of the realm, and of a sincere and steady support of the rights and liberties of the energy in the Government and constituted Authorities to frustrate the designs of those who would destroy the sacred and invaluable institutions of the British empire. We heartily pray that your Majesty may long reign in the hearts of your people, and receive those testimonies of duty, loyalty, and affection which they owe for the blessings derived under your mild and prosperous dominion.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty. Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, the undersigned, your Majesty's very dutiful subjects, Inhabitants of the Town and County of the Town of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, or owners of property therein, offer with profound respect to your Majesty's notice this our humble declaration of attachment and loyalty.

Highly esteeming those sacred principles of liberty which induced the accession of your illustrious House to the British Throne, and conscious as we are how regardful of those principles was the Government of your Majesty's Royal Father, we acknowledge with gratitude the various blessings which, as the result of that beneficent Government, we have hitherto enjoyed, and we confide entirely for the future welfare of the empire, not less upon the known disposition of your Majesty, than upon the energy, wisdom and continuance of those Councils by which this united kingdom, after having surmounted perils and difficulties unexampled in magnitude, has been exalted to an eminence of glory to which at no former period it had attained.

Impressed with these feelings, we will at no time be wanting either in the honest and patient discharge of those obligations which freemen owe their country, or in undissembled regard to a Sovereign, solicitous, by the firm but merciful execution of his kingly office, to reign in the hearts of his subjects.

We contemplate, therefore, with abhorrence the conduct and practices of those individuals, who, by a scandalous prostitution of the freedom of the press, labour to abate the veneration due to your Majesty's Person, and to detract from the revenence and honour in which the religion, laws and institutions of the country should be held, -institutions which are the ornament and security of your dominions, and are at least the admiration if not the envy of Europe.

May it please your Majesty to accept our dutiful and most earnest wishes, that your life and reign may be long and prosperous, and to rely upon our steadfast and continued exertions to oppose every attempt which can derogate from the dignity of your Crown, or may endanger the tranquility of Geo. Forster, Mayor.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty. WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal sub- of Huddersfield, deeply sensible of the many bless

We place the firmest reliance on the wisdom and | jects, the Minister, Churchwardens, Vestrymen and other Inhabitants of the Parish of the Holy Trinity, in the City of Coventry, beg leave humbly to approach your Majesty and to tender our most unfeigned expressions of attachment to your Majesty's Person, and of gratitude to Almighty God for the blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's paternal Government.

We have witnessed with inexpressible and deep concern the attempts which have been made in various parts of the kingdom to alienate the affections of your Majesty's subjects, and to subvert those principles of just subordination which form at once the dignity and happiness of our beloved country.

We have observed the endeavours of a licentious and daring faction to seize upon every occasion to produce anarchy, confusion and discord in our highly favoured land.

We have seen in particular the press, which should be the guardian of our liberties, civil and religious, converted into an instrument of the most unexampled licentiousness, threatening the subversion of every honourable and virtuous feeling and the substitution of every thing which is disgraceful to the character of Britons and of Christians.

Under such circumstances we think it incumbent on us to rally round the Throne and to express our firm determination to defend your Majesty's sacred Person and Government, as well as to support, by every means in our power, that glorious Constitu-tion, in Church and State, which we have received from onr ancestors, and which we esteem the greatest blessing a nation can possibly enjoy

The voice of Divine Providence hath called your Majesty to the Throne under circumstances of unparalleled difficulty and danger, but we feel no apprehensions respecting your Majesty's triumphant victory over them all; great minds are formed for great occasions, and Almighty God by the glorious conquest which it hath pleased Him to afford your Majesty over all your foreign enemies, hath given, we trust, a pledge and assurance to your faithful people, that no weapon which is formed against your Majesty's Person or Government shall ever

We are persuaded your Majesty reigns in the hearts of your people, and that no machinations of mischievous demagogues, or artifices of misguided and ill disposed persons, can ever materially affect your Majesty's dominion there.

That your Majesty's reign may be long and prosperous in the full enjoyment of your high dignity and constitutional prerogatives, as well as affording to your Majesty's subjects the free exercise of all their just privileges civil and religious, is the sincere: and fervent prayer of your Majesty's most faithful and devoted subjects and servants.

[Transmitted by the Earl of Craven.]

To His Majesty George the Fourth, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, KING, Defender of the Faith.

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood ings we enjoy under your Majesty's paternal sway, feel it our duty, at this important crisis, to renew the solemn assurance of our inviolable fidelity and devotion to your Majesty's Person and Government, and our steady determination to uphold, under every emergency, the dignity of the Throne, the sanctity of the Altar, and the integrity of our happy Constitution.

We deeply deplore the renewal of that turbulent and factious spirit which seizes with avidity upon every passing event to mislead and inflame the multitude, and to convulse the empire with civil commotion; and we have witnessed with indignation the base and unfounded calumnies levelled indiscriminately against the Throne, the Altar, the Peerage, and all that is venerable and holy in our land, and against the decisions of the Legislature itself, whenever those decisions do not accord with their misguided opinions; nor can we repress our abhorrence of the malignant assiduity with which the abettors of faction have, through the medium of a prostituted press, laboured to impose upon the credulity of the people, and alienate their affections from their lawful Sovereign; but we trust that if any part of your Majesty's subjects have been for a moment misled by their artful misrepresentations, the characteristic good sense of the country will speedily shake off the delusion, and though the voice of truth may for a time be stifled by the clamours of faction, justice will ultimately triumph over all the artifices of disaffection. We continue to maintain undiminished confidence in the great Council of the nation, on the legislative wisdom which has triumphantly guided us through so many difficulties, we implicitly rely for the adoption of such salutary measures as may frustrate the designs of domestic incendiaries, and effectually sustain the honour and dignity of your Majesty's Crown, and the peace and prosperity of your loyal subjects.

We pray most sincerely that your Majesty may long continue the venerated head of this mighty empire; and that your Throne, like that of your Royal Father, may be firmly established in the hearts of your faithful people. We implore the supreme Disposer of events that He will crown with success your Majesty's efforts at this crisis of daring impiety to advance the religious as well as the temporal welfare of your subjects, beseeching of his Almighty goodness that He will shield us from the contagion of infidelity, and from civil disunion, and ever preserve to us and to our latest posterty those manifold blessings civil and religious, the most pertect that ever fell to the lot of man to enjoy.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Proprietors, Occupiers, and others, Inhabitants of Begbrooke, Bletchington, Cassington, Hampton Poyle, Kidlington, Shipton-upon-Cherwell, and Yarnton, in the County of Oxford, beg permission to convey to the Throne these expressions of our devotion and attachment to your Majesty's Person and Government, and our grateful acknowledgements of your royal and paternal regard for all the

thus discharging the christian and constitutional duty of honouring the King, we cannot but lament the existence of circumstances which appear to us to make the public performance of such an act of duty at this time necessary; if we were to state the grounds of that necessity, we should have to trace the progress of profaneness and disaffection through all the changes in their aspect, and all the degrees of their malignity, to their present alarming influence upon the dispositions and morals of the country; we should have to unfold the history of that corruption in principle, and delusion in opinion which distract the public mind, and threaten to disturb the public peace; we should have to refer to those factious declamations in public assemblies, which, though the prove little else than the speaker's appetite for praise, profit, or power, give a wider currency to seditious doctrines and excite to revolutionary enterprizes; and finally we should have to enumerate the artifices, by which the licentious press is labouring to extend the dominion, which it has usurped over the will and understandings of the unenlightened, the unwary and the discontented. But though we are unwilling to enter into the details of these portentous truths, we cannot forbear expressing our abhorrence of those unwhorthy arts, by means of which agitators in public meetings, and authors in public prints, are endeavouring to bring into hatred and contempt the venerable institutions of our forefathers. We more especially protest against the fallacies, falsehoods, and misrepresentations of those disaffected journalists, who, day by day, revile and ridicule whatever is most sound in the constitutional sentiment, most sacred in religious duty, most clear and certain in civil and social obligations. We consider all such methods of inflaming the passions and misleading the judgment to be abuses of the liberty of the press; and we condemn them as breaches of an invaluable privilege, as violations of a solemn duty, and as crimes against the laws of reason, honour, truth and justice. And we think it becomes our characters as faithful subjects of your Majesty, and firm supporters of our excellent Constitution, in Church and State, to declare to your Majesty our resolution to uphold the dignity and just prerogatives of the Crown, the privileges of Parliament, the power of the Law, (the great safeguard of our own rights and liberties) against principles and practices which are alike hostile to the general welfare of the State, and to the interests and safety of every member of the community.

These great and inestimable blessings we ascribe, under Divine Providence, to the wisdom of your Majesty's Councils, guided as they have been by the free and benign spirit of the British Con-

Fortunately removed from those examples of insubordination, of blasphemy and sedition, which have made and are still making the most alarming progress throughout the kingdom, we deem the tribute of our devotion to your sacred Person, and the declaration of our respect for the laws, at the present juncture to be imperiously demanded from us as Cornishmen, who, in all scasons and under every legitimate dynasty, have been distinguished proverbially as good subjects, and we so deem it, not with a view to any invidious distinction, but because as men, as Englishmen and Christians, our hearts are at all times responsive to the calls of thankfulness for the blessings we enjoy which our ancestors bequeathed us, and which, in common with every city and hamlet, we now (under Providence) solemnly pledge ourselves to perpetuate for the security of the Throne, the Altar and the people.

WE, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the undersigned Gentry, Clergy and Inhabitants of the Town of Market Rasen and its Vicinity, assembled at Market Rasen, wholly abstaining from all observation on the state of parties or their political views, beg leave to tender to your Majesty the warmest assurances of our unshaken attachment to your Majesty's sacred Person, and to the Constitution and Laws of the country.

We have viewed with abhorrence the attempts of an abandoned and persevering faction, abetted and inflamed by a licentious press, to corrupt the political and religious principles of the less informed and less cautious part of your Majesty's subjects; but at no former period, Sire, has this malignant spirit so audaciously assailed the highest and most venerable in rank and character, so openly vented . its treasons and blasphemies. Happi'y, however, the revolting avowal has roused a correspondent deep and almost universal indignation, and every day presents to your Majesty new proofs that your people highly prize, and are resolved to transmit unimpaired the blessings they have inherited of civil and religious freedom.

We rely with entire confidence on the steadily exerted energies of the constituted Authorities, and the zealous co-operation of our loyal fellow-subjects for the frustration of every traitorous and wicked conspiracy.

We intreat your Majesty graciously to accept our Most Gracious Sovereign, most carnest wishes that your Majesty's guidance.
WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal may, under the blessing of Providence, long conduct a generous and grateful people no less to security and happiness in a peniod of tranquility, than to successes and repown in war.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

SIRE.

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Dudley, humbly approach your Majesty with professions of attachment, not more warm than singere, and with declarations of fidelity to the constituted. Authorities of the realm, not less willing than strong, avowing in the face of Heaven our firm resolve to defend, by every constitutional means in our power, your Majesty's sacred Person from injury and the laws from violation.

Deeming our civil and religious liberties dearer than life, with horror and with grief we see these invaluable privileges assailed by factious and infidel men, perverting to sedition and blasphemy the freedom of a press which ought to be employed in disseminating the useful arts, and making more extensively known the great principles of sacred truth; lamentable it is, that, to obstruct the progress of these distinguished blessings, men should exist in a country gifted by Divine Providence with advantages so pre-eminent as to render it an object of enwy or of imitation to all the nations of the world; singularly lamentable it is, not only that such men should here be found, but that also there should be found with them, in such a land as this, numbers of infatuated creatures ready to aid them in the detestable work of ruin and revolution, eagerly devouring the moral poison which, by the panders of infidelity, is so profusely poured into every department of civilized life.

Such an aspect of the times would appal even a Briton, did not the remembrance of past deliverances, in seasons of similar peril, sustain the national mind and lead it to look whither, and whither alone is adequate succour to protect your Majesty and Government both from secret conspiracy and from open violence.

Beseching, therefore, the Supreme Disposer of all events, so to turn the hearts of the disobedient to the wisdom of the just, as to make every misguided individual know his own happiness, in being a native of such a country and a subject of such a Prince; we fervently pray likewise that your Majesty's reign may be long and prosperous, undisturbed either by foreign wars or domestic factions, and that the blassings of our happy Constitution, guarded from the machinations of the disaffected and the bad, by an indissoluble union of the loyal and the good, may descend unimpaired to our latest posterity.

Thomas Wainwright, Mayor of Dudley.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.
WE, your Majesty's loyal subjects, the Minister,

Church Warden, and Inhabitants of the Parish of Kirkby Fleetham, in the North Riding of the County of York, deem it necessary, under the circumstances of the present times, to make this public declaration of our zealous and undiminished attachment to your Majesty's sacred Person, and to the Throne and Constitution of our country.

We know the value of our laws, and we are grateful for the protection, which, to every rank insocicty, they have litherto so fully afforded. We view, therefore, with grief and disgust the vile attempts now unceasingly made, by unprincipled and designing men, to seduce the less enlightened classes to disloyalty and disaffection, and to hold up to their contempt, in the most daring manner, every thing valuable in the State and sacred in Religion.

For ourselves, we hereby express our firm determination, each in our respective stations, to maintain the cause of loyalty, good order, and piety; and we do earnestly hope that the blessings of Providence will attend every effort of your Majesty, to promote "peace and good-will" among us; and that your Majesty may long reign over a prosperous, free, and united people.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, Inhabitants of the King's Town and Parish of Maidstone, in the County of Kent, humbly beg leave to approach your Majesty with renewed assurance of our loyalty and attachment to your Majesty's sacred Person.

We should not presume thus to obtrude upon your Majesty's notice these sentiments of boundenduty and affection, did we not witness the continued and encreasing endeavours of wicked and designing men, to withdraw your faithful subject from their duty to their King, and to urge them, by falsehood and calumny, openly to insult the highest institutions of our country.

When such attempts are publicly made, and a licentious press teems with blasphemous and atrocious publications, directed alike against the Altar and the Throne, we feel ourselves irresistably called upon to renew the pledge of our allegiance, and to lay at your Majesty's feet the assurance of our best exertions to support the fabric of that glorious (Constitution under which we live, affording by its even balance the purest liberty of all, and uniting the best and dearest interests of the Sovereign and his people.

Permit us humbly to add our fervent prayer; that your Majesty's subjects may ever be mindful of the solema command they have received to fear God and honour their King, and that your Majesty may long and prosperously reign; over a faithful, loyal, and affectionate people.

The humble Address of the President and Fellows of Sion College, within the City of ₩E, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the President and Fellows of Sion College, within the City of London, beg leave to offer to your Majesty our renewed assurances of unfeigned attachment to your Majesty's Person and Government, and to the Constitution of this kingdom in Church and State.

A few months only have elapsed since, in common with others of our fellow subjects, we presented to your Majesty our congratulations upon your Majesty's accession to the Throne of these realms; and it is with teelings of deep regret that we now acknowledge the painful necessity of repeating the expressions of our unalterable loyalty and attachment.

But when such blessings as have been long enjoyed under the auspicious Government of your Majesty's Family are invaded, whether by deluded ignorance or by insidious design, we feel it to be our bounden duty to make a fresh declaration of our sentiments.

We beg leave to express to your Majesty our detestation of those attempts which are daily making to root out of the minds of the people, all respect for religion and all dutiful attachment to your Majesty's Person and to the Constitution as by law established.

As Ministers of that Church of which your Majesty is the supreme head on earth, we assure your Majesty that it shall be our uniform endeayour to incolcate those duties of our holy religion which are the best and most effectual support of all legitimate Government, and as far as our influence and example may avail to diffuse those sentiments of constitutional loyalty which we now express to your Majesty.

To these our expressions of duty and attachment, we beg leave to add our fervent prayers, that your Majesty may long reign the revered Sovereign of this kingdom, and that your Majesty's Throne may ever stand on the most solid basis, the affections of your people and the favour of a protecting Providence.

Given under our common seal, this 3d day of January in the year 1820.

[ Delivered by the Rev. Henry Bredd, President.]

To His Most Excellent Majesty KING George the Fourth.

The dutiful and loyal Address of the Freemen and Inhabitants of the City of Gloucester; whose names are hereunto subscribed.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Freemen and Inhabitants of the City of Gloncester, whose names are hereunto subscribed, under a strong sense of those ties which bind us to your Majesty, and to the established Authorities of the realm, beg leave to approach the Throne with our unfeigned assurances of uniform fidelity to your Majesty's Person, of respectful obedience to the unalterable loyalty and attachment to your Royal laws, and of unalterable attachment to the Con-

Influenced by the dictates of gratitude for the blessings which we have so long enjoyed under the mild sway of your Majesty's illustrious House, we cannot but observe with deep regret and just abhorrence the increasing perversion of that noble instrument of liberty and truth, a free press, under the confederate direction of infidelity, sedition and treason. Unrestrained by the dread of legal punishment, they who abuse its energies appear to us more than ever employed with system and design to poison the minds of the people by taking advantage of every opportunity to agitate their feelings and to alienate their affections, not only from the Throne, but from every valuable institution, civil and religious, from all that our ancestors or ourselves have loved, honoured, or reverenced.

Well assured that such arts and such designs have a direct tendency to produce revolution in the State, we feel ourselves called upon, in the present awful times, to make a firm stand against the progress of these evils, and to declare our solemn conviction that the best security for the State is to be found in the steady maintenance of the dignity and constitutional prerogatives of the Crown, indissolubly combined as they are, in this country, with the true liberties of the people.

We pledge ourselves therefore to oppose to the arts and efforts of the disaffected, the front of determined loyalty, and to unite our best exertions in maintaining a due submission to the laws, and especially in resisting with watchful and zealous perseverance all that can affect the free and full exercise of the legislative functions, or the deliberate and impartial administration of justice.

While the agitators of mischief are industriously employed in undermining all veneration for the Altar and the Throne, it is our duty, and shall be our endeavour, to impress upon the minds of the people the solemn injunction of scripture, " fear God and honour the King," as the surest founda-tion of social order and public happiness.

That your Majesty may long continue to govern a great and free people, treading in the steps of your revered Sire of blessed memory, and may ever experience in the cordial attachment of your subjects the same support which sustained him through the political tempests of a most eventful but beneficent reign, is our earnest hope and our ardent prayer.

The humble Address of the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, Clergymen, and Inhabitants of the County of Berwick.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and faithful subjects, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace. Commissioners of Supply, Clergymen, and Inhabitants of the County of Berwick, beg to approach the Throne, with the assurance of our

Person and Family, and earnestly desirous that our unrivalled Constitution should be transmitted unimpaired to our posterity, to express our firm determination to maintain it inviolate in Church and State, against the seditious designs of those who, by means equally unworthy of the British name and character, have aimed at the subversion of our laws, our liberties, and our religion.

The period during which your Majesty has held the supreme direction of the executive Government of this country has been the most eventful in the annals of our history, and to the decision and sound judgement which have characterised the measures of that Government, we attribute, under Providence, the preservation of the manifold blessings which we enjoy. When the triumph of your Majesty's arms had put an end to that reign of tyranny which for a long series of years had desolated so large a portion of the civilized world, the period of returning peace was hailed with gladness by your faithful subjects, but so great and so desirable an event was not obtained without that inconvenience which a rapid transition from a state of long continned warfare had necessarily obtained.

Whilst we saw with deep concern the distresses which at this time pervaded many classes of your Majesty's subjects, we beheld with indignation the conduct of unprincipled men, who, careless of the safety and prosperity of the empire, availed themselves of this season of national suffering to inflame and agitate the public mind.

We have seen with equal detestation the several successive measures of your Majesty's Government misrepresented by the same factious individuals, for the purpose of creating disunion and discord, and of alienating the affections of your Majesty's sub-

Highly as we estimate the value of a free press, as the channel for the diffusion of useful knowledge, and as the safeguard of our civil and religious liberties, we deplore and reprobate the abuse of it to purposes of sedition and impiety, but we feel satisfied that the ingenuous feeling, and the good sense which form so marked a feature in the British character, will at no distant period restore the country to a sound and salutary state.

We beg humbly to offer our assurances that we have every reliance on your Majesty's Government for the safety and welfare of the United Empire, and we pray that your Majesty, surrounded by wise and faithful servants, may enjoy a long, a prosperous, and a happy reign.

Signed, in our name, and by our appointment, by Alexander, Earl of Home, Lord Lieutenant of the County, our Preses, at Greenlaw, the 28th day of December 1820, Home, Preses.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty. May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Freeholders, Commissioners of Supply, Heritors, and Justices of Peace of the County of Peebles, beg leave to approach the Throne with and affection towards your Majesty's most sacred Person, our confidence in your Government as now administered, and our firm adherence to that Constitution under which we live, and which we pro-test our determination to defend against all assaults, as the sure and only bulwark of that rational freedom with which Britons have so long been blessed.

These principles invariably regulate our conduct, and we are at all times prone to express them when the privileges we enjoy are exposed to danger, and we conceive ourselves to be peculiarly called upon at present, when a charge against the Government, equally calumnious and absurd, of a conspiracy against innocence, is with a wicked activity diffused through the country, for the sake, and we fear in a certain degree, with the effect of weakening the loyalty of some, of encouraging the disaffection of others, and of sowing sedition and treason in the minds of the people. When the efforts of a licentious and corrupted portion of the press are incessantly so directed as to agitate the worst, and mislead the best dispositions of our nature; and when the most undisguised attempts are made (we are happy to say without success in our own neighbourhood) to separate from each other the several classes of the community, infusing into the minds of the lower the baneful sentiments of hatred of their superiors, distrust of their lawful rulers, and a desire of change in those venerable institutions under which the greatest attainable degree of happiness and freedom have been long enjoyed by ourselves and our ancestors,

That your Majesty may long reign in health and honour, in wealth and dignity, over kingdoms preserved under your beneficent Government, in peace and plenty, tranquillity and contentment, is the sincere prayer of your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects by whom this Address is humbly presented.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty. May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Haddington, feel ourselves called upon by the circumstances of the times to approach the Throne with renewed assurances of our warm attachment to the Monarchical and Parliamentary Constitution of the kingdom, and of our determined resolution to resist, by every means in our power, the efforts of those who under the colour, sometimes of one specious pretext, sometimes of another, are unceasingly labouring to alienate the affections of the people from the Crown, and to undermine those institutions to which our country owes its moral character, its prosperity, and its greatness.

We have seen with grief and with disgust, the unwearied efforts of a large portion of the public press in this bad cause, more particularly the attempts that have been made to convert the prevailing difference of opinion on the subject of the late the expression of our unshaken and unabated loyalty | proceeding in Parliament into an engine for eradicating from the minds of your Majesty's subjects that love and veneration for the Monarchy, which it has ever been their pride, as a free and loyal people, to cherish and avow.

We have much pleasure in assuring your Majesty that in this county such efforts have been unavailing, and it shall be our endeavour to keep alive among our neighbours those religious and loyal sentiments, without which neither individuals nor nations can hope to prosper.

In conclusion we humbly beg to lay at your Majesty's feet our sincere profession of attachment to your Royal Person and Government, our earnest wish that your Majesty's reign may be long and happy, and our confident persuasion that the firmness and prudence of your Majesty's Councils and the wisdom of Parliament will defeat all attempts on the part of the factious and designing men to disturb, under whatever pretence, the peace and tranquillity of the country.

Signed, by our Preses, at a general meeting, in our name and by our appointment, this 27th day of December 1820 years.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The loyal and dutiful Address of the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Fife, in General Meeting assembled this 28th December 1820.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply, of the County of Fife, in general meeting assembled, respect-fully beg leave to approach the Throne, and to express our sentiments of unshaken fidelity to your Mejesty's Person and Government.

Fully sensible of the inestimable privileges we enjoy under our Constitution, and deeply impressed with the conviction that our power as a nation, and our happiness as a people, are completely interwoven with its preservation, we at all times behold with detestation and abhorrence the attempts of the factious and disaffected to create discontents among the people, and to withdraw them from their loyalty to their King, and their reverence for the laws, and the civil and religious insiitutions of their country.

While we lament that there are still persons who labour to encourage and disseminate such baneful principles, we yet hope that the great body of the nation preserve inviolate their fidelity to their Sovereign, their reverence for the Laws, and their attachment to the Constitution; and we confidently trust that by a steady support of the Throne by the loyal and well-disposed, joined by a firm and energetic administration of the laws on the part of your Majesty's Government, the misguided and the factious may be brought to see their error, and to correct and reform their principles and conduct.

In this so desirable an object, we respectfully beg to assure your Majesty of our most cordial assistance and support, and trusting to a continuance of that wisdom and energy in your Majesty's Councils, which in seasons of unexampled difficulty has so powerfully upheld and maintained the honour of the country, we entreat your Majesty to believe, that no exertion shall be wanting on our part, and no sacrifice shall be deemed too great, which may in the slightest degree contribute to the protection of our Religion, the support of the Throne, the defence of our Constitution, and the maintenance of the internal peace of the country.

Signed in our name, presence, and by our appointment,

Kellie, Vice-Lieutenant County of Fife. [Transmitted by the Earl of Kellie.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The dutiful and loyal Address of the Noblemen, Lieutenancy, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Banff.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Noblemen, Lieutenancy, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply, in a general meeting assembled, approach your royal presence, actuated with the strongest ties of affection to your Majesty's sacred Person, and of firm and undiminished attachment to our happy Constitution in Church and State.

At a period like the present, when the great body of the nation are manifesting their just sense of the civil and religious blessings they enjoy, we feel ourselves called upon to renew our expressions of loyalty and fidelity.

We behold with deep regret the attempts which still continue to be practised by evil and designing persons on the uninformed classes of the people, in different parts of the kingdom, by disseminating with pernicious activity, doctrines too well calculated to subvert the salutary institutions of society, and to undermine the principles of our holy religion.

While we thus express our own sentiments of loyalty and attachment to the Constitution of our country, we beg leave to pledge ourselves to your Majesty, that as far as our example and influence extend, that in our several spheres of action we will exert our most strenuous endeavours to counteract and resist the designs of the disaffected.

It is with genuine satisfaction we assure your Majesty, that a spirit similar to that by which we are actuated, happily predominates throughout this country; a spirit which we will consider a sacred duty individually and collectively to promote.

We beg to add our most anxious wish, our fervent prayer, that your Majesty may long reign on the Throne of these kingdoms, and in the hearts of a loyal, faithful, and united people.

Signed in name, in presence, and by the appointment of a General Meeting held at Bauff, the 2d day of January 1821 years, Fife, P. [Transmitted by the Earl of Fife.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty. May it please your Majesty, WE, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Dumfries, humbly beg leave, at this momentous crisis, to approach the Throne with renewed assurances of our attachment and fidelity to your Majesty, and to express our strong feelings of disapprobation and abhorrence of the insubordination and disaffection which have of late been evinced by a part of your Majesty's subjects.

While we glory in the freedom of the press, we cannot but deeply lament the blasphemous and seditious publications which have occasionally emanated from it, for the purpose of withdrawing the well affected from their allegiance to their Sovereign, and we cannot but consider as most alarming the success which appears to have attended the emissaries of revolution in their strenuous efforts to subvert the civil and religious institutions of the country.

It would be a dereliction of our duty to your Majesty, to the country, and to ourselves, did we hesitate to declare that we will offer a firm and determined opposition to a system so fraught with ruin and misery, and that we will, with all our energies, and at the sacrifice of our properties and lives, support and protect those civil and religious institutions against every attempt to overthrow, impair, or insult them.

We sincerely hope that your Majesty's reign may be long and prosperous, and we anticipate an early change from that state of discontent and irreligion at present prevalent in various parts of your Majesty's dominions, and which have been so materially forwarded by the active agency of turbulent and wicked persons, with the view to overwhelm this free and happy country in anarchy and confusion.

Notwithstanding the dissemination, by the factious and misguided, of principles and tenets so pernicious, and against which we feel ourselves called upon to protest, we are confident that the great majority of your Majesty's subjects are animated with sentiments of the most cordial affection and loyalty, sentiments simular to those with which we ourselves are impressed.

Signed, in the presence, and by appointment of the General Meeting assembled, at the Court-House of Dumfries, this 3d day of January 1821 years, Queensberry, Preses.
