

offer to your Majesty the assurance of our dutiful and zealous attachment to your Majesty's sacred office and Person. We feel ourselves called upon at this perilous time to state, that we view with regret and abhorrence measures brought forward and sentiments declared, the tendency of which evidently is to inflame the passions of the unwary and unenlightened part of our fellow countrymen, mislead their judgment, and thus aggravate the difficulties with which we are now contending. We trust with unshaken confidence to the laws of our inestimable Constitution for the protection of our Altars and the Throne, and we hope, under Divine Providence, your Majesty may long continue to enjoy a prosperous and happy reign over a free and loyal people.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble and dutiful Address of the Minister and principal Inhabitants of the sequestered Village of Leigh upon Mendip, Somersetshire.

Most Gracious and Beloved Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Minister and principal Inhabitants of the retired and sequestered Village of Leigh upon Mendip, beg leave with becoming reverence to approach your Royal Presence, with this assurance of our sincere and unalterable attachment to your Majesty's most august Person, Family, and Government, and to the glorious Constitution which the blessing of Providence has consigned to us, and under which the inhabitants of these kingdoms have lived free and happy for so many generations.

At a time when artful and designing men are endeavouring to contaminate the public mind, and draw aside the unwary into practices of insubordination and anarchy, it becomes the imperious duty of every good and loyal subject, and well-wisher to the permanence of our Constitution, to rally round the Throne, and express his determined resolution to oppose with all his might every such insidious attempt against your Majesty's Government, and our holy religion.

We therefore humbly beg your Majesty's most gracious acceptance of this solemn declaration of our sentiments at this momentous crisis, being firmly persuaded, that nothing would more certainly deprive us of that real liberty we have so long and so happily enjoyed, as the predominance of those principles which are now so openly avowed and industriously inculcated, and that our strongest reliance for its perpetuity must rest in the continued zeal and integrity of your Majesty's Councils, in preserving unto us unimpaired our most excellent Constitution.

We most fervently beseech the Almighty Disposer of events to frustrate the machinations of the disturbers of the public peace and tranquility, and underminers of our holy faith, that loyalty may triumph over disaffection, and true piety prevail over falsehood and licentiousness, and that your Majesty may long be spared to preside over and defend our civil and religious liberties, reigning in the hearts of a faithful and affectionate people.

[Transmitted by George Moon, Esq. M. D.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, Inhabitants and Landholders of the Parish of Stoke next Guildford, in the County of Surrey, beg to approach your Royal Presence to express our reverence of your Majesty's Person, and our veneration of that incomparable Constitution, under which it is our distinguished privilege to live.

In times like the present we feel it our duty to surround the Throne in testimony of our unshaken attachment and loyalty, convinced that our happiness lies in supporting the institutions of our forefathers. Having always held in high admiration the religious and civil rights and liberties, which dawned upon us at the Reformation, were confirmed at the Revolution, and have been transmitted to us by the establishment of your Majesty's Family on the Throne of these kingdoms; we can but reflect with the warmest and most lively sensations of gratitude, that while profaneness and anarchy overspread the moral and political horizon of a neighbouring nation, our favoured isle was happily preserved; and that the recent attempts against our holy religion, and the efforts of the disaffected, by the blessing of God, on the vigilance of your Majesty's Government, have met with a salutary check in the wise administration of the laws of our country. We beg your Majesty to allow us to express a confident hope, that by the wisdom of your Majesty's Councils, under the Providence of God, our beloved country will be defended from whatever might tend to destroy that union, which should subsist between a Sovereign presiding over a free people, and the nation committed to his care.

May there not be wanting to the latest posterity in your Majesty's Family, a Sovereign to wield the Sceptre of these Kingdoms, with that sacred regard to the preservation of those religious and civil rights and liberties which our ancestors have pre-eminently experienced since the accession of your Majesty's House to the Throne of Great Britain; and which we, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, have now the felicity to enjoy, under your Majesty's most gracious reign and protection.

[Delivered by James B. Delap, Esq. and J. Mangles, Esq.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of Peace, and Commissioners of Supply, of the County of Wigtown, respectfully approach the Throne with renewed and unfeigned assurances of our affectionate attachment and fidelity to your Royal Person, and sincere veneration for the glorious Constitution of this Realm; and to declare our firm and unalterable determination to defend and maintain inviolate
