

can ever your Majesty possesses a Throne in every virtuous heart; and we sincerely pray that the Almighty may still afford you His sheltering protection, and continue His blessings to us by encompassing your Royal Person with His choicest favours, and bestowing on you the happiness of a long, splendid, and prosperous reign.

In testimony whereof we have hereunto affixed the seal of our ancient and loyal Corporation; on Monday, January 8, 1821.

[Presented by the Lord Mayor of Dublin, accompanied by Alderman Darley.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, the Master, Wardens, and Brethren of the Corporation of Smiths, or Guild of St. Loy, Dublin, beg leave, at this truly awful and critical moment, to approach your Majesty with the most profound veneration and respect, and to assure you that we yield to none of your faithful and loyal subjects in the strongest attachment and regard to your sacred Person, the welfare of our mild and beneficent Constitution, and the solemn rites of the established Religion,

With these sentiments strongly impressed on our Irish hearts, allow us to implore the God of Mercies to bless you with a long and prosperous reign, and to turn from you all those who, from mistaken prejudices or perverted minds, would sap the foundation (if they could) of our Religion and blessed Constitution, and bury with those all settled Governments in one common ruin.

Such are the sentiments which we profess in sincerity, and which we would contend for while a drop of blood remained in our veins.

Given under our Corporation seal, at our Hall, in the City of Dublin, this 1st day of January 1821.

[Presented by the Lord Mayor of Dublin, accompanied by Alderman Darley.]

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the Inhabitants of the Island of Portland, actuated by the most determined and unalterable attachment to your Majesty's august Person and Government, most humbly beg leave to approach your Throne with the renewed assurances of our unshaken and unabated allegiance. United with the great body of your Majesty's loyal and virtuous people, we most respectfully venture to express our firm resolution to defend, support, and uphold your Majesty's sacred Person and Dignity, the glorious Constitution of our country, its Religion, Laws, and Institutions. To the sound wisdom and energy of your Majesty's Councils, surrounded by those Ministers whose faithful co-operation enabled your Majesty to terminate a war in a manner so glorious and triumphant to Great Britain, we, in common with the nation, owe a debt of humble gratitude.

We look forward with honest exultation to the period when, sound reason having dispelled factious delusion, all your Majesty's loyal subjects will avow the blessings they enjoy under your Majesty's mild and beneficent reign, which we most anxiously hope may long continue over a loyal, grateful, and happy people.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Capital Burgesses, and other Inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Great Torrington, in the County of Devon, deeply sensible of the many great blessings which our country has enjoyed under the mild and paternal sway of your Majesty's illustrious House, and alarmed at the danger which threatens all that is dear to Britons, from the base attempts of designing men, humbly approach your Majesty with our renewed and earnest expressions of unalterable fidelity and attachment to your Majesty's Person and Government, and of unfeigned gratitude for that happy Constitution under which we live. We have witnessed with regret and abhorrence the wide dissemination of principles, by the aid of a licentious press, which directly tend to the destruction of our Holy Religion, and the subversion of all legitimate Authority. We have seen the base attempts so industriously and perseveringly made by wicked persons, under the specious name of reform, to alienate the affections of your loyal subjects, by blaspheming and turning into ridicule the religion of the land, by insulting the Majesty of the Throne, and by the most virulent attacks directed against your Majesty's Government.

We feel it to be the duty of every good subject boldly to stand forward in opposition to such principles, and fearlessly to avow his abhorrence of such conduct; and while we firmly rely upon your Majesty's paternal care, and the wisdom and firmness of your Councils, for the adoption of such measures as may have the effect of repressing that spirit of licentiousness and insubordination so unhappily prevalent in these times, we pledge ourselves to your Majesty that no exertions shall be wanting on our parts, in our respective spheres, to frustrate the malevolent designs of men, who would remove from the hearts of the ignorant and unwary all fear of God, that they may be the better prepared to dishonour the King; and that we will, by every means in our power, support your Majesty in the exercise of your just and lawful prerogatives and the due execution of the laws, convinced that in so doing we shall best contribute to the security of all those invaluable Institutions which are the just pride of our beloved country, and the envy and admiration of all the civilized world.
