

residing in the county of Middlesex, beg leave to express to your Majesty the feelings of indignation and regret with which they received the intelligence of the atrocious attack made upon your Majesty on the 19th ultimo, and to offer, at the same time, their heartfelt congratulations at your Majesty having escaped therefrom without any serious injury to your royal person.

Your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, as aforesaid, having repeatedly assembled for the purpose of petitioning for a measure of reform in the Commons' House of Parliament, are anxious to avail themselves of the opportunity that offers on the present occasion to return their most grateful and most humble acknowledgment to your Majesty for having been most graciously pleased to take the prayers of their petitions into favourable consideration, and for the effectual measures decided upon by your Majesty in order to insure the accomplishment of that object; and it is their earnest prayer, that God will preserve to them the blessings which they enjoy, and insure to them the prospects which they entertain under your Majesty's just and mild government, and continue to watch over and protect a life so justly dear to them.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Dean and Prebendaries of the Cathedral and Metropolitan Church of Christ, Canterbury.

May it please your Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Dean and Prebendaries of the Cathedral and Metropolitan Church of Christ, Canterbury, beg to assure your Majesty, that we have partaken largely in those feelings of indignation and alarm, which have filled the hearts of all your loyal subjects, at the imminent danger to which your Majesty was exposed, in the atrocious attempt lately made against your sacred person.

We should consider that we were wanting in duty to your Majesty, if we neglected to approach your Majesty with the testimony of our feelings on this awful occasion, and with unfeigned assurances of our ardent attachment and devotion to your Majesty's person.

We, therefore, humbly implore your Majesty to receive the homage of our fervent congratulations, on your having been preserved by Divine Providence from the desperate and execrable attempt of a traitorous assassin.

And we earnestly pray, that, under the blessing of the Almighty, your Majesty may continue for many years to reign over a loyal and dutiful people.

Unto His Most Gracious Majesty WILLIAM the FOURTH, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland KING.

The loyal and dutiful Address of the Presbytery in London in Communion with the Established Church of Scotland.

May it please your Majesty.

WE, the Ministers and Elders of the Presbytery of London in Communion with the Established Church of Scotland, participating in the feeling of abhorrence experienced by all classes of our fellow-subjects, at the atrocious attack which was recently made on your Majesty's sacred person, beg leave to lay before your Majesty our unanimous and cordial congratulations on that merciful interposition of Divine Providence, by which your Majesty has been rescued from danger, and the blessings of the present reign are still preserved to the people of these realms.

Deeply sensible of the invaluable civil and religious privileges which we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and equitable government, it is our fervent prayer, that that Gracious and Almighty God who has hitherto shielded your Majesty's person, may ever continue to be your Majesty's defence, rendering your reign long, peaceful, and prosperous, blessing you with the joys of His salvation, and preserving you, after many days, unto His heavenly kingdom.

Signed in our presence, and by our appointment, at the Scots' Church, in Swallow-street, the 13th day of July, in the year 1832.

James Reid Brown, Moderator of the Presbytery; John Crombie, D. D. Clerk of Presbytery.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the President, Vice-Presidents, and Council of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, beg leave to approach your Majesty to express our deep distress at the late atrocious and traitorous attack upon your Majesty's most sacred person, and our indignation that any individual in your Majesty's dominions could be guilty of contemplating so desperate an outrage.

We humbly offer our sincere and heartfelt congratulations on your Majesty's providential escape from so malicious an assault, and our fervent prayer that your Majesty may be long spared to reign over a loyal, happy, and united people.

Given under our common seal, at the College, this 17th day of July 1832,

John P. Vincent, President.

To the KING's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's loyal subjects, the Noblemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the county of Argyll, beg leave to approach your Majesty with feelings of the most affectionate loyalty to express our horror and indignation at the late atrocious and treasonable attack upon your Majesty's sacred person. We offer our heartfelt congratulations on your Majesty's safety, and our earnest prayers that your Majesty may long be spared to rule over a loyal and devoted people.

Signed in name and by appointment of the meeting, this 17th day of July 1832,

R. MacLachlan, Preses.

The humble Address of the Grand Jury of the County of Berks, appointed at Abingdon, at the Summer Assizes, July 16, 1832.

WE, the Grand Jury assembled at the Assizes for the county of Berks, at Abingdon, this 16th of July, humbly beg leave to approach your Majesty with sentiments of the truest loyalty and most af-
