And we further recommend and propose, that nothing herein contained shall prevent us from recommending and proposing other measures relating to either of the said bishopricks of Carlisle and Chester, in conformity with the provisions of the said Act.

All of which we humbly recommend and propose to your Majesty in Council.

(An alphabetical and numbered List of the Addresses presented to Her Majesty, is printed at the end of the Addresses.)

Whitehall, September 5, 1837.

THE following Addresses, having been transmitted to the Right Honourable Lord John Russell, one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, by the several persons whose names are respectively subjoined to each Address, were by him presented to Her Majesty, who was pleased to receive the same very graciously:

No. 1.

To the QUEEN's Most Excellent Majesty.

WE, the Noblemen, Clergy, Gentlemen, Freeholders, and other Inhabitants of the County of Fermanagh, in Ireland, beg leave, with all humility and respect, to offer to your Majesty, on your Accession to the Throne of the British empire, the assurance of our loyalty and devoted attachment to your Royal Person and Crown.

Having been uniformly and steadily attached to the interest of your Illustrious Family, which we have constantly held to be most intimately and essentially connected with the maintenance and preservation of the dearest rights of your people, we should on any such occasion have been forward to declare, that we are still animated by the same spirit of constitutional loyalty which honourably characterised our fathers in the great struggle of the Revolution, and has since displayed itself in their descendants, in their firm opposition to the efforts of a rebellion, having for its object the dismemberment of the empire, and the destruction of its power.

The actual circumstances of the present times, and your Majesty's Accession to the Throne, render it our bounden and sacred duty to approach your Majesty with these expressions of our devoted loyalty and attachment.

We hold no divided allegiance, nor are we disposed to abandon, for the doubtful advantage of speculative changes, those institutions which have raised this empire to so high a station among the nations of the earth.

We reverence, with undiminished regard, the fundamental principles of a constitution which has balanced, with the steady wisdom of a House of Lords, the deliberations of an assembly more accessible to popular influences, and has established a Protestant Church, not merely as a creditable and useful ally of the Government, but as intimately associated with, and directly influencing, all its combinations.

Cherishing these principles as our most valued inheritance, we look forward with ardent hope to your Majesty's future reign, and we implore the Supreme Ruler of nations that it, may be rendered glorious and happy, by settling and securing those important interests which an eager and excessive desire of change has recently appeared to endanger.

H. W. Barton, Sheriff, County Fermanagh.

Enniskillen, July 26th 1837.
