

Venice, Sept. 30. A ship newly arrived from Zante, informs us, that the Turks continue their Assaults upon the Town of Candia with great fury, though but small success, having not yet gained any considerable advantages upon them, that their Army is much lessened, not only by the numbers killed during the Siege, which are very considerable, but by sickness occasioned amongst them by the great want of necessary Provisions in their Camp, which has invited a considerable number of them to steal away, wanting no opportunities that our men can furnish them with, to convey them out of the Island.

Another Vessel arriving here from Lisbon, touched in her way at Zant, confirming the abovesaid relation, informing us also of the safe arrival of the Marabotto in that Port, in which were embarked 800 souldiers, and 300 Banditti added to them out of the Island to be employed in the Defence of Candia, and that several other Vessels lay there ready laden with Provisions and Ammunition, which would all sail together with the first fair wind.

Yesterday arrived here a Caich from Dalmatia, who tells us, that General Cornaro is upon his way hither, and may arrive either this day or tomorrow; his Successor Priuli lies ready to put to Sea, the Gally that is to transport him being fitted up to receive him. The Winter is now so near that they are now out of all fear of any Attempts that can be this year made on them by the Turks; however General Cornaro has been very careful to put all places into the best posture of defence imaginable, and has drawn 400 Foot into Cattaro, as an addition to that Garrison, where they are to continue all this Winter. Several Vessels are suddenly to put to Sea from hence, where are to embark some Horse and Foot which are to be employed in Dalmatia.

Four great ships lye ready to set sail, all of them laden with Provisions of War for the supply of Candia.

His Excellency Grimani, designed Ambassador from this Republick to Rome, will in few dayes be ready to depart from hence, a Gally attending him for his passage to Ancona, from whence he intends to pass over land.

The Senate was the other night at a scrutiny for the election of another Ambassador to be dispatched to the Emperors Court, but the choice is not as yet made.

On Sunday next will be launched a great ship built upon the account of several private persons, which will carry 60 great guns. Two other large ships that are on the Stocks upon the Publick account, will in short time be finished; Signior Nani chosen General of Candia, is busily providing for his Voyage, and Order is taken for a strong Convoy to be fitted out with all the hast imaginable, to be sent into the Levant.

Hamburg, Oct. 4. The 20th past, the King, Queen and Prince of Denmark, with the young Duke of Saxony and his Lady, together with several other persons of eminent quality, arrived at Altenaw, not far distant from this place, where they were cheerfully received and entertained by the Citizens, who were drawn up in four Companies, discharging several Volleys at their entry, which were presently answered by the great Ordnance on that side of this City; Several English ships which were then newly arrived here, firing also their Guns. The Queen with the two Princesses came privately to see this Town, but unwilling to be known, departed again without any Ceremony.

The 19th past they diverted themselves at Wansbeck, viewing also most of the pleasant Gardens near this place, in most of which they were nobly treated by the Owners, with much satisfaction. Several persons of Quality and Ambassadors are suddenly expected by the King at Gluckstadt, where 'tis believed he may yet continue for a Month or five Weeks longer.

From Mayence we are told, That his Electoral Highness intends in few dayes for Aschaffenburg, from whence after some little stay, he will pass to Wurtzburg, where he will continue all the Winter. Some progress has been lately made in the examination of the Baron of Reiffenberg whose crimes appear very Enormous. His Highness designs to dispatch some persons of the Great Chapter to examine him farther at Aschaffenburg, and afterwards to proceed to Sentence, which will condemn him to a perpetual Imprisonment.

The Abbot of Gravel continues his residence for the most part in that Electors Court, where is also present the Sieur de Risseaucour sent thither from the Duke of Lorraine, with several Envoyes of other Princes.

Lyme, Oct. 7. On Saturday last arrived here three English Vessels laden with Linnen from Morlaix, where the people are generally apprehensive, and talk much of a breach with Holland. Several pieces of ships have been lately driven ashore here since the late tempestuous weather, which makes us fear much the fate of several ships which are waiting in this and our Neighbouring Ports. One Vessel from Barbados, which we feared had miscarried at Sea, is now in view making in for this Harbour.

Weymouth, Oct. 7. The sixth instant arrived here an English Vessel with Linnen from Morlaix, bound for Apfom, having left several Barques behind her, all of them lading for England, to the great satisfaction of the French for the revival of the Trade of the place.
