Lord Chamberlain's-Office, February 27, 1840.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Her Majesty will hold a Levee at St. James's-Palace, on Friday the 6th of March next, at two o'clock.

REGULATIONS TO BE OBSERVED AT THE QUEEN'S LEVEES, AT ST. JAMES'S-PALACE.

The Noblemen and Gentlemen who propose to attend Her Majesty's Levees at St. James's-Palace, are requested to bring with them two cards with their names thereon written, one to be left with the Queen's Page in attendance in the Presence-Chamber, and the other to be delivered to the Lord in Waiting, who will announce the name to Her Majesty.

Those Gentlemen who are to be presented are hereby informed, it is absolutely necessary that their names, with the name of the Nobleman or Gentleman who is to present them (not that of the Lord in Waiting), should be sent to the Lord Chamberlain's Office, before twelve o'clock on the day but one previous to each Levee, in order that they may be submitted for the Queen's approbation; it being Her Majesty's command, that no presentation shall hereafter be made at the Levees, but in conformity with the above regulations; and further, that no person shall be admitted, on any pretence whatever, who has not been so presented.

It is particularly requested, that Gentlemen who are to be presented at the Levees will have their names distinctly written upon the card to be delivered to the Lord in Waiting, in order that there may be no mistake in announcing them to the Queen.

The state apartments will not be open for the reception of Company coming to Court, until half past one o'clock.

Lord Chamberlain's-Office, February 14, 1840.

BY COMMAND OF HER MAJESTY.

Joseph Romilly, Registry of the University; which Address Her Majesty was graciously pleased to receive on the Throne:

To the QUEEN's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Cambridge.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Cambridge, beg leave to offer to your Majesty our sincere and cordial congratulations upon your Majesty's Marriage with His Royal Highness the Prince Albert of Saxe Coburg and Gotha.

Amidst the universal joy diffused by an event so deeply interesting to your Majesty and your people, it would be unpardonable in us, distinguished as the University of Cambridge has ever been by the protection and support of the Crown, and especially by the favour and munificence of your Majesty's Royal House, to be wanting in a prompt and zealous expression of our duty and attachment to your Majesty; we approach, then, your Royal presence, humbly tendering the assurance that we hail with the liveliest satisfaction an alliance, which, founded no less on affection than on a provident attention to the common weal, opens the fairest prospect, under the Divine blessing, of increasing happiness to your Majesty, and of additional security to the best and dearest interests of the Empire.

His Royal Highness the Prince Albert, independently of the virtues and high qualities which have obtained for him the splendid distinction that he now enjoys, has other peculiar and powerful claims upon the regard of the British nation; in this exalted personage we behold a descendant of that ancient Saxon race, to whose wisdom and valour we justly ascribe the origin of our envied constitution and national greatness; in him also we recognize a Prince who numbers amongst his ancestors those illustrious ornaments of the House of Saxony, through whose effectual aid and generous devotedness to the cause of pure religion, the great champion of the Reformation was mainly enabled, under Divine Providence, to triumph over his adversaries, and to establish the Protestant faith upon a firm, and, as we humbly trust, upon an immovable foundation.

Animated by a grateful sense of the many privileges and benefits which we have so long enjoyed under the parental sway of the House of Brunswick, we pray your Majesty to believe that, as it is our bounden duty, so it will be our earnest and constant endeavour to promote, within the walls of our venerable University, the cause of religion and learning, and to instil into the minds of the youth entrusted to our care sound principles of loyalty, a warm and steady attachment to the constitution in Church and State, and sentiments of the most profound devotion to your Majesty's Royal Person and Government.

May Almighty God vouchsafe to bless the auspicious union upon which we now offer our humble congratulations, and may your Majesty long continue in the possession of every earthly good, to reign over a dutiful, loyal, and united people.

To which Address Her Majesty was pleased to return the following most gracious Answer:

"I am much gratified that you should, upon this occasion, renew your assurances of attachment to my Person and Government.

"I am duly sensible of the value of the historical recollections which connect the illustrious House of Saxony with the great cause of the Reformation.

"I shall ever hold it to be my duty to remember the services, and promote the interests, of the University of Cambridge; and, in accepting your congratulations upon this union, I assure you, that you may rely upon my desire to encourage science, and upon my protection of institutions calculated to diffuse amongst my people the benefits of enlightened education, and the blessings of pure religion."

St. James's-Palace, February 25, 1840.

THIS day the Lord Bishop of London, and the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's, with a Deputation of the Clergy, waited upon Her Majesty to present the following Address to Her Majesty, which Her Majesty was graciously pleased to receive on the Throne:

To the QUEEN'S Most Excellent Majesty.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Bishop of London, the Dean and Chapter of Saint Paul's, and the Clergy of the Cities of London and Westminster, humbly request permission to approach your Majesty, with the expression of our heartfelt joy upon the happy occasion of your Majesty's marriage to His Royal Highness Prince Albert of Saxe Cobourg and Gotha, whose illustrious House has long been distinguished by its attachment to the principles of that reformed religion which has for its chief bulwark the Established Church of this realm.

This auspicious event is regarded by us, in common with all your Majesty's loyal people, with feelings of the deepest interest, as being calculated, under the Divine favour, to ensure to your Majesty the blessing of domestic felicity amidst all the cares and anxieties of state.

It will be the subject of our earnest prayers to the Throne of Grace, that your Majesty may long be spared, together with your Royal Consort, to fulfil the duties, and to enjoy the happiness of that holy state in which you have been joined together by God, and to be an example and encouragement to His people committed to your charge.

To which Address Her Majesty was pleased to return the following most gracious Answer:

"I thank you sincerely for this expression of your wishes for the continuance of my present happiness, and I am much pleased that you should consider this event in connexion with the interests of the established religion of the country.

"The union, which is the subject of your congratulations, was contracted with a firm reliance that, through the blessing of Divine Providence, it would be found as acceptable to my faithful people, as it was essential to my own domestic felicity."

St. James's-Palace, February 25, 1840.

THE following Address was this day presented to Her Majesty, which Her Majesty was graciously pleased to receive on the Throne:

To VICTORIA, Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging.

The respectful Address of the Members of a Meeting appointed to represent the religious Society of Friends in Great Britain and Ireland.

May it please the Queen,

AS A Christian and loyal body, permit us on the important and deeply interesting occasion of thy marriage, to convey to thee the renewed assurance of our cordial attachment to thy Person and Government.

The institution of marriage we have ever regarded as a Divine ordinance, and it is our prayer to God that His blessing may richly crown thy union, and render it conducive alike to thy own happiness, and the welfare of thy people.

It is with heartfelt satisfaction that we anticipate thy future happiness in this union, and earnest are our desires for thee, and for thy Consort, that, walking in the fear of the Lord, your example may be so ordered in all things by that wisdom which is from above, as powerfully to promote the cause of true religion and virtue throughout the land.

The real prosperity of our beloved country is an object dear to our hearts, and under this feeling we would express our belief that in proportion as pure practical Christianity is permitted to sway thy counsels, and is promoted amongst thy subjects, will this prosperity be most effectually advanced, social order maintained, and thy Throne established in the affections of thy people.

May He, by whom Kings reign, and Princes decree justice, bless thee O! Queen, and increasingly make thee a blessing to thy own; and to surrounding nations, and may'st thou, at the end of thy days, through the mercy of God in Christ Jesus our Saviour, be received into everlasting glory.

To which Address Her Majesty was pleased to return the following most gracious Answer:

"I earnestly join in your prayers for the welfare of my people, and acknowledge with thanks your interest for my own happiness, which is inseparably connected with the subject of your congratulations.

"I feel with you that the prosperity of nations is most effectually secured by observing the precepts, and by cherishing the benevolent spirit of the Christian religion."
