

be legally vested in any other person or persons, and in every such case by the person or persons possessing such right of nomination, subject to all the laws in force relating to stipendiary curates, except as to the assigning of salaries to such curates; provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Commissioners, with the consent of the bishop of the diocese, to determine whether any and what part or proportion of the fees or dues for marriages, baptisms, churchings, and burials shall be assigned to any such curate; and whether banns of marriage shall be published, and marriages or baptisms, churchings or burials, shall be solemnized or performed in any such chapel or not; and in any case in which marriages shall be allowed in any such chapel, the Commissioners shall cause the boundaries of the district assigned to such chapel to be enrolled in the High Court of Chancery, and in the office of the Registry of the diocese, any thing in the said recited Act to the contrary notwithstanding; and no such chapelry shall become a benefice by reason of any augmentation of the maintenance of the curate, by any grant or bounty under the provision of any Act or Acts of Parliament, or law or laws for augmenting small livings, any thing in such Act or Acts of Parliament, or law or laws, to the contrary notwithstanding:

And whereas by another Act, passed in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to amend the Acts for building, and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes;" and by another Act, made and passed in the first and second years of His late Majesty King William the Fourth, intituled "An Act to amend and render more effectual an Act, passed in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of His late Majesty, intituled 'An Act to amend the Acts for building, and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes;'" and also by another Act, made and passed in the second and third years of His said late Majesty, intituled "An Act to render more effectual an Act, passed in the fifty-ninth year of His late Majesty King George the Third, intituled 'An Act to amend and render more effectual an Act, passed in the last session of Parliament, for building, and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes;'" further provisions are made for carrying such divisions into effect:

And whereas the said Commissioners have made a representation to Her Majesty in Council, bearing date the eighteenth day of August one thousand eight hundred and forty-two, in the words following, viz.

"Your Majesty's Commissioners for building new churches, appointed by virtue of an Act, passed in the fifty-eighth year of the reign of His Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act for building, and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes;" continued by an Act, passed in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Fourth, intituled "An Act to amend the Acts for building, and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes;" and further continued by an Act, passed in the first year of your Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to prolong, for ten years, Her Majesty's Commission for building new churches;" beg leave humbly to represent to your Majesty, that, when the last census was taken, the parish of Kensington, in the county of Middlesex and diocese of London (exclusive of the district parish of Brompton), contained a population of twenty-six thousand eight hundred and twenty-six persons:

"That besides the parish church, which affords accommodation to one thousand five hundred persons, there is one chapel, built by your Majesty's said Commissioners, called St. Barnabas, in the said parish, which will accommodate one thousand five hundred and sixteen persons, including five hundred and twenty-two free seats appropriated to the use of the poor; and that divine service is regularly performed therein:

"Your Majesty's said Commissioners beg leave further to represent to your Majesty, that, having taken into consideration all the circumstances attending this parish, it appears to them to be expedient, that a particular district, consisting of the south westernmost part of the parish of Kensington, should be assigned to the said chapel, under the provisions of the sixteenth section of an Act, passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act to amend and render more effectual an Act, passed in the last session of Parliament, for building, and promoting the building, of additional churches in populous parishes;" and that such district should be named, "The Chapelry District of St. Barnabas, Kensington," with boundaries as follow:

"The boundary commences in the centre of Newland-street, proceeds along the centre of that street, in a southerly direction, and then in an imaginary straight line to the north east corner of Earl's-court-terrace; thence it proceeds, in an imaginary straight line, at the back of the garden of Earl's-court-house, to the boundary line of the district parish of Brompton; thence it proceeds, in a south westerly direction, along the boundary line of that district parish and the parish of Kensington, as far as the parish of Fulham; thence it proceeds, in a northerly direction, along the boundary line (the creek or common sewer) of the respective parishes of Fulham, Hammersmith, and Kensington, as far as the High Uxbridge-road; thence it proceeds, in an easterly direction, along the centre of that road, passing Addison-road, as far as the eastern extremity of the garden of Colonel Fox; thence it proceeds, in a south easterly direction, at the back of the garden walls of the houses situated on the eastern side of Addison-road, as far as the north east corner of the chapel of St. Barnabas; thence it proceeds, in an easterly direction, by an imaginary line, in the front of, but not including, Holland-house, to the point of intersection of the two public footpaths, one of which skirts, in a northerly direction, the grounds of Holland-house, and the other leads, in
