We, the undersigned, being three of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, do hereby, under the authority of an Act, passed in the session of Parliament holden in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of Her present Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled "An Act to amend the laws relating to the Customs," hereby appoint Chester to be a port in that part of the United Kingdom called England, and do hereby declare, that the limits of the said port shall commence at the eastern end of the old bridge across the river Dee, in the city of Chester; then continued along the eastern side of the river Dee, in the county of Chester, to the Red Stones at Hoylake, in the said county, and from thence, in a direct line, to the river Voryd or Clwyd river; and so continuing along the sea shore and the west side of the river Dee, in the county of Flint, to the western end of the said old bridge, and including the whole of the rivers Dee and Voryd or Clwyd, and the mouths of all rivers, brooks, and water courses falling therein:

And we do hereby appoint the following place, within the said port of Chester, to be a legal quay for the lading and unlading of goods, and do hereby declare the bounds and extent of such quay to be as follows, that is to say, all that open place extending from the new railway bridge over the river Dee, in the city of Chester, along the east side of the said river downwards to the sluice or run of water on the same side of the river running into the said river Dee, near the Cheese Stage, and extending in length eight hundred and eighty yards, little more or less.

And we do hereby annul all former limits of the said port of Chester, and all former legal quays already set out and appointed within the same.

Whitehall, Treasury-chambers, the 16th day of December 1847.
