Newcastle, Nov. 23.

This morning sailed from this Port about 20 laden Colliers, most of them intended for the Coasts, many more are laden and may suddenly put to sea.

Plymouth Nov. 24. This day arrived here a Ship of this Town which came with the rest of the Fleet from the Barbados, but finds the greater welcome, because safely come into Harbor contrary to our expectation, having been misreported to have foundered in her passage, and to have been lost with all her men; she left the Fleet on Thursday was seven night off the Lands end, and has been since kept out at sea by ill weather, and heard no news of the rest of her company.

Hull, Nov. 24. On Saturday last a new Ship belonging to Newcastle, laden from Holland, was put on shore near Bridlington, where they saved and landed their goods, but the Vessel lies in much danger. There are now riding in that Bay 6 or 7 light Ships intended for Newcastle, and a great Flyboat for Norway, laden with Deals for London, all which are there detained by ill weather; one Ship only belonging to the Key was by the violence of the weather forced from her Anchors and driven to sea, and tis feared may have miscarried.

This night sailed from hence the Fonas of Hamborough, laden with Lead and Cloth homewards bound; two Danes with Malt, and one Ship for Newcastle. To morrow may put to sea the Two Sisters of Middlebourgh, a large Flyboat, two Ships for Rouen, and one for Amsterdam, all of them laden with Butter, Lead, Cloth and other Commodities.

The Diamond and Roebuck are taking in men, and intend to sail in few dayes, carrying with them the Stat-house of Harlem, a Man of War formerly taken by the Swallow.

Genova, Nov. 12. Our Convoy intended for Spain is still in Port, expecting only fair weather. From the Borders we are told that there has lately happened an Encounter between the Subjects of the Duke of Savoy, and those of this Republick, but the occasion of the Quarrel being only some misunderstanding risen about the feeding of their Cattle, tis not believed there will follow any evil consequences.

From Modena we are informed that there is lately concluded a Marriage between the Duke of Parma, and the Princess Mary Daughter to the late Duke Francis, to the great satisfaction of both Courts, and that preparation is making for the publique solemnity thereof with all the pomp and magnificency accustomed on such occasions.

From Turin we are told, that after several Conferences held with the Deputies from the City of Geneva, all those Differences are supposed to be fully composed and ended, to the great satisfaction of the Duke of Savoy, and all other parties concerned therein.

The Duke of Nevers being well recovered of his Distemper, which for some time detained him in Piedmont, intends in few dayes to depart thence to our Lady of Loretto, to pay a Vow made by him during his indisposition.

Venice, Novemb. 18. By the arrival of a Courier extraordinary from Rome, we have received letters from Candia bearing date Octob. 6. which tells us, that notwithstanding the great losses the Turks have received in their Assaults above, and in their Mines under ground, they still carry on the work with much obstinacy; and though many of their Mines have been discovered, and their labour frustrated with much slaughter of their men, yet by several approaches of their Galleries they make their advances with extraordinary industry, and have lately sprung divers Mines upon the Trenches of the City, with no small damage to the Palisades of the Falsbray adjoining, and have thrown in so large a quantity of Earth into the Trenches, that our people will find it a business of great difficulty to clear it again.

In the mean while the besieged diligently attend every motion of the Enemy, and omit no opportunity of annoying them both by their Mines and Sallyes, to the great destruction of the Turks, who are nevertheless so far advanced, that they have ruined both the Hornes or Corners of the Fort Panigra, and made there a large breach, leaving but little space for us to cast up any considerable new work to oppose them, the Palisados being in a great measure thrown down.

Our men are now busily employed in placing new Palisados upon the Falsbray, and defending those that remain in the Panigra from the Turks Mines, which they work with all art and subtilty imaginable; One whereof they sprung under the half-moon at the right hand of the Panigra, which with its ruines almost filled a part of the Trench near the front of the Bulwark Sethlem, which the Turks were resolved to have taken the advantage of, and were that night preparing for a storm, and our men in expectation of them were placed in the best order imaginable to receive them; but by a violent rain which fell that night, they were forced to give over their design, we having in the mean time the opportunity of clearing the Trench. Since this they sprung another Mine in the Graft, which removed many of our Palisados, and much endangered the person of that excellent Commander the Marquess Ville.

Another Mine of the Enemies which was almost ready to spring, was opportunely discovered by our men, and the Powder removed, the Enemy afterwards firing the train, and in some numbers expecting the issue, were suddenly set upon by a party of the besieged, who did considerable execution on them, and to prevent some others of the Enemies Mines, gave fire to two of their own near the Fort Mocenigo, and one under the Panigra of 35 Barrells of Powder, which buried many Turks in the ruines, and much disordered and spoiled several Mines they had made in those places.

They tell us also that the Garison of Candia being supplied with a considerable number of fresh souldiers, and some Horse that were newly landed there from Cerigo and other parts, it was immediately resolved that a lusty Sally should be made upon the Enemy, which was accordingly put in execution, all the souldiers that could conveniently be spared from their Posts, marching out with their valiant Officers, and falling on upon the Turks, with whom began a sharp fight; when the Turks drawing up all the forces they were able to make, maintained the dispute for two hours, endeavouring to have taken this advantage of getting ground upon ours in their retreat, but they found the service so very warm that they were forced from their intentions and beaten back into their own Trenches, having lost great numbers of their souldiers and many of their principal Captains and Commanders. The Grand Visier having also run a great danger of being either kill'd or taken Prisoner; several of our men fell in this service, but not considerable to that of the Enemy.

From the Enemies Camp we are informed that the Turks Army being now reduced to a body, not exceeding 18000 men, were resolved to put the whole business to a speedy Issue, and to make their last experiment by a general Assault.

A Ship arrived here from Smyrna tells us that at Milo they were informed by a Barque which came the 23th of October from Candia; that the Turks had accordingly made a lusty Assault upon the Town, and were beaten off with much slaughter, but gives no account of particulars.

We know not yet how to believe the late reports from Zante of the failing of the Siege, since we are certainly informed that the Grand Visier had sent to Salonique for conveniences for the building of Huts and making Tents, intending to continue all the Winter before it.

Another of our Great men of War is launched at the Arsenal, and great store of new Musquets try'd and in readiness, and several Ships with all diligence fitting up and launching, which in little time will put to sea for Candia.

Hague, Nov. 23. The several Admiralties are all met together at the Hague, to consider what Naval Forces shall be prepared, and what Fleet equipped against the next Spring. The Assembly of the States have not yet done any thing more then disposed of some few Charges.

Upon Examinations of the Accounts of the Expences during the late War, several persons are found faulty in their Accounts, and the Treasurer General is confined to his house till farther Order.

The Ratifications of the Treaty with Sweden are not yet exchanged, the obstacle having hitherto been some difficulties made by the West-India Company in raising the sum of 100 thousand Crowns in satisfaction of the Ship Christine confiscated by them.

The East-India Company intend to send 20 men of War and 4000 men to reinforce their Garrisons, which are of late much weakened, in several parts of those Eastern Countries.

On Saturday last, the States of Holland nominated Prince Maurice de Nassau to be employed to his Imperial Majesty in Quality of their Ambassador extraordinary, and with him Monsieur Bevering to be sent under the same Character, their Equipage intended to be splendid and Honourable, but the subject of the Embassy said to be only Complement.

The Deputies of the respective Admiralties after some conference had with the States, are ordered to take care for the fitting up a Fleet consisting of between 60 and 70 stout men of War against the next Spring, for the security of their Coasts and Trade.

Ditto, Decem. 1. Yesterday the Heer Amstronghen being returned from his Embassy to his Majesty of Denmark, gave an account to the States in their Assembly of the whole progress of his Negotiation, to their great satisfaction, who returned him their thanks, with a commendation of his care and prudence in the discharge of the trust reposed in him.

The day before the States Deputies had a Conference with the Ministers of the Dukes of Lunenburg about the business of the arrears of Subsidies, and the Forces that were to be kept on foot by the said Dukes.

The late storms at Sea have occasioned great Wrecks at Sea, five or six ships are lately stranded near Galice, and amongst them one of considerable value, laden with piece-goods for Rouen.

Yesterday were lifted two Companies of Sea Soldiers, who were sent away under the command of Captain Van Assendelft for Briel.

Paris, Nov. 30. His Majesty is wholly intent upon his Preparations against the Springs, that if the Treaty which has been so much discoursed of of late, take no effect, he may have in readiness several powerful Armies to attack the Spaniards in all places on the Frontiers. He has ordered the returns of a considerable sum of money into Switzerland for the raising of 40 new Companies of those Country Soldiers for his service, with recruits to fill up the Companies of his own Regiment of the Swisse Guard.

The Prince of Conde is upon his departure for Burgundy, his equipage being some dayes since gone before him; he is very intent upon the raising of the Forces which are to serve under his command, and has already advanced a sum of moneys, and given out Commissions to his Officers for the raising of his own Regiment of Foot. Speedy care will be likewise taken for the Provisions of his Train of Artillery.

It is said his Majesty intends to make some retrenchments in his family, and to take off one half of his Officers, and with all to issue out his Declaration to recal the Priviledges of such of them as by reason of their charges, pleaded an exemption from paying of Tailles, ordering that they shall for the future be enured into their respective Parishes, and bear their proportions as the rest of his Subjects. It is also said, that Monsieur intends also to take off half the Salaries of those of his Household.

The 22. Instant was published an Arrest of Council, by which his Majesty being informed, that a new Translation of the New Testament had been lately printed in French at Mons, and published at Paris and other places of the Kingdom, inhibits and forbids the future selling or giving out any of the Copies, but to bring them into the Greffe, or Office of the Provost of Paris, or to the Royal Judges under the penalty of 1500 livres: This Arrest to be published by sound of Trumpet in Paris, and all other Cities of this Kingdom.

His Majesty has also caused another Declaration to be published, prohibiting all his Subjects, of what sex or condition soever, from wearing any Stuffs made of, or garnished with gold or silver, after the first of December next ensuing, under penalty of confiscation of such Stuffs, &c. and the forfeiture of 1500 livres, only buttons of Goldsmiths work excepted, and those to be worn only in such places as are necessary: this Declaration not reaching his Majesties Guards, Men at Arms, or light-horsemen: nor the Coats of the Officers of his Army serving near his Majesties person, nor the Gentlemen of his Court. The same Declaration forbidding the wearing of any thread-laces of the manufactures of Venice, Genova, or any other foreign Country, or the selling of any of them within his Majesties Dominions.

Yarmouth Nov. 25. Since Sunday last about 120 sail of light Colliers have passed by this Road for Sunderland and Newcastle. This day came in 3 or 4 ships from Hull. Also a Vessel of this Town that has been missing these 3 weeks and feared to have been lost, is this afternoon come into the Haven, having been at her first setting out from Hull forced by streils of weather to North Bergh, and from thence laden home with Rast.

Weymouth Novemb. 25. On Thursday last arrived in Portland road an Hollander from France laden with Salt homewards bound: the next day came into this Harbor a Swede from Norway laden with Deals. This morning arrived in this Port the ships belonging to this Town, one laden from Bordeaux the other from the Bahados.

Whitehall, Nov. 27. His Royal Highness, thanks be to God, is now perfectly recovered of his late indisposition, to the infinite joy of the whole Nation, and in a condition within few days to leave his chamber, having received the personal congratulations of their Majesties and the whole Court, who are now happily delivered from the anxieties so great an accident could not but leave them in.
