

The attention you have bestowed on the administration of justice in the courts of law and equity will, I trust, prove beneficial, and lead to further improvements.

I have willingly given my consent to a Bill relating to the administration of the land revenues of the Crown, which will, I hope, conduce to the better management of that department, and at the same time tend to the promotion of works of public utility.

It has been very gratifying to me, on an occasion which has brought many foreigners to this country, to observe the spirit of kindness and goodwill which so generally prevailed.

It is my anxious desire to promote among nations the cultivation of all those arts which are fostered by peace, and which in their turn contribute to maintain the peace of the world.

In closing the present session it is with feelings of gratitude to Almighty God that I acknowledge the general spirit of loyalty and willing obedience to the law which animates my people. Such a spirit is the best security at once for the progress and the stability of our free and happy institutions.

Then the Lord Chancellor, by Her Majesty's command, said,

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

It is Her Majesty's royal will and pleasure, that this Parliament be prorogued to Thursday the fourth day of September next, to be then here holden; and this Parliament is accordingly prorogued to Thursday the fourth day of September next.

AT the Court at Buckingham-Palace, the 7th day of August 1851,

PRESENT,

The QUEEN's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

WHEREAS Her Majesty's Commissioners for building new churches have, in pursuance of the sixteenth section of an Act passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His Majesty King George the Third, intituled "An Act to amend and render more effectual an Act passed in the last session of Parliament for building and promoting the building of additional churches in populous parishes," as enlarged by the twelfth section of an Act passed in the session of Parliament holden in the first and second years of Her Majesty's reign, intituled "An Act to amend and render more effectual the Church Building Acts," or under and by virtue of any and every other power and authority vested in them by the Church Building Acts, duly prepared and laid before Her Majesty in Council a representation, bearing date the twenty-sixth day of July one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, in the words following; viz:

"Your Majesty's Commissioners for building new churches beg leave humbly to represent to your Majesty, that having taken into consideration all the circumstances of the district parish of Saint Paul, Ball's-pond, Islington, in the county of Middlesex, and within the diocese of London, it appears to them to be expedient that a particular district should be assigned to the consecrated church of Saint Matthew, situate in Canonbury-street, in the said district parish of Saint Paul, Ball's-pond, under and by virtue of the power or authority for this purpose contained in the sixteenth section of an Act passed in the fifty-ninth year of the reign of His Majesty King George the Third, intituled 'An Act to amend and render more effectual an Act passed in the last session of Parliament, for building and promoting the building of additional churches in populous parishes,' as enlarged by the twelfth section of an Act passed in the session of Parliament holden in the first and second years of your Majesty's reign, intituled 'An Act to amend and render more effectual the Church Building Acts;' or under and by virtue of any and every other power and authority in this behalf vested in your Majesty's said Commissioners by the Church Building Acts, and that such proposed district should be named or called 'The District Chapelry of Saint Matthew, Islington,' with boundaries as hereinafter mentioned; that is to say: commencing in the New North-road, about fifty-six feet north-west of the bridge from the New North-road over the Regent's Canal; thence in a north-west direction, in a line of the New North-road and King-street, in the middle thereof, to the Lower-road at the corner of Scott's-place; thence to the north-east by the middle of the Lower-road to the south-east end of Northampton-street; thence taking a direction about north north-west, through the middle of Northampton-street to the north end thereof; thence taking the same direction in a straight line, crossing the New River and the Alwyne-road to the south-east end of the proposed new road leading from the Alwyne-road to Canonbury-place; thence in a direction nearly north north-west, by the middle of the said proposed new road for a distance of one hundred and seventy-four feet; thence in a direction nearly north-east, by the garden walls at the rear of the houses in Alwyne-road, for a distance of three hundred and five feet to the centre of Canonbury Grove-lane; thence, inclining a little more north-erly, by an imaginary line, for a distance of three hundred and fifty feet, meeting the hedge and ditch which bound Mr. Wagstaff's property at a point two hundred and seventy-five feet distant from the margin of the New River; thence in a direction about east south-east by the said hedge and ditch to the New River; thence crossing the New River at a point about five hundred and forty-three feet from the Willow Bridge, and proceeding in a direction about south-east by a brick wall dividing Mr. Wagstaff's property from that of Mr. King, for a distance of three hundred and five feet from the margin of the river to the centre of the proposed new road, to be called the Marquess-road, and coming out into that road at a point opposite the south-west side of Ashby-road; thence in a direction, nearly south from a point in the centre of the Marquess-road, opposite to the end of the aforesaid brick wall to a point in the centre of the Quadrant-road at the south-east end thereof, being a distance from point to point of five hundred and eighty feet; thence crossing the Lower-road in a direction south-east, by the middle of Halliford-street to the Downham-road; thence in a direction nearly due east, by the middle of the Downham-road, to the point at which that road is intersected by the boundaries of the said district parish of Saint Paul, Ball's-pond; thence in a southerly, westerly, and south-westerly direction, following the irregular line of the boundaries which separates the parish of Islington from the parishes of West Hackney and Saint Leonard, Shoreditch, to the point first given in the New North-road, near the bridge over the Regent's Canal, where the boundary of the said district chapelry of Saint Matthew, Islington, commenced, and as the same
