At eleven o'clock on the night of Wednesday the 17th, the Body was removed, in the presence of the Marquess of Exeter, Lord Chamberlain, and Norman Hilton Macdonald, Esq., Comptroller of the Lord Chamberlain's department, and conveyed (in a Hearse drawn by four horses) to the Horse Guards, being attended by an escort of Life Guards, and followed by two Mourning Coaches, the one containing Thomas C. March, Esq., Chief Clerk of the Lord Chamberlain's department, and the other, Mr. Kendall and Mr. Collins, servants of the deceased. On arrival at the Horse Guards, the Body was placed in the Audience Chamber there, which had been previously prepared for the purpose.

ON THE MORNING of the 18th, the Troops assembled in St. James's Park, under the command of Major-General His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, K.G., to whom the following Staff was attached :

Colonel the Earl of Cardigan,
and
Colonel Lord De Ros,

who performed the duties of the Adjutant and Quarter-Master General's Departments, under His Royal Highness; and

Lieutenant-Colonel Lord William Paulet, Unattached; Lieutenant-Colonel Lord George Paget, 4th Light Dragoons; Lieutenant-Colonel Tyrwhitt, Scots Fusilier Guards; and Captain His Serene Highness Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, Grenadier Guards, acted as His Royal Highness's Aides-de-Camp.

The Military force appointed for this duty consisted of 17 Pieces of Artillery,
8 Squadrons of Cavalry,
and 6 Battalions of Infantry.
