

Hamburgh, June 11. The Letters from Moscow of the first of May say, That a defensive and offensive Alliance was concluded between the Czars and the Crown of Poland. We are told from Berlin, That the Landtgrave of Hesse-Cassel was gone from thence to Dresden, to make the Elector of Saxony a Visit; And that a Marriage is concluded between the Duke of Mecklenburg Gustrow, and the eldest Princess of Brandenburgh.

Brussels, June 11. The Count de Clermont is going for Holland to reside there in the quality of Envoy Extraordinary from the Crown of Spain, in the place of the Marquis de Castel Moncayo, who is named to be Ambassador at Venice. The Letters from Vienna of the 30th past, confirm the news we had of the Prince of Transylvania's having embraced the Emperor's Protection, and joyned his Troops with those of his Imperial Majesty: and add, that he hath put two of his chief Fortresses into the hands of Lieutenant-General Scherffenberg. The same Letters say, that the Emperor had received an account from Poland, that the League between that Crown and the Moscovites is concluded.

Brussels, June 14. The Deputies of Flanders are come hither, to acquaint his Excellency that the States of that Province have granted him for the year ensuing a Subsidy of 22000 Rations a day at 5 Stivers, which comes to 5500 Florins daily, a great Sum, considering the Losses that Province has sustained. The Nations of this City have been likewise assembled, and have unanimously agreed to the Continuation of the Impost upon Beer. The Letters from Vienna of the 2d Instant tell us, that the Elector of Bavaria and the Duke of Lorraine were gone to the General Rendezvous, whete it was believed they would be the 3d or 4th of this Month.

Hague, June 14. The States-General have received an account from their Consul at Cadix, that the Duke of Mortemar who had with him eight Men of War, having on the 6th of the last Month, met two Ships of this State, commanded by Capt. Menard and Capt. Ewycke, he obliged them to go with him towards Cadix. In the night Capt. Ewycke changed his course, but was followed by a French Man of War, commanded by the Sieur de Belle Isle, who being come up with him the next Morning, fired several shot at him, Captain Ewycke returned a broad side, upon which there begun a sharp Fight between them, which lasted several hours, divers being killed and wounded on both sides; at last the Dutch having lost their Captain who was killed with a Cannon shot, and seeing two French Ships more appear, sent on board Monsieur Belle Isle, to let him know, that they would take what course he would have them, and accordingly sailed with him to the Bay of Cadix, where they arrived the 22d. That the Marechal d'Estree who was then before Cadix, had sent for the Dutch Consul on board, and had told him, that he was sorry for what had happened; but that the fault was the Dutch Captains, who had broke the word he had given the Duke of Mortemar to go with him to Cadix. That he had no intention to give any disturbance to the Subjects of the States-General; but on the contrary, to shew them all Friendships; and that he would give their Merchant Ships that wanted it, a Convoy to secure them from the Turks. The French Ship, they say, carried 60 Guns.

The 10th Instant the Count d'Arvieux, Ambassador of France, presented a Memorial to the States-General, to acquaint them with what had happened in 1 to Stragles, between one of his most Christian Majesty's Ships, commanded by the Sieur de Belle Isle, and one belonging to this State, commanded by Capt. Ewycke; he complains, That the said Captain; after having given his Word to go with the Duke of Mortemar to Cadix, changed his course in the night, by which he gave great ground to suspect his Intentions; That the Sieur Belle Isle following him, the said Captain finding himself the next Morning alone with his M. C. Majesty's Ship, put out his Cannon, and came with all the Sail he could make upon Monsieur de Belle Isle, who fired three Shot one after another, as a Signal that he should not advance any farther, to which the Hollander returned a whole Broad-side of 25 pieces of Cannon: whereupon the Fight began; That the Dutch Captain being killed, the other Officers sent on board the Sieur de Belle Isle, to let him know they would make good the Word their Captain had given. That the Sieur de Belle Isle received the Messenger very kindly, and (after having lamented the loss of the Dutch Captain, as of a very brave Man) sent him back, and gave the Dutch time till the Evening to repair their Ship, which the French Captain had not much less need of than the other, having 14 Men killed, and 16 wounded. The Ambassador concludes, That the States will see by this Relation, that Capt. Ewycke was the Aggressor, and doubts not but they will disapprove his Conduct; and that they will give such Orders to the Commanders of their Ships, that nothing may happen at Sea that may alter the good correspondence his M. C. Majesty will always entertain with this State.

Deale, May 8. The Count de Stirum, who we told you, sailed out of the Down the 24th of the last Month, with the Ships under his command, bound for the Sreights, put back again the next day, and yesterday set sail the Second time, with the Wind at N. E. a fresh Gale, which still continues.
