Vienna, July 11.

THe Letters from the Camp before Buda of the 6th instant tell us, that all their Batteries and Lines of Communication were finished, and their Trenches very much advanced; That they had shot a great many Bombs and Carcasses into the Town, which had at three several times set it in a flame; That they had so ruined with their Cannon three small Towers, that the Enemy had been obliged to retire from thence; That a deserter who came into the Camp had informed the Imperial Generals, that the said Towers were Mined, upon which, Orders were given to countermine them. That the 4th instant the Brandenburg Forces commanded by Lieutenant-General Schonecke, being reinforced with some Imperial Regiments, opened the Trenches on the side of the Lower Town, which were advanced the next day within 250 paces of the first Wall: That day the Besieged made a furious Sally upon these Auxiliary Forces, but were beaten back with great loss; the Brandenburgers pursuing them almost to the Gate of the Town, where they lodged themselves, notwithstanding the continual Fire the Enemy made upon them from the Town. The Trenches on the side of the Duke of Lorraine's Attack were advanced very near to the Ditch, and they had made a breach of 80 paces in the Wall. General Schultz is marched with the Troops under his Command towards the Bridge of Ejck, to endeavour to burn it. It's reported that the Grand Visier is arrived at Begrade: and that the Turks have abandoned Pocaj, Waspr, Oravitza, and other places on that side, to reinforce their Army with the Troops that are drawn from thence.

Vienna, July 14. They write from the Camp before Buda, That the 7th instant they fixed the Miner with the loss of 10 Men killed and wounded; that they had made a parallel Line from the Lower Town to the Ronde or Tower, which is in the middle of the three about 20 paces broad; that the 8th they made a like Line to the Tower on the Right; that they were raising two small Batteries of 3 pieces of 24 Pounders each, so near the Walls of the Town that 20 Men were killed or wounded with Stones and Hand Grenado's, Major-General Dingben being of the Number of the wounded. The 9th, the Besieged Sprang Two Mines at 20 paces distance from the Wall, and followed it with a Sally, between the Duke of Lorraine's attack and that of the Brandenburgs, which put our Men at first into some disorder, but being assisted from the next Guard they repulsed the Enemy, of whom 80 were killed, many wounded and 6 taken Prisoners; on our side about 150 were killed and wounded. That day the Bavarians discovered two of the Enemies Mines and took the Powder out of them; their Attack as well as that of the Duke of Lorraine was so advanced that they were preparing to give an Assault; but the breach being the largest on the Duke of Lorraine's Attack, it would be given first on that side. We have an account from Zolnocke that the Serafquier Achmet Bassa who had passed the Thyffe to conduct a Convey to Agrid, understanding that Buda was besieged, returned towards Seped, and from thence marched towards the Bridge the Turks have over the Danube below Effecke; and that General de Mercy was marched with the Forces under his command to observe the Enemy. It is confirmed that the Grand Visier marches with 50000 Men to relieve Buda. We have advice that the Hussars have surprized the Castle of Coloffa situated not far from the Isle of St. Marvace on the side of the Danube, putting all the Garrison to the Sword.

From the Camp before Buda, July 14. The Duke of Lorraine having resolved to attack the Breach of the Town, and to try to make a Lodgment upon it, and all things being accordingly disposed for the Assault, the Signal was given yesterday about seven in the Evening; Most of the Volontiers were ready at the Head of the Trenches, and followed the Grenadiers who were to clear the Breach, they mounted it in two places, and in both found the Turks in a posture to receive them; The Fight was very obstinate for near an hour, and many Faggots and Sacks of Earth were placed to cover our Men, but the Turks fought very desperately, and most of the Officers and Volontiers who bore their fury being killed or wounded, the Soldiers quitted their Post, and retired; The English Volontiers shewed all possible Bravery in this occasion; of Twenty, only Mr. Fitz-James (who since he came into the Camp has been constantly in the Trenches, and the forwardest in all danger), and five of six more are not hurt, the rest are killed or wounded, Captain Talbot and Mr. Moore had their Heads broke to pieces with Stones, Mr. Wijemans was struck down on the top of the Breach with a Slinger, and was not seen afterwards, Captain R. Speer was shot through the Body, and died this Morning, Mr. Bellasis is shot into the Breast, Lieutenant Colonel Farbes in the Groyn, and the Lord Georg Saxville through the Belly, and Mr. St. George in the Shoulder, and Mr. Speward has two Wounds by Stones, but it's hoped these will do well; My Lord Mountjoy is lightly hurt with a blow of a Stone on the Thigh, and Mr. Vadrez and Mr. Cuffs are bruised with Stones, Besides these the Prince de Veldentz and Count Danaw were killed, The Duke de V. de V. and his Brother were wounded, the former is since dead; the Prince de Commerce and Count Auguste are wounded, and several other Persons of Quality were killed or wounded. The Turks have likewise lost a great many brave Men in this Action.

Vienna, July 22. The 16th Instant arrived here an Expres from the Camp before Buda, with an account, that the 13th about 7 in the Evening the Imperials gave an Assault on the side of the Duke of Lorraine's Attack; Count Hoyerstein commanded 300 Foot and 50 Grenadiers on the Right, and the Count de Auzberg 280 Foot, and a like Detachment of Grenadiers on the Left; and the Miners and other Workmen marched in the middle being supported by a great many Volontiers, two Battalions of the Regiment of Sonches and Keyserstein; The Enemy seeing them advance, sprang two Mines, but without doing any harm to our Men, who, notwithstanding all the opposition they met with, mounted the Breach, and maintained themselves there two full hours, but not being able to cover themselves from the Enemies Fire, who had made a Retrenchment behind the Breach, fortified with Palisadoes, and a deep Ditch, they were at last obliged to retire, which they did in very good order; In this occasion it's reckoned 300 Men were killed, and 400 wounded, among which were divers persons of quality, as well Officers as Volontiers The Prince de Veldenz, the Count de Donau, and Count Herberstein, Major to the Regiment of Scherfgenberg with four Captains, and several inferior Officers were killed, the Duke de Vejar Grandee of Spain, and Prince Picolomini being mortally wounded, died the next day; The Prince de Commercy, the Marquis de Valero, the Count d'Orfel, Count Guido de Staremberg, Lieutenant-Colonel to the Regiment of that name, the Count de Hauensberg likewise, Lieutenant-Colonel, and about 30 inferior Officers were wounded. Of the English Volontiers there were 11 or 12 killed and wounded; The Enemy's loss in this Assault was not much inferior to ours, as three Turkish Deferters reported, who assured the Imperial Generals, that the Town was filled with dead and wounded Men. After this Action the Turks made a Sally upon the Brandenburgers, but were so well received by them, that they were forced to retire in great disorder, with the loss of 43 killed, and 15 taken prisoners, besides wounded. We are told that a general Assault will be made upon the place the next week from all the three Attacks.

Brussels, July 26. The States of this Province have given his Excellency a Subsidy of 800000 Guilders, which is a great Sum, considering the present condition of this Country. His Excellency went yesterday to Gaunt to visit the new Fortifications that are making there. The Letters from the Camp before Buda tell us, That so soon as the Brandenburgers had begun their approaches, the Besieged made a furious Sally, thinking to have ruined that Quarter, but they were beaten back with great loss, and pursued to the Gates of the Town. That the Ninth the Turks sprang a Mine on the Brandenburgers side, which buried several of them, and at the same time made a great Sally, which put the Brandenburgers at first into some disorder, but being seconded by their Reserve, they repulsed the Enemy, and pursued them to the Gate. On the side of the Duke of Lorraine's, as well as the Elector of Bavaria's Attack, the Trenches were carried so near to the Ditch, and the Breaches they had made with their Cannon were so large, that they were preparing for an Assault; the Turks have made Retrenchments behind them, which the Imperialists were endeavouring to ruine, having made two or three small Batteries so near the foot of the Wall, that several of the Workmen were killed with Stones and Hand-Grenadoes from thence. These Letters add, That the Duke of Lorraine having advice that 8000 Turks were marching towards Buda, on the other side of the Danube, in order to put a new Commander with some Relief into the Place, had sent a strong Detachment of Horse and Dragoons to observe them. The Advices from the Turkish Quarters say, The Grand Vicer was arrived at Belgrade, July 28. On Sunday morning his Excellency returned hither from Plandorf. Our Vienna Letters of the 18th instant tell us, that by an Express from the Camp before Buda, they had an account of an Assault that was made the 13th on the side of the Duke of Lorraine's Attack by 3000 Foot, seconded by a great number of Volontiers, who attacked the Enemy with that bravery, that they posted themselves upon the Breach, which being somewhat narrow, and fortified within with Palisadoes and double Retrenchments, they could neither advance farther, nor maintain what they had gotten, so that after a sharp Engagement of two hours, they were obliged to retire. In this action were slain the Prince Ve denez, Prince Picolomini, the Duke de Vejar Grandee of Spain, Count Herberstein, the Count de Korfstein, and divers other Officers and Volontiers, and about 300 common Soldiers; among the wounded are Count Guido de Staremberg, the Count de Hausburg, and many other persons of Note, and about 500 common Soldiers; during the Assault the Turks sprang two Mines, but without any damage to the Besiegers; and after it was over, they made a Sally, thinking to have attacked the Besiegers in flank, but the Brandenburgers very bravely defended their post, and beat back the Enemy, who left 24 dead upon the place. The loss of the Turks in the Assault is esteemed almost equal to that of the Christians. In this occasion twelve English Volontiers were killed and wounded. The Letters farther say, that the Imperial Generals had resolved to give the 19th a General Assault in three several places.

Lichfield, July 5. On Wednesday last His Majesty's Gracious Charter was brought to this City by Philip Fargiter Esq; High Steward, who was met at the Confines of the County by several Gentlemen, and at the utmost Bounds of the City by the Mayor, Sheriff, and Aldermen in their Formalities, most of the Citizens, and all the Gentry of the Neighborhood, where the Charter was delivered to the Mayor, and was from thence carried before him to the Guildhall of the said City, where it was Read, after which the Company was entertained splendidly by the Mayor, the Evening being spent with Bonfires, Ringing of Bells, &c.
