

Vienna, Octob. 13. The Letters of the 4th Instant from the Imperial Camp near Hadash and Vofsa tell us, that the Duke of Lorraine (who was not returned to Buda, but continued still with the Army, expecting the arrival of General Caffari) has put into his hands the Command of the Troop (of his Division) had sent a Detachment to possess themselves of Hatwan, which the Turks lately abandoned; This place will be of great use to the Imperialists, in the blocking up of Agria; It is indeed very much ruined, but being advantageously situated, may easily be made defensible for the present; And in the Spring it will be more regularly re-fortified. These Letters add, That the Detachment commanded by General Caprara, continued their march towards Segedin; And that the Garrison of Buda would be reinforced to 7000 Men. The Auxiliary Forces of Brandenburg and Saxony are marching home, the Emperor having appointed Commissioners to conduct them through his Territories, and ordered very considerable Presents for the Generals and other principal Officers. Prince Louis of Bogen was, according to our last advice, arrived with the Forces under his Command near Capolwar, intending after he had made himself Master of that place, to march to Toranowitz, to join there with Lieutenant-General Scherfkeberg; It is now said that they will not besiege Five Churches, but that they will march directly to the Bridge of Essecke; which, we hear, the Grand Visier has positive Orders to defend at what price soever it be, and that for that purpose he has caused several new Retrenchments and other Works to be made, to render the Access to it the more difficult. A solemn Embassy is coming hither from Transilvania, but we know not yet with what Commission. Teckelej is arrived at Great Waradin; Those of Montgatz have taken a new Oath of Fidelity to him. The Letters from the Polish Army of the 20th inst, say, That the King had been obliged, through the want of Provisions, to march back towards Jassi. Just now arrives here an Express from the Army with advice that the Imperial Troops invell'd Segedin the 5th Instant, and that the same day Lieute. a General de la Vergne was unfortunately killed with a Cannon shot, as he was viewing the place in order to the possiding of the Troops.
