

and free from any impost, or else a certain settled quantity of the land obtained.

(b.) Freedom from customs duties on all tools, machinery, &c., required for the prosecution of the works, as also upon the implements and seeds required for the culture of the land. Should the Company desire, for the purpose of cultivating such land, to introduce settlers, such settlers will enjoy, in addition to the privileges above mentioned, the following immunities, subject however to the ordinance of the 1st April, 1834.

Freedom from all customs' duties on:—

1. Wearing apparel required by them and already used.
2. Necessary domestic furniture.
3. Carts, animals, &c., required for their service.
4. Necessary implements and all other advantages referred to in the above-mentioned ordinance.

(c.) The Government will further grant to such settlers, land for the erection of houses, warehouses, churches, schools, &c., and for gardens, as also the land required for roads, public places, &c., agreeably to the plans drawn up. In case the land should not be granted to the Company for a fixed time on the terms of an entire franchise, the settlers will not be subject to any personal tax or land tax.

B.—Construction of Roads.

The following advantages will be granted to the undertakers of these works:—

- (a.) The land necessary for their construction and free right to obtain the necessary materials.
- (b.) The right to levy fixed tolls.
- (c.) All necessary implements imported for making and maintaining the roads to be free from customs duty.
- (d.) In respect to certain roads a minimum interest of 5 per cent. will be granted upon an amount of capital to be determined upon.

C.—Construction of Ports.

The Government will make the following concessions to undertakers of works of this nature:

- (a.) Port duties and other charges established by the laws in force, and levied on account of the Exchequer.
- (b.) Complete freedom from all import duties on machinery and implements required for the works.
- (c.) And lastly, a minimum guarantee of 5 per cent. for a certain period upon a capital to be determined upon.
