

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty,

The Humble Address of those commonly called Presbyterians, within the City of Bristol.

Most Dread Sovereign,

Having Experienced Your Princely Clemency before You ascended the Throne of Your Royal Ancestors when upon our Addresses to Your Majesty, to procure and promote our Quiet and Tranquility, You were Graciously pleased to intimate privately, what You have now declared publicly (to the Joy of no small number of Your Majesties Loyal Subjects) That Conscience (which is accountable solely to the highest Tribunal) ought not to be constrained, nor People forced in Matters of meer Religion: We think we ought to make Grateful mention thereof, lest it should seem those Ancient Benefits were buried and forgotten by us; And now being under the sweet Enjoyment of perfect Peace and Tranquility, as the Consequence and Effects of Your late most Gracious and Celebrated Declaration for Liberty of Conscience; We sensibly find our Selves under the highest Obligations to the greatest Gratitude, which with deep Veneration and Humility, we first offer to the Supreme Sovereign (who inspires Princes with Wisdom and Prudence to act for the common good, and therein for their own Greatness and Glory) and next to Your Royal SELF, by whose Indulgence and Protection, we enjoy our present Peace and Liberty, nor in the least questioning Your steady Resolution to preserve this our Happiness, with the Enjoyment of our Properties, according to Your Gracious Assurances in the said Declaration, since we know it proceeds from so mature a Judgment, and rooted a Principle in Your Majesty.

It were easie (our hearts being now enlarged with Your Royal Bounty,) to multiply thankful Expressions to Your Majesty, who have endeared and secured us to Your self by such a Fatherly Care of us, but we hope to manifest by our conscientious and dutiful Deportment, that we are not ungrateful to so Indulgent a Prince, and that we shall endeavour sincerely and constantly (by the Assistance of Divine Grace) that none of Your Subjects in like capacity with us, may go beyond us in doing that which hath a real Tendency towards the promoting the Peace and Prosperity of Your Majesties Reign.

We conclude imploring the Divine Majesty, That Your Royal SELF and Family, may abound with the best of Blessings, and that we, and all other Your Subjects, may be Eminent in true Piety, and universal Charity with all Christian Virtues and Graces, by which Nations are exalted, and Thrones established. As the Duty of

Your Majesties most Humble, Thankful,
And Loyal Subjects.

Venice, May 17. The new raised Troops which lately arrived at the Lido, being embarked, the Foot on 8 Ships and the Horse on 6 Marsijians, sailed the 13th Instant for the Morea; with several other Vessels laden with Provisions. The Prince of Brunswick is arrived here, and has given the Senate Notice of the approach of his Troops; They will come by Water from Verona. Part of the 2000 Men which the Prince of Brandenburg Baresse has undertaken to raise for the Service of the Republick, are arrived at the Lido. We have Advice by a Vessel from the Morea, that Captain-General Morosini was arrived with 48 Sail at Navarin, which place he thought the most convenient for the general Rendezvous.

Vienna, May 22. The Imperial Regiments are marching from their several Quarters to the general Rendezvous, which will be held towards the end of this month near Barakan. The Troops of Bavaria begin to pass down the Danube; And the Elector himself is expected here the next week. The Duke of Lorraine will part for Hungary on Monday or Tuesday next. The Turks continue to assemble near Essekce, but are not so strong as was reported; However several Imperial Regiments are ordered to march towards the Drave, under the Command of Major-General Dunewald, to observe and hinder them from passing that River. The Bridge which the Grand Visier has caused to be made over the Danube at Peter Waradin, is finished, and for its Security, the Turks are building a Fort, in which will be posted 5 or 600 Men. They have provided great Magazines at Temelwaer, which makes it thought the Grand Vizier's design is to act with his main forces on that side, to divert the Imperialists from the Siege of Alba Regalis; and at the same time keep the Transylvanians from joining with them. We have an account that three Turkish Deputies came the last week to Buda from Agria, who reported that the Garrison suffered extremely through the want of Provisions; and that if they were not relieved in a very short time, of which they had very little expectation, they would be forced to surrender the place to the Imperialists. Teckley finding all his measures broken by the late discovery of the Correspondence he had with divers considerable Persons in Hungary, his Party lessening daily, and himself very much slighted by the Turks, begins, it is said, by the means of the Prince's Ragotz his Wife, to make new applications in order to obtain the Emperor's Pardon, and offers to surrender Mon-gatz; But we are told at the same time, that the Turks observe him very closely. Count Rabata, Commissary General of the Army is made Velt Marthal, and chief Governor of Buda. The Pope's Nuncio at this Court has besides the 35000 Florins for the Fortifications of Buda, given 60000 Crowns towards the preparations for the Campaigne.

Hague, May 31. The States-General have, it is said, accepted the Mediation of the Elector of Brandenburg, for the composing the Differences depending between the Crown of Denmark and this State about the Tolls. The Duchess Dowager of Nassau, and the Prince of Simmeren, continue still here.

Plymouth, May 24. This day arrived here the Malaga Merchant, John Benbow Master, who gives this Account: The 10th Instant we met near the Steights-mouth, a Sally Man of War, who coming up with us, after having hailed us, fired a whole Broad-side, and a Volley of small Shot, with his Men on his Bompsprit and his Sprigsel-yards along Ships, all ready to Board us, but we gave him such a repulse, as obliged him to quit his design, and make what haste he could to get from us, having lost many Men, as we have reason to believe from the lamentable Cry we heard on Board their Ship. We fired after him whilst our Shot could reach him. All the damage he did us was in our Sails and Rigging.
