That the Ottoman Fleet was failed towards Rhodes. That the Veteran Troops, being fuch as on account of their tormer good Services, or for other gratifications had obtained an exemption from the Grand Vision Kuper 1, not to be called forth to the War, but upon the like extraoidinary occasions of the Empire, were now order'd to be litted again, and 30000 of them should be sent to B grade. The Grand Signior continued in the S rache, and the Captain Boffa was expected at Scio; And the Gallies fent to the bl. ch Sar have Orders to return to Affack. Bud 1, June 21. The Duke of Lorrain encamp'd the 16th instant at Fentwar, the Foot lying on the Left towards the Danube, being covered by the Horseon the Right; The same day arrived there the Regiments of Prince Commercy and Count States The 17th his Highness decamped, and continued his march in good order, 800 Horse and Dragoons marching in the Van, and on the Right, and a strong detachment in the Rear, for the security of the Baggage and Sutlers following the Camp, some few whereof had been seiz'd by a flying Party from Albi Regalis. His Highness receiving advice the 18th Instant, that the Grand Visier was marching with the Ottoman Army from Be grade towards Effecke; and had ordered 4000 Tartars to pass the Danube at Peter Waradin; he immediately dispatched Expresses to the Armies at Zolnocke and on the Dr.we, with Orders how to behave them-felves in the present Conjuncture. The same day the Bridge was finished over the Danube, which his Highness had Commanded to be made at Tolna: thổ there has been as yet no use-made of it; for on the 29th the Duke of Lorrain continued his march towards Effecke, and pass'd the Saruntz at Battasfick. His Highness having intelligence that the Bridge of Effecke was in no serviceable condition, resolved to pass the Drave with his whole Army, upon a Bridge prepared between Syclos and Five Churches, leaving only a sufficient number of Men for the defence of the faid Bridge, and march directly to meet the Grand Visier (who as it was said) had left Belgrade, and was coming towards Escape.
