Osborne, July 26, 1865.

THIS day the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor of Dublin, accompanied by Mr. Alderman Reynolds, the Town Clerk, the Sword Bearer, and the Mace Bearer, waited upon Her Majesty with the following Address, which was handed to Her Majesty :—

To the QUEEN'S Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Dublin.

May it please your Majesty,

WE, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Dublin, desire, on our own part, and on that of our fellow citizens, to present to your Majesty our warm congratulations on the birth of a second son to their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales.

We hail the auspicious event not only as a means of increasing the domestic happiness of the young Prince's Royal Parents, but as a source of joy to your Majesty, whose maternal love and solicitude for the welfare of the Royal Family have been so pure, so conspicuous, and so enduring.

In thus offering to your Majesty our most respectful and dutiful congratulations we humbly seize upon the opportunity of laying before your Majesty the renewal of our loyal attachment to your Majesty's person and throne.

In conclusion we pray that your Majesty may long continue to occupy the throne of these realms, and to reign, as your Majesty has ever reigned, in the hearts and affections of your Irish subjects.

W. J. Henry, Town Clerk.

To which Address Her Majesty was pleased to return the following most gracious Answer :—

"I thank you very sincerely for the Address of congratulation on the birth of the Prince, my grandson, which you have presented to me on the part of the Corporation and Citizens of my ancient City of Dublin.

"I am much gratified by the warm interest which you express in all that concerns the happiness of myself and of my family, and I accept with great satisfaction your renewed assurances of loyal attachment to my person and Throne."

They were all very graciously received, and the Lord Mayor and Mr. Alderman Reynolds had the honour of kissing Her Majesty's hand.

By the Lords of Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council.
