TUESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1865.

Foreign Office, October 31, 1865.

THE following Despatch has been addressed by Earl Russell to Colonel Stanton, Her Majesty's Agent and Consul-General in Egypt:—

Foreign Office,
Sir, October 5, 1865.

ALTHOUGH it is too late to give you any directions for the guidance of Mr. Rassam beyond those which I have already transmitted by telegraph, it may be useful, in order to prevent misconceptions, that I should enable you to state upon any proper occasion what has been and is the policy of the British Government regarding Abyssinia.

It should be borne in mind that Abyssinia is composed of several distinct provinces, some of which are separated from each other by lofty mountains and by rivers which are impassable during a portion of the year.

Hence these different provinces have often been ruled by separate princes or chiefs (Dedjatch), independent of each other.

In 1841, Captain Harris was sent from Bombay to the King of Shoa, with whom he concluded a Treaty of Friendship and Commerce, on the 16th of November, 1841.

In the same year, the Ruler of Tigre Ras Obeay, or Ubie, called Ras of Abyssinia, sent Mr. Coffin, an English traveller, with a letter and presents for Her Majesty.

On Mr. Coffin's arrival at Cairo, he was informed, through Colonel Barnett, in December, 1841, by direction of Lord Aberdeen, that he need not proceed further on his journey to England, and that he might deliver to Colonel Barnett any letter with which he was charged.

Mr. Coffin accordingly delivered the letter from Ras Ubie (together with presents) to Colonel Barnett, who sent the letter to England, but it cannot be ascertained whether the presents were also sent, the only allusion to them being found in a despatch from Colonel Barnett, dated September 19, 1841, in which he says they were still with Mr. Coffin, at Cairo.

No reply, however, was returned to this letter, and Ras Ubie was thereupon so angry, that he threatened violence to Mr. Coffin for not bringing him a return present from the Queen.

In January, 1848, Lord Palmerston, with a view to establish commercial relations with Abyssinia, appointed Mr. Plowden, Consul for that country, and directed him to reside at Massowah.

Mr. Plowden was informed, in his letter of appointment, that he was sent to Massowah for the protection of British trade with Abyssinia and the countries adjacent thereto.

Consul Plowden proceeded to Gondar and concluded a Treaty of Friendship and Commerce with Ras Ali, on the 2nd November, 1849.

By this Treaty it was provided, that His Majesty of Abyssinia would receive an Ambassador from Her Britannic Majesty, and "Her Britannic Majesty would, in the same manner, receive and protect any Ambassador, Envoy, or Consul, whom His Majesty of Abyssinia, or his successors, might see fit to appoint."

But in 1854, Ras Ali was overthrown by one of his sons-in-law, who induced the Coptic Bishop to crown him Emperor of Abyssinia. This person was the present Emperor Theodore, who, so far from insisting on the observance of the Treaty of 1849, refused altogether to recognize that Treaty.

Consul Plowden was told by the British Government in 1857, that the Emperor was bound in good faith to recognize that Treaty, and that if he objected to any of its provisions he should propose modifications.

But from the triumph of the Emperor Theodore in 1856, to the present day, the Treaty has been a dead letter.

It may be argued that the British Government ought to have insisted on the validity of the Treaty on the one hand, and to have protected the Emperor of Abyssinia from the Turks on the other.

But considering the short tenure of power in the Abyssinian Kings, whatever be their title, the difficulty of reaching with a regular British force their seats of Empire, the little value of a victory gained at Gondar and Shoa, the risk of failure and the certainty of expense, it has seemed to the British Government a preferable course to withdraw, as much as possible, from Abyssinian engagements, Abyssinian alliances, and British interference in Abyssinia.

This course, however, has not been taken without giving rise to groundless reproaches, many unfounded allegations, and some embarrassing and painful occurrences.

Of the former class is the following bold assertion, namely:—

“There is reason for believing that the Emperor Theodore holds Captain Cameron as a hostage for the recognition by England, already made in 1849, of the independence of Abyssinia, for the suppression of Egyptian aggressions along the frontier, and for the restitution of the Church and Convent at Jerusalem, torn from him and his people by the Copts, Armenians, and Turks.”

Now with respect to the recognition of the independence of Abyssinia in 1849, it has been seen that it was England that asked for the recognition of the Treaty of 1849, and the Emperor Theodore who refused it. But the recognition of the independence of Abyssinia has never been withdrawn by England.

As to the suppression of Egyptian aggressions along the frontier, England has from time to time used her influence to prevent such aggressions, but will not consent to guarantee the integrity of the Abyssinian territory.

Such a guarantee would be, in the opinion of Her Majesty's Government, an unwise engagement—impracticable in execution.

The restitution of the Church and Convent of Jerusalem is a matter which requires some further explanation.

Any one who follows with attention the proceedings of the Turkish Government in the various provinces under its direct rule, must be aware that the Christian sects, subjects of the Ottoman Porte, frequently persecute one another, and that the Sultan is often appealed to to rescue individuals and communities from the mal-treatment or cruelty of their fellow Christians.

Her Majesty's ambassador at the Sublime Porte uses his good offices on such occasions, and generally with success.

In July, 1852, Lord Malmesbury was appealed to by Bishop Gobat, of Jerusalem, in behalf of Ras Ali and Dedjatch Onbea, who had adopted at a meeting at Gondar a resolution to the effect—

“That Her Majesty should be requested to authorise you (the bishop) to protect and superintend their countrymen visiting or residing in Jerusalem, and to authorize the British agent residing at Jerusalem to lend you (the bishop) his assistance for that purpose when required.”

Lord Malmesbury's answer to this request was very clear and decisive.

“I have to state to you, in reply, that Her Majesty's Government cannot undertake to protect officially the natives of Abyssinia who may chance to be residing in the territory of the Sublime Porte. But Her Majesty's Consul at Jerusalem will be instructed to use his good offices for them, in case of need, as members of a Christian Church in spiritual communion with the Established Church in this country.”

You will see that the Earl of Malmesbury distinctly refused “to protect officially the natives of Abyssinia who may chance to be residing in the territory of the Sublime Porte.”

You will observe also that the good offices to be employed in their favour were intended for the benefit of those “who might chance to be residing in the territory of the Sublime Porte.” Thus a distinction was made between those who might resort occasionally or casually to Jerusalem and the inhabitants of Jerusalem of Abyssinian origin, who might be accounted Turkish subjects.

Thus limited, both as to the extent of the protection to be afforded and as to the classes of persons on whose behalf good offices were to be exercised, the instruction of the Earl of Malmesbury must be allowed to have been proper and judicious. Accordingly I referred Consul Finn, on May 29, 1862, to those instructions of 1852, observing, “I have nothing to add to those instructions, except to enjoin you to act upon them with caution and prudence.”

Those instructions remain still in force.

Coming now to the imprisonment of Consul Cameron, it appears from the papers presented to Parliament that after he had conveyed my letter, written by order of the Queen, and some few presents to the Emperor of Abyssinia, he went to the country of Bogos, where he employed himself in reconciling some rival Chiefs, sending on the Emperor's letter to the Queen to Massowah by the Abyssinian messenger.

It appears, further, that the chief cause of the Emperor's anger with Consul Cameron was this journey to Bogos, coupled with the Emperor's suspicion that Consul Cameron had intrigued to set the Turks and Egyptians of the frontier against him, and aggravated in some degree by the return of Consul Cameron to Gondar without any answer to the Emperor's letter to the Queen.

It appears from King Theodore's letter to Mr. Rassam, sent home by that gentleman in his letter of the 5th of September, that the King alleges that Captain Cameron “abused and denounced him as a murderer,” in consequence of the vengeance which he took on the persons who killed Consul Plowden and Mr. Bell, and that when he had treated him well and asked him to make him (the King) a friend of the Queen, Captain Cameron “went and stayed some time with the Turks, and returned to me (the King)”; and further, that when the King spoke to Captain Cameron about the letter sent by him to the Queen, he said he had not received any intelligence concerning it.

There is no reason to suppose that Consul Cameron incited the Egyptian forces on the frontier to commit aggressions on the territory of Abyssinia. It is far more probable that the enemies of the British name in Abyssinia should have infused unjust suspicions into the mind of the Emperor. But certainly Consul Cameron, in going to Bogos, acted without orders, and incurred the displeasure of his own Government.

It is now to be hoped that Mr. Rassam's explanation will procure for Captain Cameron permission to leave Abyssinia. He will be employed hereafter in a different part of the world, and will never have occasion to return to Abyssinia.

I have thus explained to you that the policy of the British Government has been founded entirely on the desire to promote trade and intercourse with Abyssinia.

I am well aware that there are persons who wish Her Majesty's Government to interfere in behalf of Abyssinia, as a Christian country, against Turkey and Egypt, as Mahomedan countries.

But this policy has never been adopted by the British Government, and, I trust, never will be.

If we were to make ourselves the protectors of the Emperor Theodore against the Sultan and his Viceroy of Egypt, we should become responsible for his acts, and be entangled in his quarrels with all his neighbours and rivals.

The obligations of the British Government are various enough, and heavy enough, without undertaking so costly, hazardous, and unprofitable a protectorate.

I am, &c.,

Vessels navigating this channel should do so with caution, for there is still a large extent of ground not sounded over; and a doubtful danger is marked on the Admiralty Chart at 11 miles west of the position of the above breakers.

Statistical and Corn Department, Board of Trade, October 30, 1865.

A. W. FONBLANQUE, Comptroller of Corn Returns.

Wilts (to wit).

BE it remembered, that at the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace of our Lady the Queen, holden at Marlborough, in and for the said county of Wilts, on Tuesday, the 17th day of October, in the 29th year of the reign of our Sovereign Lady Victoria, by the Grace of God, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, before Sir John Wither Awdry, Knight, Chairman, Henry Alworth, Merewether, George Matcham, John Ravenhill, Esquires, and others, their Fellows, Justices of our said Lady the Queen, assigned to keep the peace of the said Queen, in the county aforesaid; and also to hear and determine divers felonies, trespasses, and other misdemeanours done and committed in the said county, it is ordered as follows: (that is to say) —

Whereas at the Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace holden at Warminster, in and for the said county of Wilts, on Tuesday, the 27th day of June last, it was ordered provisionally,

That under the provisions of the Acts 25 and 26 Vict., cap. 61, and 27 and 28 Vict., cap. 101, the Highway District of Trowbridge in the said county, in which by virtue of a Final Order made at a Court of General Sessions of the Peace holden at Devizes, in and for the said county of Wilts, on Tuesday, the 16th day of February, in the year of our Lord 1864, was comprised the parish of Bradford in the same county (except such parts of the said parish as are under the management of Commissioners appointed by a local Act of Parliament), in which said parish of Bradford the eight several tithings of Bradford Borough, Atworth, Holt, Leigh and Woolley, Limpley Stoke, Trowle, Winsley, and South Wraxall, all at the date of the said Final Order separately maintaining their own highways and belonging to the said parish of Bradford, were by the said Final Order included, should be altered by the subtraction therefrom of so much of the said tithings of Bradford Borough, Leigh and Woolley, Trowle, and Winsley, respectively, as was comprised therein.

That each of the said tithings of Atworth, Holt, Limpley Stoke, and South Wraxall, should be constituted a separate highway parish, comprised in and forming part of the said highway district of Trowbridge, and that one Waywarden should be elected annually for each of the said four highway parishes.

And that the confirmation of the Provisional Order, then made, by a Final Order, should be taken into consideration at this present Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, which was thereby appointed for that purpose.

And whereas notice as directed by the said Acts was duly given by the Clerk of the Peace, that the confirmation of the said Provisional Order by a Final Order would be taken into consideration by the Justices at this present Court of General Quarter Sessions.

Now, therefore, after duly considering the said Provisional Order, this Court doth hereby confirm the same order, and doth finally order that the said Highway District of Trowbridge be altered by the subtraction therefrom of so much of the said tithings of Bradford Borough, Leigh and Woolley, Trowle, and Winsley respectively as was comprised therein. And that each of the said tithings of Atworth, Holt, Limpley Stoke, and South Wraxall be constituted a separate highway parish, comprised in and forming part of the said Highway District of Trowbridge, and that one Waywarden be elected annually for each of the said four highway parishes.

By order of the Court,
